Education Notes.

The following officers have been elected by a unanimous vote by the Directors of the Public Schools Athletic League: General George W. Wingate, President; Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Honorary Vice President; Gustavus T. Kirby, First Vice President; Dr. John Huston Finley, Second Vice President; Edgerton L. Winthrop, Jr., Third Vice President; Mgr. M. J. Lavelle, Fourth Vice President; S. R. Guggenheim, Treasurer; C. L. Myers, Assistant Treasurer, and Dr. C. Ward Crampton, Secretary.

The Board of Education has approved plans for the organization of opportunity classes this Summer and for the Fall season of the evening elementary schools.

There has been reported to the Committee on Salaries a recommendation that the compensation of evening elementary school teachers be increased from $3 a night to $3 a night for the first two years of service, $3.50 for the next two years, and $4 for the fifth and succeeding years.

Funds have been provided for continuing two classes in camouflage during the Summer evening session.

A request from the Teachers' Council that absence refunds be paid more promptly has been referred to the City Superintendent of Schools for investigation.

The first of the annual park fetes by the girls' branch of the Public Schools Athletic League has been postponed to May 23.

Herman C. Pross of P. S. 64, Manhattan, and Frederick Hildenbrand of P. S. 5, Brooklyn, have been appointed teachers of electrical installation and practice.

The Brooklyn Teachers' Association has re-elected Miss Isabel A. Ennis President.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The Western disturbance of Monday has been forced to the northward and is slowly dissipating over Manitoba. There was a decided fall in pressure during Tuesday over the upper lake region, while in the West it has risen considerably and remains high in the East.

Showers fell in the Northwest and thunder showers in the Lower Missouri and Upper Mississippi Valleys, New England, the Middle Atlantic States, the Ohio Valley, and the mountain districts of Virginia, North Carolina, and Tennessee. Elsewhere the weather was fair.

Temperatures are high except in the Northwest and extreme West, where they are quite low, with freezing temperatures Tuesday morning over interior northern districts west of the Rocky Mountains. Frost also occurred Tuesday morning in Northern Michigan. There will be showers Wednesday in the lower lake region and also in Southern Virginia and interior North Carolina, followed by fair weather Thursday. Elsewhere east of the Mississippi River the weather will be generally fair Wednesday and Thursday.

Temperature changes will not be of consequence.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate, variable, with showers. Middle Atlantic Coast—Moderate, mostly south, showers Wednesday, fair Thursday. South Atlantic Coast—Gentle to moderate southeast except east off the Florida coast; fair.

FORECAST TODAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York and Eastern Pennsylvania—Partly cloudy Wednesday and Thursday.

Southern New England—Fair Wednesday, preceded by showers near the coast; Thursday fair.

New Jersey—Partly cloudy Wednesday; Thursday fair.

Western New York—Fair Wednesday and probably Thursday.

Northern New England—Fair Wednesday and probably Thursday; cooler Thursday on the coast.

JUNE REGISTRATION WILL YIELD 750,000

Officials Estimate Army Will Get That Number of Men Just Past 21.

ALL OF AGE MUST ENROLL

Crowder Emphasizes That Divinity and Medical Students Must Report to Boards.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Major Gen. Crowder, Provost Marshal General, today emphasized the fact that medical and divinity students would be required to register on June 5, along with all other citizens or aliens reaching the age of 21 since June 5 of last year, and that the only exceptions to the law providing for this registration were men actually in the military or naval service.

General Crowder said he estimated that probably 750,000 men would be added to the army in the making by the June 5 registration. His estimate takes into consideration the fact that almost 10,000,000 registered on June 5 last. This number included all who were then between 21 and 31. Statistics collected by General Crowder's office show that a little more than 10 per cent. of the men were 21 years old. On that basis, it is estimated by draft officials working under the Provost Marshal General that this year's registration will exceed 1,000,000.

Of this number, General Crowder estimates that three-quarters, or about 750,000, will be available for military service. This makes allowances for physical defects, exemptions because of dependents, and other bars to military service.

Under President Wilson's proclamation, all male persons, citizens or aliens, must register. The only persons excepted are officers and enlisted men of the regular army, navy and Marine Corps, and the National Guard and Naval Militia while in Federal service, and officers of the Officers' Reserve Corps and enlisted men in the enlisted Reserve Corps while in active service.

General Crowder plans to have the local boards keep their offices open for registration between 7 A. M. and 9 P. M. on June 5. Between these hours, all young men who were born between June 5, 1886, and June 5, 1897, must register. These men are subject to the provisions of the selected service under which the first registration was held.

To clear up misunderstanding caused by the publication of reports that medical and divinity students need not register, General Crowder issued this statement:

"Divinity students and students of medicine must register. Under the terms of the law signed by President Wilson on Monday, students who were preparing for the ministry in recognized theological or divinity schools and students who were preparing for the practice of medicine and surgery in recognized medical schools on May 20, 1918, are exempt from the draft.

"The law does not relieve such students from the duty of registering on Wednesday, June 5. Registration comes first, exemption afterward. It is absolutely necessary that these students register.

"The only young men not affected by the new law are those now actually in military or naval service. All male persons, citizens, or aliens, born between June 6, 1886, and June 5, 1897, inclusive, except officers and enlisted men of the Regular Army, Navy, and Marine Corps, and the National Guard and Naval Militia, while in Federal service, and officers in the Officers' Reserve Corps and enlisted men in the Enlisted Reserve Corps while in active service, must register."

General Crowder has sent copies of the regulations covering this point to the Governors of the States and to the local boards.

SHIELDED FROM DRAFT BY GOVERNMENT JOBS

Congressmen Find 2,000 Young Men in Agriculture Department Exempted from Army Service.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Congressmen who have been investigating the subject charge that thousands of men of draft age are enjoying freedom from military duty through exemptions obtained for them by executives of Federal departments. This situation was uncovered during the discussion on the Food Production bill, when it was shown that the Secretary of Agriculture had 2,000 men exempted from military service. It was asserted that if the same proportion of exemptions prevailed in other Government departments more than 10,000 so-called "Government slackers" would be found in Washington.

To prevent further abuse of executive exemptions from military service the House amended the Food Production bill so as to prohibit the Secretary of Agriculture employing any of the 11,000 men authorized by the bill for draft service who are within the draft age. There was some opposition to the amendment, especially by Representative Candler of Mississippi, in charge of the measure, until Representative Claude Kitchin, leader of the House, insisted that he should agree to it as a patriotic duty.

May Deny Fuel Oil to Yachts.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Prohibition of the use of fuel oil for private yachts for the duration of the war is under consideration by the Fuel Administration. Officials say probably 300 steam-driven yachts and 1,000 gasoline-propelled boats operated as pleasure craft would be affected by such a prohibition.

SAYS MAYOR DECLINES TO BAR GERMAN PAPERS

Mrs. Field Asserts Hylan's Attitude Will Not Cause Her to Relax Her Efforts.

Mrs. Oliver Cromwell Field, Chairman of the American Defense Society's Committee for Suppressing All Things German, said yesterday that after a long conference with Mayor Hylan recently she had been unable to persuade him to take the initiative in New York and bar all German newspapers from the news stands. She said the Mayor told her and Mrs. Walter A. Scott that it was a matter entirely for the Federal Government to handle, but had promised her all the aid in his power just as soon as the Federal authorities took action.

"Out in North Dakota," said Mrs. Field, "I learn that the German speaking people are asking why the United States is in the war. Governor Frazier of the State recently said that the German press had not told them the truth about the war, and he urged at a State convention that the foreign language press be compelled to carry, translated for the information of their readers, documents showing what forced the country into war. A state of affairs like this is incredible and immediate action should be taken against the German papers."

Mayor Hylan refused yesterday to discuss the visit of Mrs. Field.

A petition praying that the name of Germania Avenue be changed to Liberty Avenue, was received yesterday afternoon by the Jersey City Commissioners and was referred to James J. Gannon of the Department of Streets and Public Improvements. The petition is signed by every resident of that avenue with the exception of one

CITES HYLAN AS SPEEDER.

Policeman Stops Mayor Twice and Gets Summons for Third Offense.

Mayor Hylan has twice been stopped for speeding by one policeman in Nassau County, and a summons has been drawn for service on his chauffeur if the third offense takes place.

Policeman O. W. Payne of Baldwin yesterday showed the summons which he had thought fit to draw for this special case. Policeman Payne said yesterday that the first offense was on May 4, when he stopped the Mayor and a party of friends making thirty-three miles an hour on the Merrick Road, where the speed limit is fifteen miles an hour. The second offense was on May 15, when, according to the policeman, the Mayor and some women were making forty miles an hour on the Merrick Road. After stopping the car the second time, Policeman Payne said to the Mayor:

"I think it is imposing on my good nature for you to do this so often."

Then he told the chauffeur that he would serve a summons on him if he repeated the offense. Controller Craig's chauffeur is under summons to appear at the Jamaica Court on Thursday of next week to answer a charge of speeding with the Controller. Controller Craig has promised to be a witness at this hearing.

TORNADOES KILL 16 IN KANSAS AND IOWA

Scores of Persons Injured and Loss of Property, Live Stock, and Crops Is Heavy.

HAYS, Kan., May 21.—Ten persons were killed, two probably fatally injured, and dozens of others less seriously injured in a tornado which swept across northern Ellis and southern Rooks Counties early today. At the little town of Codell, in Rooke County, all the churches, schools, and larger business houses and homes were demolished by the tornado and the débris was swept away.

The tornado started fifteen miles northwest of Hays and swept a strip a mile wide in a northwesterly direction for thirty-five miles. Only meagre reports have been received, and the death list may be augmented when full details of the devastation are learned.

Hundreds of horses and cattle were killed and much damage was caused to growing crops by hail, which came after the wind had passed.

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 21.—Tornadoes which swept the central parts of Iowa this afternoon resulted in the death of at least six persons and the injury of scores of others, according to reports reaching here tonight. Property damage estimated at more than a million dollars was wrought by the storm. According to reports, three of the dead were killed at Boone, forty miles north of here, and two others at Newton, thirty-five miles to the east.

Reports from Boone said the tornado swept across the entire county from southwest to northwest, leveling farm buildings, killing live stock and inflicting heavy damage on growing crops. In the city of Boone, fifty houses were razed and the Iowa division shops of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad virtually demolished. The victims met death, for the most part, in the ruins of their homes.

Calls for aid were sent out by railroad officials to virtually all towns in Iowa east and west on the main line of the Northwestern, and physicians and nurses are en route here from nearby towns.

Estimates of the damage in the city of Boone tonight varied from $200,000 to $500,000, while fragmentary reports from rural districts placed the damage there at close to $1,000,000.

At Newton two persons were killed and half a dozen injured when the storm wrecked a factory. Trees were uprooted, buildings unroofed, and in rural districts crops were ruined and livestock was killed. Estimates of the damage run into five figures.

One man was killed and two were severely injured near Denison, in the west central portion of the State, according to reports from there.

Half a dozen other tornadoes of no great magnitude were reported.

LIGHTNING STRIKES A TRAIN.

Girl Struck Unconscious—Heavy Rainfall in Town.

As a Pennsylvania Railroad train from Philadelphia approached New Brunswick, N. J., about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, lightning hit one of the coaches. Miss M. Altgelt of Bridgeport, Conn., was rendered unconscious. She was revived by a physician who was on the train and continued her journey. The Rev. Dr. J. Henry Smythe, Chancellor of American University, was slightly shocked.

A heavy downpour of rain deluged this city. In the early afternoon, when the storm was at its worse, it became so dark that in many office buildings it was found necessary to turn on lights so that work could be continued. The rain was accompanied by thunder and lightning. The rain fall was 1.4 inches.

In the course of the storm the southeast tower of the American Museum of Natural History was struck by lightning. The stone ornamentation of the tower was damaged

Economize—Wear Good Clothes

Yesterday, if a man felt he could afford the doubtful luxury of cheap clothes it was his business—he paid.

But, when he fools himself on a price tag today, it's different—it's unpatriotic.

He is wasting labor and materials that are needful in war work. He is hurting the country; he is delaying the game; he is wronging you and us.

So, it's worth remembering that Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes are economical. You know it, because you know they are good, all-wool clothes.

Willys Knight Sleeve-Valve Motor

This Type of Motor Is Self-Preserving And Improves With Use

The sleeve-valve motor holds every world's record for length of run, power produced, absence of wear and lack of carbon deposit.

The noises and squeaks of ordinary bodies would be severely emphasized by the quiet, vibrationless Willys-Knight motor.

And this is the most beautiful car we have ever built.

Our volume enables us to market this more efficient and self-preserving motor at a remarkably moderate cost.

HUGHES REQUESTS SENATE TO FOREGO AIRCRAFT INQUIRY

Parallel Investigation Would Hamper Department of Justice, He Declares.

PROMISES A FULL REPORT

Gregory Indorses His Attitude, and Committee Probably Will Heed Recommendation.

FIGHT IN SENATE ENDED

Compromise Reached and Funds Voted for War Inquiry Under Existing Authorization.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Following the passage by the Senate today by unanimous vote of a compromise substitute for the Chamberlain resolution for an investigation by the Committee on Military Affairs of certain activities of the War Department, a letter was made public in which Charles E. Hughes, special aircraft investigator for the Department of Justice, recommended that no parallel inquiry be undertaken by the Senate. As a result, doubt is entertained whether the Committee on Military Affairs will launch such an inquiry, although possessing authority to do so.

The resolution adopted by the Senate was offered by the Committee on Audit and Control as a substitute for the one put in a week ago authorizing the Military Affairs Committee to proceed with its inquiry into aircraft, ordnance, and the Quartermaster General's Department, and was the result of a compromise reached by the opposing factions.

It took the Senate only five minutes to dispose of the substitute resolution. Senator Thompson offered the substitute, saying it was supported by the entire Committee on Audit. Senator Martin, Democratic floor leader, urged adoption of the substitute.

"I have conferred with many members of the Senate on this resolution," he said, "Not only has there been no objection to it, but every one believes the inquiry, as outlined in the resolution, would be helpful."

Claim a Distinct Victory.

Advocates of the Chamberlain resolution, which was opposed by the President, regarded the Senate vote as a distinct victory. Senator Thompson of Kansas, Chairman of the Audit Committee, and the other Administration Democrats who fell into line for the inquiry allowed it to be known that they had done so to avoid an acrimonious debate. They preferred to give the authority asked by the Military Affairs Committee, they explained, than have an awkward fight on the floor of the Senate.

The Senate vote came upon a resolution to amend Resolution No. 48, adopted last December, by which the Military Affairs Committee was empowered to hold "hearings in connection with any subject that may be pending" and that the committee might sit during recess of Congress. Under this broad authority the committee conducted its sweeping inquiry last Winter. But it needed authorization for funds to proceed further. This was given today, when the substitute resolution was passed, as follows:

"Resolved, That any expenses incurred by the Committee on Military Affairs under the provisions of Senate Resolution 48, heretofore adopted, including the expense of employing assistants and traveling expenses, shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate."

That resolution became a substitute for the one reported favorably by the majority of the Audit Committee, which specifically authorized an inquiry into aircraft, ordnance, and the Quartermaster General's Department. The Military Affairs Committee already had power to conduct an investigation into any phase of war activity. With the authorization for expenses given today, the committee is at liberty to project unrestricted inquiry.

But after the adoption of the substitute resolution it became doubtful if the committee would, after all, use the authority given to it. This developed after the receipt by Senator Chamberlain of a letter from Attorney General Gregory, inclosing one from Mr. Hughes, in which the latter urged that there be no "parallel investigation."

Mr. Hughes argued—and was supported in his attitude by Mr. Gregory—that the Department of Justice wanted to go into an exhaustive inquiry, embracing the entire aircraft situation, and that it might be embarrassed if the Military Affairs Committee undertook an inquiry along similar lines.

Mr. Gregory's Letter.

The letter from Mr. Gregory, which was the outcome of a conference with Mr. Chamberlain follows:

Washington, May 21, 1918.

Hon. George E. Chamberlain, United States Senate.

My Dear Senator: At an interview between you, Judge Hughes, and myself on last Saturday you asked what would be the scope of our pending inquiry into the aircraft problem, and also indicated that you would like to know what we thought might be the effect upon our work of an investigation by a committee of the Senate into the aircraft program. Subsequently I suggested that Judge Hughes write me a letter embodying his ideas on the two points involved. I herewith inclose copy of his letter, and will state that I agree with the views therein expressed. Respectfully yours,

T. M. GREGORY, Attorney General.

Ask Shipyards to Make July 4 Biggest of Launching Days

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Every shipyard in the United States was asked by telegraph tonight to speed up production and make July 4 the greatest ship launching day in the history of the world.

Commissioner Colby and C. M. Schwab, Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, will be in San Francisco for the launching of nine ships in yards there.

Some of the vessels will be destroyers for the navy and others steamers for the Emergency Fleet Corporation, the launchings being a significant reminder of the overseas traffic under convoy which is playing so great a part in the world war.

Chairman Hurley is disposed to make the "Liberty Launchings" a series of notable celebrations in all yards, as a peculiarly fitting way to commemorate the signing of the Declaration of Independence. President Wilson may be asked to participate.

RED CROSS TOTAL TOPS $11,000,000

WARBURG EXPECTS SUCCESS

Industrial Drive and House Canvass Barely Under Way—Many Big Gifts Still Looked For.

New York's total for the $100,000,000 Red Cross fund was $11,358,457 at noon yesterday. The sum reported for the last twenty-four hours was $3,078,140. This was for Manhattan only, the returns from Brooklyn, Queens, the Bronx and Richmond not having been received.

The largest individual contribution received yesterday was $200,000 from John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Financial institutions, which began to contribute yesterday on receipt of word from Washington that contributions up to 1 per cent. of their capital were legal, gave $790,000 toward the total.

The falling off in the rate of contributions, as reported yesterday, in spite of the fact that it was the first day of large contributions from the banks, caused the Red Cross leaders to call for increased energy from all Red Cross workers, numbering more than 100,000, in this city, in order to make sure that New York City will go well over its minimum of $25,000,000. If the rate for the first three days is merely sustained, and not improved upon, New York will barely meet the expectations of the National Red Cross. In view of the power added to the drive here by President Wilson's personal participation in it, Red Cross leaders have hoped, and still hope, that New York City's showing will far exceed its quota.

Industrial Campaign Just Started.

It is believed that the last few days of the drive will produce money at a much more rapid rate, in view of the fact that the industrial campaign and the house-to-house canvass have barely got under way, while big contributions are still expected from many individuals and from corporations and financial institutions.

Felix M. Warburg, who presided at the meeting at the Chamber of Commerce, where the totals were reported yesterday, said:

"I believe that we are certain to reach our total for New York City of $25,000,000; but we had hoped to go over the top, and we ought to do so. If the Government decides to send a large expedition to Russia—the President told us on Saturday night that we are to stand by Russia—the amounts we are raising, however large they may seem, would be small compared to our necessities. I hope that your efforts, successful so far, will continue."

Jacob H. Schiff, for Committee No. 26, reported among other contributions the sum of $25,000 from the Delaware & Hudson Coal Company, and continued:

"You see, the railroads cannot, or will not, give to us, but our good friend, Mr. Loree, has invented a way to take $25,000 out of his coal company and give it to us."

Colonel Thompson, for the Corporations Division, reported $1,207,363 for the day, and a total to date of $3,499,151.

Henry P. Davison, Chairman of the War Council of the Red Cross, who has received several requests from corporations for advice, made the following statement yesterday:

"With my knowledge of the situation and all that is involved, if I were the head of a corporation I would feel that my responsibility for the protection of my stockholders would not be discharged until I had recommended to my Board of Directors that a contribution be made by the corporation to the American Red Cross."

M'ADOO SELECTING RAILROAD CHIEFS; MANY TO KEEP JOBS

INSISTS ON UNIFIED CONTROL

Director General Holds That Efficiency Can Be Attained in No Other Way.

CHANGES TO BE GRADUAL

Regional Heads to Recommend New Managers—Meanwhile Presidents Hold Over.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Additional steps were taken today in furtherance of the program of the Railroad Administration to place a Federal manager in charge of the operation of each railroad now under its jurisdiction, and within a few weeks the Government will be in complete control of all decisions involving the use of physical properties of the various systems.

Orders relating to operation will then be issued and put into effect through agents answerable for their acts only to the Government, and who have no financial connection with the private corporations. The belief was expressed today that this course would remove the last obstacle in the way of a speedy carrying out of instructions which might, in the belief of Director General McAdoo promote the most efficient use of the railroads as a single carrying system.

Pending the selection of the Federal managers, the Director General today requested the railroad Presidents to continue temporarily with their duties. It is probable that many of them will become Federal managers, if they are willing to sever their connections with the railroad corporations and accept the pay which the Government may allow.

Rests with Regional Directors.

Such selections, however, will be made largely upon the recommendation of the Regional Directors who have been appointed by Mr. McAdoo as the Government agents to whom the Federal Managers are to report. The appointments will be made as rapidly as Mr. McAdoo is able to consult with the members of his Advisory Council and reach a decision. It is probable, however, that the appointments will be announced one at a time and that the new policy will be put into effect gradually in this way.

The Railroad Administration, it was said today, has been making a careful study of the question from the viewpoint of obtaining the maximum of results in the matter of rapid transportation, and that the Presidents who would be selected as Federal managers would be those who had displayed the greatest zeal in co-operating with the Government. Where there has been evidence of friction and a tendency on the part of any executive to clash with the Government policies a new régime will be set up.

That there have been instances of this kind is not officially denied. In fact it is intimated that in the present move the Railroad Administration is not only seeking complete federalization of the railroads, but the elimination of all who have clung to old policies in face of orders from the Government to an extent that has hindered the Railroad Administration in its work.

It is held that the Federal Government has assumed the responsibility of giving the nation the most efficient railroad service, and that it is unwilling to permit any situation which might, in the opinion of the Railroad Administration, "throw a monkey wrench" into its plans, despite the fact that the railroad officials thus accused might feel that they were acting in the best interests of all.

McAdoo's Purpose Clear.

Mr. McAdoo recently made it evident that he believed in a complete federalization of the railroads, where operation was concerned at least, when he insisted that all of the members of his Advisory Council end their relations with the private railroad corporations which had employed them and take up their duties solely as employes of the Government. His next step was to extend this policy to the Regional Directors, who do not have offices here but are considered by him as a most important wing of his operating staff.

The decision to bring operating heads of each railroad under a like ruling was delayed for some time to determine how the situation would work out. Incidents which came to the attention of the Railroad Administration from time to time, however, are said to have brought about the decision announced yesterday.

It is not the intention of the Railroad Administration to make an end of the executives who have been deposed, and where they are not appointed as Federal managers there will be no objection to their retention as heads of the corporations in charge of financial problems. They will thus be in charge of negotiations which are carried on with the Government agents in connection with the rentals which shall be paid to the railroads by the Government and the use to which such moneys shall be put, as well as scores of other important policies concerning the future of the roads.

But the Government will insist that the remuneration paid to these executives, who are not retained as Federal Managers, shall be paid by the corpora-

Allied Envoys Call Treaty by Rumania Null and Void

PARIS, May 22.—An official note has been issued giving the reply of the French, British, Italian, and American Ministers to a letter from Constantian Arion, the Rumanian Foreign Minister, informing them that peace had been signed between Rumania and the Central Powers.

The four Ministers say that while they must leave to their Governments the exact definition of their point of view, they are obliged to declare that they regard the stipulations of the treaty null and void, "as contrary to principles, the violation of which compelled the Entente to take up arms, as well as the rights of the powers we represent."

AMERICA MAY BUY RUSSIA'S STORES

KERENSKY FOR SIBERIA?

Suggestion That He Is Going to Organize Conservative Elements Gathering There.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The allied Governments apparently are working at cross purposes with regard to the proposal to build up Russia and bring her back as a national entity. The plan of Great Britain and France contemplates military action. Several suggestions are under consideration by the United States Government, it was learned today, but all of these are understood to contemplate Russian upbuilding by peaceful means. There seems to be no movement to effect a compromise that will insure active co-operation between the allied nations with the common object of realizing Russian national aspirations and bringing that country back into the war as a powerful force that will aid the cause of the Governments arrayed against the Central Powers.

Officials admitted today that they were giving consideration to several proposals to help Russia. One phase of the program contemplates the restoration of the Trans-Siberian Railway so as to insure the better shipment of relief supplies through Siberia into European Russia. Members and engineers of the American Railway Commission, who went to Japan when the Bolshevist Government obtained control, are reported to be returning to Siberia with the intention of going to Vologda, where the Bolshevist Government has been established and where David R. Francis, the American Ambassador, and other allied diplomatic representatives are now residing. The commission will consult with Ambassador Francis with a view to arranging a plan for improving Siberian railway facilities.

Talk of Wholesale Purchase.

Another scheme, said to be under serious consideration, contemplates the effective use of the American Red Cross in relieving distress in Russian territory. The Government is said also to be considering a proposal to purchase war supplies available in Russia in order to prevent them from falling into the possession of Germany. An enormous expenditure of money would be required for this purpose.

An unconfirmed report in connection with it is that the plan of the Administration for raising revenues, amounting to between $31,000,000,000 and $33,000,000,000, partly through the imposition of increased direct taxes, contemplates these purchases in Russia. The supplies reported to be available include cotton and oil. Germany needs these commodities badly and will go to extremes to obtain them. It was intimated today that Southern Congressmen will be disposed to object strenuously to the purchase of the Russian cotton, which, they contend, would interfere with disposing of their own cotton crop.

The object of these several schemes to aid Russia is to relieve the distress in that country with the possible advantage of earning the gratitude of the Russian people who might be disposed to show a friendly feeling toward the United States and the Allies in the struggle with the Central Powers. As far as known no proposal that contemplates the use of a military force to assist the Russian people to maintain a stable central Government or a series of local governments has appealed to the United States. Nor is there any assurance that any immediate action on the part of the United States in regard to any plan is likely. Great Britain and France are anxious to do something at once, as they hold that delay will work to the advantage of Germany. There is nothing to show that the Washington Government has in any degree modified the position taken toward the recent Japanese proposal to send troops into Siberia that the use of force on Russian territory would drive the Russian people to the side of the Germans.

It is now contended in some interested quarters that conditions have changed in Russia, and the arguments advanced by the United States at the time of the Japanese suggestion do not apply to the present situation. Germany's excesses in Russia have so angered the people that they are willing to adopt almost any measures that will bring relief from the current intolerable state of affairs. This may not apply to the active Bolshevist elements which wish to maintain control of the Government in spite of the fact that they have the support of only a small proportion of the people. It appears to apply, however, to the great middle class, and peasant farm-

TROOPS TRANSPORTED FAST

90,000 Sailed in Ten Days in May, Caldwell Tells the House.

ALL THOROUGHLY EQUIPPED

BRITISH EFFORT EXCELLED

Our Front and Force Abroad Bigger in Ten Months Than Was Ally's in Year.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Representative Charles Pope Caldwell of New York, Democratic member of the Committee on Military Affairs, placed before the House this afternoon a comprehensive outline of the War Department's military program and accomplishments.

Mr. Caldwell's address resulted from an interchange of letters with Secretary Baker. The statements in it were approved by the War Department, and were regarded as a semi-official pronouncement on its affairs. He said that in a year, the American Army would be 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 strong. He declared there were at present 2,078,223 officers and men under arms, of whom more than 500,000 were in France, and 1,000,000 additional were amply trained to be sent to France as fast as shipping space could be provided.

The United States, said Mr. Caldwell, had raised and sent to the fighting lines in ten months an army larger than England had found herself able to provide in a year, despite the fact that 3,000 miles of submarine-infested Atlantic separated America from France, as against 30 miles of the English Channel.

90,000 Went in Ten Days.

During the first ten days of May, the Representative said, the United States sent 90,000 men to Europe.

Mr. Caldwell went into a detailed comparison of the man-power strength of the Central Powers and the allied nations, estimating that the maximum total of men available to the enemy for service was 18,360,000, and the number for the Allies was 68,870,500. He said that the United States itself could raise 5,000,000 men this year without going outside Class 1 of the draft.

"Washington, D. C., May 3, 1918.

"My Dear Mr. Caldwell:

"I have read with interest and appreciation your speech in the House on the subject of aircraft, and am writing this note to thank you for taking the trouble to look into the situation and speak so sympathetically and helpfully. On this and all other parts of the program which the War Department is carrying out, we are, of course, anxious to have real facts carefully investigated and frankly stated, and I know of no more useful service than so candid a statement as you have made on the subject.

"The country would be helped if you can find it possible from time to time to get into the Congressional Record the result of similar inquiries in other parts of the world, and as you are a member of the Committee on Military Affairs and, therefore, have constant contact with the subject, it may be that you will find it possible to do this.

"In the meantime, I am sure that you will feel at liberty to call on me for any information I can secure for you on any subject that you feel inclined to investigate. Cordially,

"NEWTON D. BAKER,
"Secretary of War."

Praises Baker's Keenness.

"While I have found it impossible to agree with Mr. Baker on many details," said Mr. Caldwell, "I must say that I have found him to have the keenest mind of any man in public life that it has ever been my pleasure to come into intimate association with. I have never yet cross-examined a man who was more thoroughly familiar with his subject, more exact in his choice of words, to differentiate and shade his meaning, quicker in his responses, or who had a better poise than displayed by Secretary Baker when under fire in the House and Senate Military Committees.

"At the outset let me say frankly that we have made mistakes, yes, grievous mistakes, and had our foresight been as good as the aftersight of our critics we might have accomplished more. But notwithstanding these mistakes and omissions America has done her share—indeed, more than her share, for she has done many times more than any of our allies suspected that she was capable of doing and more than the greatest enthusiast in America hoped she could do.

"America has raised and equipped a bigger army in a shorter time and now holds a greater section of the fighting front, transporting her troops 3,000 miles across an infested sea in ten months, than England was capable of

ON THE FRENCH FRONT, May 22, (Associated Press.)—American air squadrons have been engaged, in participation with the French, in bombing operations behind the German lines. These operations are being carried out on a very large scale. At one time recently 120 allied machines were flying at the same moment in bombing work.

Records have just reached the correspondent of the air activities along the French between May 15 and 18, since the weather became again favorable for flying, which reveal the intensive aerial work of the character noted. In this period 105 aerial combats were fought in the course of patrols. Thirty-seven German machines were destroyed, sixty others were forced to land, badly damaged, within their own lines, and eight captive balloons were burned.

On the night of May 15 no less than 120 airplanes were in the air at the same moment bombarding a large number of towns and villages in German-held territory, causing fires and explosions everywhere. American and Italian squadrons participated in these operations.

On May 16 the broad daylight work continued, the bombing machines being protected by seventy-five chasers, which swept all the enemy aircraft out of the skies over a large space.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN FRANCE, May 22, (Associated Press.)—Germans captured by the French testify to the brilliant work of the allied aviators, who, the prisoners say, leave the Germans no peace. Fears are expressed regarding future operations by allied airmen on the Rhine cities, which they believe will be laid in ruins. The Germans say that their anti-aircraft defenses are insufficient to prevent the allied raids.

LONDON, May 22.—Twelve German airplanes were brought down in Monday's air fighting by British aviators, while gunfire accounted for another, and an additional two were driven down out of control. An official announcement of the day's activities says:

Balloons and airplanes were again very active on Monday. Several long distance reconnoissances were completed.

Twelve German airplanes were brought down in the air fighting, two others were driven down out of control, and another was brought down by gunfire. Two hostile balloons also were destroyed. Four British airplanes are missing.

POLA RAID HEROES NEVER CAME BACK

Signaled the Waiting Escort, "Don't Mind Us, We Have No Chance."

ALL MAY BE PRISONERS

Believed to Have Blown Up Their Boat After Torpedoing Dreadnought.

ITALIAN NAVAL HEADQUARTERS, May 18, (Associated Press.)—The details of the recent Italian naval exploit at Pola show that it was one of the most audacious feats of the war, worthy to rank with that of the British at Zeebrugge and that of the Merrimac at Santiago.

Plans were long matured by Lieutenant Commander Pellegrini, who adopted unusual secrecy to safeguard the project. To divert attention he took service in the trenches on the Piave, and when ready to start gave out that he was going to visit his friends. He was accompanied by another officer and two sailors.

The party was escorted by destroyers and arrived at Pola at 2 o'clock in the morning. It was very dark, as the moon had been down two hours. A light wind blew offshore, which prevented the sounds of preparation going landward. The entrance of the channel was 400 yards across, with a long neck leading into the great harbor, in which lay Austria's fleet of battleships, cruisers, and destroyers, encircled by a frowning terrace of land batteries.

In the obscurity the guard ship at the entrance was dimly visible swung to one side, the guards apparently asleep. There was complete lack of watchfulness.

Final preparation was made for a dash in the darkness. Commander Pellegrini and his companions put on rubber suits which could be inflated. The plan was to discharge torpedoes at the big ship, then blow up their own craft, jump overboard, and await capture or drowning. All realized that there was practically no chance for returning alive.

"You are putting your head into the lion's mouth."

How they encountered three successive lines of defense, first a guard ship, then a line of wooden buoys marking a chain of mines and then a heavy steel net strung from bank to bank, and how they were able to penetrate these obstructions must remain a mystery, particularly as to the steel net, which was apparently an impossible barrier.

u The escort waited almost an hour, when the silence was suddenly broken by two distinct explosions of torpedoes, followed by the sound of an alarm gun in the inner harbor. Soon after two signals of parti-colored lights slowly rose from the centre of the harbor, showing that Commander Pellegrini had penetrated to the very heart of the fleet, and was sending signals from the midst of it.

The first signal meant "have torpedoed a battleship," and the second

BRITISH VICTORS IN SERIES OF RAIDS

ARTILLERY IS STILL ACTIVE

Very Violent in Region Southeast of Amiens, but No Infantry Action Follows.

LONDON, May 22.—Raiding operations were the principal features of the fighting on the British front last night and today.

British detachments, in night trench attacks north of the Ypres-Comines Canal, southeast of Arras and in the neighborhood of Hebuterne [north of Albert] captured a number of prisoners.

Last night and this morning the Germans made ineffectual attempts to enter the British trenches north of Albert.

Elsewhere the fighting was confined to artillery actions. The Germans have again directed a heavy gas bombardment against the areas to the northeast of Bethune.

The day report reads:

A number of successful raids were carried out by us last night on different parts of the front. In the sector southeast of Arras our troops entered the German trenches at two points and captured fourteen prisoners and a machine gun. Other raiding parties brought back a few prisoners from the enemy's positions in the neighborhood of Locon and in the sector between the Forest of Nieppe and Meteren.

North of the Ypres-Comines Canal sixteen prisoners were captured by us. A hostile raiding party approached our lines last night north of Albert. It was repulsed.

The enemy's artillery showed some activity during the night in the neighborhood of Dernancourt and considerable activity east of the Forest of Nieppe. The sector northeast of Bethune was heavily bombarded with gas shells.

The night bulletin from Field Marshal Haig says:

Early this morning the enemy made a second attempt to raid our positions southeast of Mesnil, [north of Albert] but was repulsed.

Another successful raid, in addition to those reported this morning, was carried out by us last night in the neighborhood of Hebuterne [north of Albert.] Heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy in these encounters, and we captured a few prisoners.

On the remainder of the front there was nothing beyond artillery activity on both sides in the different sectors.

American Army Rejoices That War Department Will Issue Tobacco Rations.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 21.—On April 15 the Germans began a withdrawal of divisions from their front for the big drive with the purpose of reconstruction. Information here is that it takes five to seven weeks for this work.

In the beginning of the Somme drive the German command used forty-five divisions. This number had been withdrawn for reconstruction by about April 21. About a week ago the Germans withdrew crack divisions for the purpose of training for a period estimated at three and four weeks. These divisions were not so badly chewed up.

These factors lead to the estimate that the Germans will be ready for another drive in the first week of June on the same scale as the one that started on March 21. On a sliding scale of withdrawals of divisions for rehabilitation the Germans would be able to keep up the same supply of man power.

Starting the new offensive before the first week of June, it is believed, would mean they would not be able to hurl the same force against the allied lines. No doubt is entertained that the Germans are planning a new drive and it is not believed that they will postpone it any longer than is necessary to put the military machine in shape.

The German High Command is under tremendous pressure of German public opinion to do something. Frequent reports have been received of dissatisfaction with the results of the recent drive, as well as with the continuing losses on the western front. Recently captured Germans say the army generally does not consider the gains of March and April worth the price paid for them.

Tobacco Ration for Our Men.

A wave of joy swept through the American army today when it was announced throughout our forces that henceforth the War Department would issue tobacco rations. This step has been long hoped for by the soldiers and recommended by all officers from corporals to General Pershing.

Since the American army has been in France various "smoke funds" raised in America have scored results conspicuous by their absence. On trips that have taken me along practically all the American lines in France I have seen two instances of tobacco being given them. As a rule, they have paid for it, and incidentally paid well. The United States Army commissary, it is true, supplies soldiers with tobacco at cost, but only a small percentage of the doughboys can go to the commissaries from day to day.

Tobacco sold to the soldiers by the Y. M. C. A. is sold at American retail prices. A soldier used to smoking a good deal finds buying his supply from the Y. M. C. A. a heavy tax on his spending money. For instance, a well-known brand of American cigarettes, selling at the commissary for 8 cents, always costs 15 cents at the Y. M. C. A., the same as the price at retail in America. Tobacco prices of the Y. M. C. A. have often been a source of complaint by soldiers. I have met personally with many instances of this.

French tobacco is not liked by our soldiers, and also is high in price. Another factor is that many of our soldiers are serving with the British and French, where the commissary service is not the same as on the American sector.

As officially announced, the tobacco ration is four-tenths of an ounce per day, with 100 cigarette papers supplied for each four ounces of tobacco. An alternative to this ration will be four ready-made cigarettes, or four-tenths of an ounce of chewing tobacco. The doughboy with a pal who doesn't smoke will probably have a good chance to increase his ration on the side. The soldiers, of course, will not pay for this tobacco. The French and British armies have a tobacco ration.

New Plan Insures Prompt Delivery.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Shipments of tobacco to the American troops abroad already have gone forward. War Department officials said today. Extensive purchases have been made to insure a steady supply.

Details of distribution have been left to the Quartermaster forces in France. The men may draw their new ration in cigarette tobacco and papers in plug tobacco for chewing, or for use in pipes or cigarettes, as already ruled.

An announcement will soon be made giving details of the plan for distribution. Officers recognize the fact that the allowance made is somewhat limited; but since the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., and commissary agencies are available, where the allowance can be supplemented by the troops at their own expense, there is no prospect of the soldiers going without what they need.

One effect of making tobacco a part of the regular ration is to insure its prompt delivery to the men, no matter where they may be. In taking this action the War Department obligates itself to get smoking materials to the troops as much as it is already obligated to feed them in every emergency.

REHEARSING FAR BEHIND LINE.

Washington Hears Some German Divisions Are Stronger Than in March.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Word has reached Washington through official channels that the German commanders are rehearsing men fifty to seventy-five miles behind their own lines in France and Flanders in preparation for their next drive against the allied forces.

The German divisions which were weakened or depleted in the offensive which was begun on March 21 have been brought up to full strength, and information has reached Washington from France indicating that some of these divisions are stronger than they were when the March offensive began.

Y. M. C. A.'S "SMOKE" PRICES.

Officials Here Think They Are Not Higher Than Government's.

At the headquarters of the War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A. it was admitted yesterday that there had been statements to the effect that the association huts were charging higher prices for tobacco than other canteen units, but members of the council said that they did not believe that such was the case.

T. W. D. Turner said that the Quartermaster's Department could, of course, sell a box of cigars at a cheaper rate than the association's retail price. He said that he believed some of the soldiers had noted this and started talking.

"The Y. M. C. A. does not want to make a profit," he said, "out of the tobacco exchanges established by it under General Pershing's orders, and whenever a profit is made the money is refunded as justly as the association is able to refund it in the form of sporting goods, games, &c." It was pointed out at the offices that the Government was unable to give the Y. M. C. A. shipping space at certain times and that it was forced to go to the open market for it.

The War Work Council has sent a cable to the Y. M. C. A. headquarters in Paris asking for the exact price at which each article is sold through the association's exchanges.

district, both sides of the Lys, and between Arras and Albert.

Following is the statement:

In the Kemmel region lively artillery activity continued. North of Kemmel Village and south of Locre strong enemy local attacks delivered in the evening failed.

On both sides of the Lys and at La Bassee Canal our rear districts were again subjected to a heavy fire. Between Arras and Albert the enemy artillery also was very lively in the evening.

Between the Somme and the Oise fighting activity revived only temporarily.

GUN DUELS ON FRENCH FRONT.

Artillery Actions Violent Along the Battle Line Southeast of Amiens.

PARIS, May 22.—Violent artillery actions were in progress last night on the French front southeast of Amiens, extending from Hailles, on the Avre, to Piemont, west of Noyon. Patrols were active along the whole Ailette front.

The text of the day bulletin follows:

The night was marked by violent artillery action in the region of Hailles, Senecat Wood, Rouvray, and Piemont. There was great patrol and reconnoissance activity along the whole Ailette front.

French troops raided the enemy lines west of Maisons de Champagne. Two German surprise attacks were repulsed in the Woevre and Lorraine.

There were reciprocal artillery engagements at divers points on the Somme and Oise fronts. But there were no infantry actions.

ALLIED GAINS HAMPER FOE.

German Plans Deranged by Reverses in Flanders and Before Amiens.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, May 22, (Associated Press.)—While awaiting the opening of the expected new German offensive the French and British are creating great confusion in the German plans by local operations, which already have brought about an improvement in their defensive positions.

The Germans had hoped to have positions at solid points on the Flanders hills, on the Villers-Bretonneux plateau, and on the Grivesnes and Mailly-Raineval heights, and the Le Piemont and Renaud hills from which to launch their attack. Not only have these positions remained in the hands of the allied troops, but in the vicinity of them the French and British have recently gained ground.

German prisoners assert that Emperor William hesitated a long time before starting the offensive this year, but that General Ludendorff obtained the upper hand by promising to force a peace by beating the Allies by Easter. The Crown Prince, with the military caste in Germany, they say, succeeded in ejecting Rudolph von Valentini from power after he had predicted a catastrophe for the German arms.

Von Valentini was Chief of Emperor William's Civil Cabinet and was replaced last September by von Berg. Von Valentini's removal was hailed by the Pan-German newspapers as a triumph for their cause.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES

An interesting situation is developing in the Near East which has been interpreted as bringing danger to the British operations along the Tigris north of Bagdad. The Turks, moving southward from Batoum and Kars after the collapse of the Russian forces in the Caucasus, are officially reported to have passed beyond Lake Van, moving eastward toward Lake Urmia, which is just west of the Persian town of Tabriz, and to have occupied the towns of Ushnu, about twenty-five miles southwest of Lake Urmia and also Soujbulak, about fifty miles directly south of the lake. The presumption is that the object of this force is to get around the British right flank, and to strike in the rear of the British forces which are now many miles north of Bagdad, and are steadily advancing toward Mosul.

This is, of course, a possibility though one that seems, from such information as we have, to be a very distant one.

The country over which the Turks are passing is, in the first place, the most difficult in this entire theatre. There are very few roads, no railroads, but a wealth of heavily jumbled very high mountains. In such a country it is almost impossible to transport any amount of artillery north and south. Practically all of the roads, such as they are, run east and west, so that even the sparse communications which exist are not available. This greatly restricts the food supplies which can be brought up, and this alone automatically places a limit on the number of soldiers that can be used.

Again, between Persia and the plain of Mesopotamia there is an almost solid and heavy mountain wall, which is practically impassable. The Russians tried to force their way through it for many months. In 1915 they failed completely, and in 1916 they were successful only because the British were able to throw a column squarely across the Turks' line of communication and cut off their supplies.

This line at that time was the main highway between Bagdad and Teheran. This road passes through the mountain pass at Khanikin, which is the only break in the mountain wall for many miles. It is an exceptionally easy place to guard. In fact, in 1915 the Russians reached the very door of this gateway and were unable to force their way through.

In brief, then, the situation in Persia is that the Turks can have but a few small columns, inadequately munitioned and practically without artillery, which columns are forcing their way across mountains that offer no facilities for movement, while imposing every difficulty. These columns, working in such an impossible country, are still nearly 200 miles from the Tigris at the nearest point, and are meeting opposition, more or less inefficient and disorganized, it is true, but sufficient to delay them and cause considerable trouble. They must, before they can become a real menace, negotiate the very difficult pass at Khanikin, force its passage, and then descend into the plain.

The British defense against such an operation does not promise to be particularly difficult. The British, we may be sure, are fully alive to the situation. They know that the Turk can advance only along certain well defined lines and that all that it will be necessary to do will be to block these lines and the advance must come to an end. The British base is at Basra, near the head of the Persian Gulf, and into this base are constantly being fed from India additional men and a stream of supplies which so far in this campaign have proved entirely adequate.

At the first intimation that the Turks were becoming dangerous, a part of this reserve force at Basra could and would be sent to the defense of Khanikin. This force would have behind it good lines of supply, the Tigris River and the main highway east from Bagdad, while the Turks would be struggling constantly to get even the means of livelihood up to their troops. The question of artillery would be almost entirely beyond them. The Turks would not be much good in a fight of this kind. The best Turkish army and the only army that had any military value was badly cut up at Gallipoli and is now serving with fair distinction in Palestine. The Mesopotamian army is utterly without merit. It is incapable of offering to the British advance any serious opposition.

On the whole, therefore, while the situation east of the Mesopotamian border is interesting, it is still a long way from causing the British any uneasiness.

In the meantime, the British have not for a moment halted their advance. On the 11th of May their most northerly column had reached as far as the Little Zab River, about sixty miles from Mosul. This, however, was in all probability not the main body, but merely a flanking column sent out to prevent the Turks from turning the British right. The main body would naturally follow the main line of supply, the Tigris River. This body we last heard of at Tekrit, 120 miles from Mosul, but yesterday we learned that they had advanced up the Tigris, just as soon as the column on the right indicated that the way was clear. They are now at Fatha, about ten miles from the junction of the Zab and the Tigris, with the way apparently open to them for a still further advance as soon as a flow of supplies has been assured.

The Turks have absolutely gone to pieces in this theatre, having lost much of their artillery and practically all of their power of resistance. The only apparent limitation to the British advance is the speed of their own supply columns.

ers and small merchants who hope for peace but do not want a peace that will bring German rule.

Nothing, however, has been done by the allied nations, and fear is expressed that it soon will be too late for action that will prevent Russia from becoming vassal to Germany.

Former Premier Kerensky's Trip.

It is believed in well-informed circles here that the movements of Alexander Kerensky, technically Premier of Russia, whose Provisional Government was deprived of power by the Bolsheviki, are connected with the plans of the Allies concerning Russia. The most generally accepted view is that if Kerensky comes to the United States he will proceed to San Francisco and there take ship for Siberia, where the conservative elements of Russia are reported to be gathering, the conservatives in Russia today including Social Revolutionists as well as Constitutional Democrats.

At the State Department also it was declared that nothing was known concerning the movements of the former Russian Revolutionary leader, but it was added that he might be traveling under an assumed name. In diplomatic circles it was asserted that the allied and American Governments, as well as Russian diplomats, would naturally desire to conceal the activities and movements of Kerensky, if his advice is to be sought in bringing about a new state of affairs in Russia.

The attitude of General Semenoff, the Cossack leader in Siberia hostile to the Bolsheviki, toward Kerensky and any plan favored by the Allies and the United States looking toward the rehabilitation of Russia, is believed to be wholly sympathetic. It has been repeatedly stated in Russian circles here that Semenoff himself is not moved by political ambitions, and that his only desire is to see Russia liberated from the Austro-German invasion and so circumstanced that she might again become a valuable aid to the Allies in the war against the Central Empires.

A dispatch from Constantinople reaching here through German channels from Amsterdam states that the aim of the peace negotiations at Batum between Turkey and the Caucasus is the subjection of Trans-Caucasia to the quadruple entente, as was the case with Ukrainia, Poland, and Rumania. The dispatch adds:

"It is necessary that Trans-Caucasia should become entirely independent of Russia and that she should form close relations with Turkey."

A dispatch from Paris states that the Jewish National Council has issued a protest against the atrocities committed upon the Jewish population in the occupied districts of Russia. It is charged that pogroms have been organized by the German authorities, who have aroused the peasants against the Jews.

Expects Her to Take Initiative in Intervention, Okulich Says.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 22.—The Chronicle publishes an article by Joseph Okulich, urging the need of Allied intervention in Siberia. Okulich is a native of Siberia, and one of its most prominent public men. He was a member of the Council of the Ministry of Commerce and Industries in the former Czar's and Kerensky's Governments. He is President of the Association of Shipowners on the Yenisei River, President of the Central Siberian Board of Trade, Manager of the Union of Siberian Creamery Associations, and is also a Cossack of the Yenisei Regiment. He writes:

"Having just returned from Siberia, I herewith declare that the power of the Bolshevist Soviets in Siberia is not based on any class in that country. They were elected last year by certain garrisons with Bolshevist leanings, and therefore they cannot base their power on the soldiers, as these were demobilized, nor on the industrial proletariat, as such does not exist in Siberia, the obvious reason for that being the absence of industrial centres. Also, they cannot base their power on the Siberian peasantry, which has never known feudal oppression or any agrarian difficulties.

"Terrorized townspeople dare not express their protests in active form; the peasants, on the other hand, living in villages, do not understand what is going on, and do not care to understand it either. Only in isolated cases, when their interests are imperilled, do the Cossacks, who are partly disarmed, offer feeble tentative resistance to the Red Guards, who are armed to the teeth with all modern weapons, which they removed from the German front.

"Every day sees Siberia approaching nearer and nearer to the point of complete exhaustion of her economic life. This is all to the interest of German imperialists, who are dreaming of capturing the entire Russian market and valuable raw materials for feeding their factories. Siberia does not want to become a German colony, and, what is more, she must not become a German colony.

"At present Siberia has vast stocks of butter, about 75,000 tons; she has also about fifty tons of gold, also copper and other minerals. She can live quite an independent life, and her 13,000,000 inhabitants are sufficiently active and energetic not to become slaves to the enemy.

"From this it will be seen that the political situation is such that outside help is imperative. Such help she expects in joint intervention by the Allies' countries. Siberia expects help from the Allies in the form of an international expedition which will be enthusiastically received from Vladivostok up to the Ural Mountains, which will clear the Siberian railway line and various towns from Bolshevist bands, and will enable the population within three or six months to organize elections for a Siberian Constituent Assembly, which in its turn will elect a responsible Government for Siberia.

"It is not yet too late to reorganize the financial apparatus of the country, and it is quite possible with the help of the Cossacks to organize military guards for the defense of the frontiers of Siberia. On the European frontier, as well as on others, not only will a regenerated Siberia be very useful for the remaining parts of Russia, but it will save it from becoming a sphere of influence for German capital.

"I venture to emphasize that delay will be fatal. Siberia expects the initiative from England, if for no other reason than the latter's own interests."

FRENCH INVESTORS FEAR RUSSIAN LOSS

Doubt That Paris Government Will Continue to Assume the Defaulted Payments.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 22.—French investors in Russian Government bonds and other Muscovite securities are showing great anxiety whether they will receive the interest due them in July next. The seriousness of their position may be realized from the fact that France is a creditor of Russia to the tune of something like $4,000,000,000. French investors hold today $2,800,000,000 of Russian Government bonds, while they have at least another $200,000,000 invested in Russian industrials.

France is also a creditor in the sum of between $700,000,000 and $1,000,000,000 for advances made in materials supplied to Russia since the war began.

Since the Bolshevist régime was established seven months ago the Russians have ceased to honor their obligations. Most of the money sunk in Russian subscriptions has been drawn from people of very limited means.

For years investment in Russian securities was regarded here as a patriotic duty, second only to the purchase of French rentes, for the Russian alliance was the only real wall against the German wolf. Consequently, savings, often of the poorest, were eagerly thrown into the Russian treasury. The stoppage of Russian interest payments would mean the reduction to poverty of thousands of small people, who are depending on the Russian coupons being honored.

Up to April last, the French Government itself assumed the payment of the Russian interest; but since then banks here intimated that no further payments of this kind will be made. The vast bulk of this money has been invested admittedly as a part of the French national defense, although indirectly. The last Russian loan in January, 1914, for instance, was expressly sanctioned by the French Finance Minister, on the ground that the money would be used for the construction of new strategic railroads. Pressure is now being brought on the French Government to continue payment of interest on Russian bonds, but the treasury here is faced with the difficulty that this will mean the provision of an additional $200,000,000 a year, which is not easy to find under present conditions.

Notice has been given of an intention to raise the subject in the Senate, but so far Finance Minister Klotz has refused to fix a date for debate, on the ground that the matter must first be thrashed out by the Council of Ministers.

FINLAND WARNED BY GREAT BRITAIN

Move Against Mourmansk Railway Will Be Regarded by Allies as Hostile Act.

LONDON, May 22.—Any measures directed by Finland against the Mourmansk Railway will be regarded by Great Britain, France, and the United States as a breach of neutrality, the Dagbad of Stockholm says.

A Stockholm dispatch to The Morning Post quotes this newspaper as saying that the Finnish Government has been so informed by Great Britain.

FINNS SPLIT ON MONARCHY.

Strong Opposition to Plan and Threat of New Civil War Made.

STOCKHOLM, May 22.—The propaganda in favor of a monarchical government for Finland is meeting with considerable opposition. Editors of Finnish newspapers, meeting at Helsingfors yesterday, voted by a great majority for a republic.

At the meeting of the Finnish Diet, at which Judge Svinhufvud was nominated temporary Dictator, warnings were freely given against an attempt to establish a monarchy. Several members of the peasant party threatened a new civil war if such a step were taken. They declared that the army strongly favored a republic.

WOMEN SOLDIERS SORRY.

Colonel Here on Way to Apologize to Allies for Russia's Failure.

CHICAGO, May 22.—Colonel Maria Leonteva Botchkarova, organizer of women soldiers in Russia, and head of the "Battalion of Death," who is in Chicago today on her way to England, said she expected to stop in Washington and seek an interview with President Wilson. The Colonel did not disclose the nature of her mission to England, except to say it was to apologize to the Entente Allies for her country's failure to "stick to the finish."

She declared the real reason for organization of the women into soldiery was that "it might prove an inspiration to Russian manhood."

RUSSIANS SEEK LEAVE TO GO HOME TO FIGHT

Leaders of New Movement Will Ask Wilson's Approval of War on Bolsheviki and Germans.

A committee representing the recently organized Federation of Russian Associations of America left last night for Washington to ask permission of President Wilson to send into Russia the regiments of Russian volunteers which are now being organized in this country. The federation represents Russians of all phases of political opinion except the Bolsheviki, but the prevailing sentiment appears to be that of the Social Revolutionaries, the party of Kerensky and Savinkoff. Its leaders believe that the entrance into Russia of a body of Russians from America, fighting for the revolution but against the Germans and against the Bolsheviki, would rally around their standard the great masses of the Russian people.

The committee which went to Washington, and which expects to confer with high officials of the Government, consisted of Elias Rosenthal, P. Whitney-Wishnemecky, Colonel A. A. Koch, formerly a member of the Russian military mission, and Apollinarius Dimitrovitch Semenovsky, who was Minister of Ways and Communications under Kerensky.

"We are thoroughly convinced," said a leader in the movement last night, "that the entry into Russia of Russians from America, determined to fight for the national independence and for the maintenance of the principles on which the revolution was founded would be able to effect the salvation of the country. The Bolsheviki have now lost most of the power which they at one time possessed. In the Ukraine peasants who were supposed to be friendly to the Germans are now burning their grain to keep it from falling into German hands. The peace of Brest-Litovsk is regarded with the same sentiments in Russia as here. We believe that the opportune moment has come to get together those who have been kept in terror for the last few months by the comparatively small force of Bolsheviki and to unite them to save Russia.

"The Russians have been drugged for the time, but they will soon awaken. They know that America is their friend, and the arrival of their own people from America to help them should bring them together. I am convinced that once the movement has started it will grow like a rolling snowball."

TO HOUSE KERENSKY IN RIVERSIDE DRIVE

Wealthy Russians Lease a Home, with Purchase Privilege, for Revolution Leader.

EXPECTED TO ARRIVE SOON

Quiet, Accessible, and Semi-Secluded Place Chosen—Ample Room for Many Callers and Guests.

The home of Alexander F. Kerensky in this city, it was announced last night, will be at 99 Riverside Drive. Rich Russians had taken the house, would furnish it as a club, and the young Russian leader would live there. The building is of brown stone of five stories and basement. It has fifteen spacious rooms, wide winding staircases, and windows in every room opening on the Drive or on Eighty-second Street.

Some doubt as to the length of Mr. Kerensky's stay in this country, it was declared, resulted in an arrangement by which the house has been taken for a specified period, with the privilege of purchase. The entrance is on the side street, but the building bulks large on the Drive, and from the upper windows the Hudson and the Palisades can be seen for many miles. All things considered the house compares favorably with any structure on the shore front.

Knowing Mr. Kerensky's weak physical condition, his nervous temperament, and his need of ample rest, a quiet and retired home was deemed absolutely necessary, and it was this thought that induced the Russians seeking a home for him to choose this locality.

It is away from the lights and bustle of more central locations, and one of the advantages of the neighborhood is that persons may be entertained there without notice. That there will be many guests is certain, and that while the presence of some of them may be freely advertised it is likely that some of those who call will desire to feel that their arrival and departure will not attract public attention.

On every floor there are large rooms which may be used with comfort for the assembly of a score or more of men, and each of them may be shut off from all the others. There are many bedrooms.

When a reporter called at the house last night things were in much confusion, for Mrs. August E. Knopf, the present occupant and owner, was in the midst of packing. Efforts were making to vacate the house this week so that preparations could be made for its refurnishing so that it would be ready for Mr. Kerensky and his friends as soon as possible.

Mrs. Knopf did not know the names of the Russians who had taken over the property. She said they were members of the Russian Club. She had understood that some of them were to live in the house at least part of the time, but that Mr. Kerensky, she had been told, was to make it his home as long as he remained in this country.

No one could be found last night who would give any details as to the time of Mr. Kerensky's arrival in this country or the length of his stay.

REDS RUN TO CUBIST ART.

Marinsky Palace, Petrograd, Daubed for May Day Celebration.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 22.—The Petrograd correspondent of The Daily Express, describing the Bolshevist May Day celebrations, says a grotesque feature was the daubing of the Marinsky Palace—the House of Lords of the Romanoff days—the Winter Palace, and the Government offices in peculiar colors of a cubist scheme devised by Signor Marinetti.

A more ambitious note was struck by the allegorical presentation of the progress of the proletariat, after the style of a Bayeux tapestry. This embraced a weird picture of the Kaiser as a skeleton of death crowned with a German helmet and with an Iron Cross pinned to his ribs, and a scythe grasped in his bony fingers shown in the act of cutting down the red flowers of revolutionary Russia.

APRIL SHIPPING LOSSES WERE 305,102 TONS

Of the Total 220,709 Tons Were British—Clearances Were 7,040,309 Tons.

LONDON, May 22.—The Admiralty official statement gives the losses to British, allied, and neutral merchant tonnage, due to enemy action and marine risk in April, as as follows:

British, 220,709 tons.
Allied and neutral, 84,893.
Total, 305,102.

Clearances in and out of ports were 7,040,309 gross tons.

SWISS SIGN BERLIN TREATY.

Will Get Coal from Germany and Send Cattle There.

BERNE, May 22.—After amicable explanation to France the Swiss Government resolved today to sign the new treaty with Germany by which Switzerland would be provided with German coal until Jan. 31, 1919. This convention will be quite independent from arrangements with France relative to the delivery of French coal to Switzerland.

The terms of the new treaty between Switzerland and Germany announced last week were that Germany would export each month to Switzerland 200,000 tons of coal and 19,000 tons of iron and steel. Among the exports from Switzerland were to be 15,000 to 17,000 cattle a month.

LENINE SEES RUSSIA ON VERGE OF WAR

BY ARTHUR RANSOME.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, (of Unknown Date.)—The report which Lenine made last night to the Central Executive Committee is a clear statement of the Soviet policy. For Russia the question of war or peace hangs on a hair, both in the west and in the east.

"The situation," said Lenine, "is that stormy waves of imperialistic reaction, which seem ready any moment to drown the little island of the Socialist Soviet Republic, are broken one against another."

He referred particularly to the struggle between England and Germany, and then to the economic rivalry between America and Japan. The attack on the Soviet, which began by the Japanese landing at Vladivostok, had, he said, been stopped, lest it should turn the hidden conflict between Japan and America into open war; but "tomorrow the American bourgeoisie may come to terms with the Japanese bourgeoisie and the English bourgeoisie with the German, for all have a common interest in dividing up the globe."

Lenine referred with amusement to the bourgeoisie of Russia.

"Only recently," he said, "they denounced as traitors those who opened the eyes of the popular masses to the existence of the imperialistic war, and now they are themselves ready, in the course of a few weeks, to change their political faith, and from an alliance with English bandits to turn over to an alliance with German bandits against the power of the Soviet."

He alluded in detail to various danger points from which war might be brought upon Russia before she was ready. Lenine next spoke of the Ukraine and the possibility that Skoropadsky might have other frontiers in view than those which satisfied the Rada. Here, too, is an imminent possibility of war, and the same is true of the Caucasus Government, which has declared its independence but not defined its frontiers, thereby opening the way for the Turks and Germans.

"Of course," he said, "the Caucasian Rada is independent of the Soviet Republic, but it is not so independent of the German imperialism."

Finally, at any moment, the extreme military party in either of the imperialistic groups might have its way and find an excuse for an attack on the Soviets.

"We shall do all the little we can, all that diplomacy can do, to put off that moment."

With every week of breathing time the Soviet power was gaining strength for the final struggle.

"We are the party of defense," said Lenine, [this name was given to the party that considered war necessary,] "and since Oct. 25 we have won the right to defend our fatherland. We shall defend, not the secret agreements which we have published to the world; we shall defend not a 'Great Power,' for there is nothing of Russia left but Great Russia, and not national interests, because for us the interests of the world's socialism stand higher than national interests. We stand for the defense of the socialistic fatherland."

For that, he concluded, it was necessary to have an army, which would be forthcoming when the peasant soldiers who returned home realized they now had something to defend.

The debate that followed illustrated the impractical and purely political nature of the opposition, which, while urging immediate war, implicitly recognized that immediate war could only end in immediate failure.

Joffe's telegrams from Berlin show the Germans are ready to go a considerable way in concession; but even at this late hour, I believe, if we show an understanding of the Soviet point of view and do not try to bring the Russians vainly and prematurely into war, we can do much to prevent, or at least postpone, that German domination which will be the immediate result of any kind of intervention not regularized by a recognition of the Soviet Government.

Our policy saved a life income for the widow

SOME years ago this Company was appointed trustee of an estate, more than half of which consisted of a cash balance deposited with a mercantile corporation at an attractive rate of interest. The corporation bore an excellent reputation and the heirs were strongly in favor of leaving the money there.

IT IS our fixed policy, however, to keep funds of clients with approved banking depositaries only, so this money was withdrawn from the mercantile corporation. Two weeks later it failed.

THE prompt carrying out of our established safe policy prevented a disastrous loss to the estate. The money was promptly invested in approved securities and the income assures the widow a comfortable maintenance during her entire life.

UPHELD TRADITIONS OF FOREIGN LEGION

HEROES TO THE LAST MAN

Battalion Had to be Restrained from Sacrificing Itself to Save Its Captain's Body.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, May 21.—There could be no better object lesson of the value of military discipline, training, and tradition than that furnished by the visit which I made today to the Colonel of the Foreign Legion.

I was received beforehand by the General commanding the famous Moroccan division in which the legion has been incorporated. He is well worthy to lead the bravest of the brave, for his War Cross ribbon bears more palms—six or seven, at least, each indicating a separate citation in army orders—than that of any French soldier I have seen except the crack airmen.

With simple brevity he declared his pride in having command of such troops as those who once again accomplished the impossible in the desperate fighting that resulted in the recapture of the Villers-Bretonneux plateau on April 26 and 27. He also expressed warm praise of one of the American divisions that had been his neighbor earlier in the year.

Like him, the Colonel of the Legion has fully earned the right to lead the first regiment in the French Army to wear the blood red Legion of Honor shoulder cord. For twenty years he has been an officer in the Foreign Legion, and has fought all over the world, but his figure is slight and agile as a boy's, and there is no sign of gray in his hair on his pointed Henri Quatre beard, and his eyes. Much has been said about the eyes of the great leaders in this war, but never have I seen anything to be compared with the gaze of this professional soldier, whose blue steel flash seems to strike one with the force and directness of a physical impact.

An Answer to Wilson's Appeal.

Before describing the action in which his regiment took part the Colonel remarked that the Legion was a living response to President Wilson's appeal to the whole world to unite in the struggle for freedom and democracy. Representatives of no less than fifty-six different races are in its ranks, with nothing in common between them save the fact that they have all come forward voluntarily in a strange land to fight for France and her ideals of civilization.

"You may wonder," the Colonel said, "how material so mixed can, despite difficulties of language, be welded into a force whose cohesion is so perfect that each individual is marked with the same imprint, and that the word 'legionary' stands throughout the French Army for the type of first-class fighting man.

"The answer is simple discipline, the practice of war and the tradition of the regiment. Ever since its foundation the Legion has been making warsequally amid conditions of exceptional difficulty. The result has been that, no matter how great our losses, there always remained a framework of trained officers and soldiers to transmit the regimental spirit to the strangers that came to fill up the ranks. As France, England, and your own country have discovered, only the strictest discipline can prepare men to withstand without faltering the terrific shock of modern war.

"The officers and noncoms of the Legion had learned their lesson in the hardest of schools. In the flame of the Artois battle of May 9, 1915—our first engagement in this war, in which success and losses were equally great—the regiment, newcomers and old hands alike, was fused into a unity so solid that, although hardly a man of the original contingent remains, the Legion has always made good its boast of accomplishing what no other troops would be called on to attempt.

Glorious at Villers-Bretonneux.

Take the case last month at Villers-Bretonneux. A flat plateau, devoid of all shelter or hollows, formed an ideal glacis for defense by the mitrailleuses with which the enemy was so liberally provided. It was the Legion's duty to advance across that open space without the usual artillery preparation or barrage fire moving forward in front of it.

"At one moment the battalions which formed the leading wave were swept by a hail of bullets from the front and both flanks at once; yet they pushed on 700 precious yards, and stopped only through sheer lack of men to continue. With the remainder they repelled the counterattack which the Germans flung at them immediately in an attempt to retain the position whose value they fully realized for subsequent operations. And the legionaries did hold until reinforcements reached them and worked throughout the night to consolidate the ground their sacrifice had bought.

"Then it was our turn to make the enemy face mitrailleuse fire on the open glacis, and he paid tenfold for the toll he had taken on the previous day. Again and again the German waves advanced to the attack. Each time the only result was added slaughter, until the ground was covered with his dead.

"One detail to show you what the spirit of the Legion means: Among the fallen officers of the battalion was a Captain who had spent all his life in the Legion, and typified exactly its discipline and traditions. Stern beyond severity, but absolutely just, he never spared his men if necessity demanded sacrifice. True to the last, he fell right in the very forefront of his company, more than a hundred yards beyond the point where our defense line was consolidated.

"All through the night the survivors of his battalion spent their last energies and gave their lives to recover his body. By morning the rest of the officers had been brought back, but he and one other still lay in the deadly expanse, where nothing might pass and live. Before noon the remnant of the battalion was withdrawn. That night some of them went forward again to seek their Captain.

"Again none of them returned. And yet it required my strictest orders to prevent the last survivors from continuing the impossible attempt. They refused to be satisfied until the acceptance by the enemy of his defeat enabled us finally to recover the body of our comrade. Can you ask a better illustration of what is meant by the traditions of the Foreign Legion?"

PARIS REPULSES RAID; ONE AIRPLANE DOWNED

Germans Vainly Seek a Gap in the Wall of Fire—Three Killed in City's Outskirts.

PARIS, May 22.—German aviators made an ineffectual attempt last night to raid Paris. Three persons were killed and several wounded in the outskirts of the city, but none of the raiders reached Paris itself. A German airplane was hit by an anti-aircraft gun and fell in flames north of the city.

The enemy dropped bombs in various suburban localities. Some material damage is reported. The signal that all was clear was sounded at 1 o'clock this morning.

The raid demonstrated the high state of efficiency to which the aerial defenses of the city have been brought.

LONDON RAID COST 44 LIVES

Total Small Compared with the Number of Dwellings Wrecked.

LONDON, May 22.—The casualties in Sunday night's air raid are given in a supplemental statement issued today as 44 killed and 179 injured.

The principal feature of the raid was the remarkable number of escapes from injury as compared with the damage to dwelling houses. Many of the casualties were among persons who were on the streets or in doorways, which emphasizes the warnings of the police that shelter should be sought.

BRITISH ADVANCE ON TIGRIS.

Cavalry Occupies Fatha Village with Little Opposition.

LONDON, May 22.—Turkish troops in Mesopotamia north of Bagdad display little activity, while British cavalry has advanced north of Tekrit on the Tigris to Fatha. An official statement on operations in Mesopotamia reads:

The Turks have shown no activity since they were driven across the lesser Zab on May 11. Removal of large quantities of military stores captured in Kirkuk proceeds without interruption.

On the Tigris our mounted troops have advanced as far as Fatha. The Turks holding the village offered little resistance and retreated hastily further up the river.

LAKE CHARLES, La., May 22.—Lieutenants Lathan Polk of New York City and Spencer Charles Williams of Buffalo were killed at Gerstner Field late yesterday when two airplanes collided at an altitude of 3,000 feet. It was announced today.

TO TRY VOLUNTARY PLAN IN IRELAND

Gen. Maurice Expects Test of System—Men Enlisted Now Could Join This Campaign.

WANTS PARADE BY OUR MEN

That Would Convince Ireland That It Was for the World's Cause They Would Fight.

By MAJOR GEN. SIR FREDERICK MAURICE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 22.—There are few matters which more immediately concern the present military situation than the passage in Lord French's proclamation to Ireland which runs:

"That as a means to this end we should cause still further steps to be taken to facilitate and encourage voluntary enlistment in Ireland in his Majesty's forces in the hope that without resort to compulsion the contribution of Ireland to those forces may be brought up to its proper strength, and made to correspond to the contributions of the other parts of the empire."

Doubts have been expressed as to whether this means the dropping of conscription in Ireland or not. I do not pretend to know, but it quite obviously means that voluntary enlistment is to be tried at once.

Now the plain facts of the situation are, we want men, and we want them at once, to meet the great German menace on the western front. The pronouncements of the Government on this matter have left us in no doubt. Speaking on this question of the need for men on April 9, the Prime Minister said:

"We have to choose between either submitting to defeat or taking the necessary measures to avert it. We will never submit to accept defeat."

The matter could not be put more clearly.

We are still at the beginning of the campaign of 1918, which may well run on into November and bring with it a fresh crisis at least as dangerous as that through which we have just passed. The men whom we obtain now can be made ready for the field in time to take part in this year's campaign. The men whom we obtain in two or three months' time will not arrive in France until Winter has put a close to operations on a large scale.

It is already two months since the German blow fell upon us, and the machinery for conscription in Ireland has not yet been set up. It is quite clear that the English tribunal system will be useless in a country in the greater part of which the parliamentary representatives, local authorities, and priesthood have declared their opposition to conscription. Some new methods must be devised, and that means delay. There are certain to be evasions, and it will probably be necessary to employ force.

Apart from the general difficulty of enforcing conscription upon any people against their will, the Irishman, in particular, is constitutionally opposed to compulsion of any kind. Tell him that he has got to do a thing and he will say that he wont.

Ask him to do it and if appealed to in the right way he will generally respond with warm-hearted enthusiasm.

The announcement of the voluntary recruiting campaign has already met with a response. Captain Stephen Gwynn, M. P., has written to the Irish papers recommending the Irish people to accept the offer and saying that in his opinion Ireland can well spare as many men as will refill the depleted ranks of the three Irish divisions. If Ireland will give us now the men to bring these divisions up to strength and keep them up to strength, they will be worth double the number dragged in to serve after the present danger is past.

We are told that voluntary recruiting in Ireland is dead. That may be true or it may not, but placed as we are at present it is at least worth while to be sure that it is so.

In this matter of recruiting we have been dogged by fate which seems to mar all our dealings with Ireland, and we have succeeded clumsily though unwittingly in ruffling Irish sentiment throughout the war.

Until the Government makes its promised disclosures we do not know what may be the ramifications of the recently discovered plot, but no one believes that Ireland as a whole is pro-German. The great part of the people may be anti-English, but they are certainly not anti-American or anti-French. There are numbers of Irish soldiers who have won distinction in this war and who, knowing Ireland and the Irishmen, believe that a skillful appeal to Irish sentiment would bring forward men in numbers who would uphold the best traditions of Irish gallantry in the field.

Such an appeal, led by the present Viceroy, who is himself the Colonel of two Irish regiments, and conducted by Irish officers, has at least the air of being something better than a counsel of despair. If it is made clear to Irishmen that they are being asked to come forward, not to pick chestnuts out of the fire for England, but to join the ranks of the Entente in the cause of liberty—if a plain, ocular demonstration of this fact could be given to Irishmen by allowing American troops to march through the streets of Dublin, Belfast, and Cork in the same way as they marched through the streets of London, and if in the matter of uniform and of regimental distinctions, Irish history and Irish military achievements are remembered and recorded in outward and visible signs, there is hope that our own past errors may be forgiven and forgotten, and that Ireland may send her sons on a scale "to correspond to the contributions of the other parts of the empire."

In the days of our last military effort the gallantry of "my brave Irish" in Natal added a new regiment to the King's bodyguard, and the Irish Guards have made the saffron kilt and Irish pipes familiar to Londoners. Distinctions such as these may seem trivial matters in comparison with the great problems bound up with our relations with Ireland, but they mean sympathy and understanding. With both of these we may get Ireland's present help in time of trouble, while compulsion, like so much else in this war, would be too late.

PERSHING REPORTS RAID.

Tells of Capture and of a Dead German Brought Back.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—General Pershing today reported to the War Department details of a patrol raid made Monday night by American troops, which resulted in the capture of two German prisoners. There were no casualties on the American side. Artillery activity on both sides is noted in the official communiqué today.

Section "A" of the communiqué, dated May 21, was the same as received in news dispatches from France last night, mentioning reconnoissance combats in Lorraine and artillery activity there and in the Woevre. Section "B" follows:

"Last night in Lorraine patrolling was very active, especially from our side. One patrol consisting of an officer and twenty men, exploring a hostile position, gained contact and opened fire on a German patrol of approximately the same size. German patrol took cover and returned fire. Our patrol rushed the position, put the enemy to flight, and captured two prisoners. One prisoner died of wounds after reaching our lines. Our patrol suffered no casualties. Later in the night a small hostile patrol attempted to rush one of our outposts but was driven off by rifle fire. One German was killed and his body brought into our lines."

OUR GUNS LAUNCH TERRIFIC GAS FIRE

HOSTILE PATROLS BEATEN

Americans Take Two Prisoners in One Clash—Raid High-Tension Cable.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 21, (Associated Press.)—The American artillery northwest of Toul launched a sudden and terrific local gas attack upon the German positions and cantonments within the Gerechamp Wood early today. Severe punishment was inflicted upon the enemy. How great is not yet known.

The deluge of American shells fell in three waves, and within half an hour the woods, in which it is known many Germans were sleeping, had been drenched with a large quantity of poisonous gas.

In lively patrol actions Monday night and this morning east of Lunéville, German parties were twice defeated by the Americans, who captured two prisoners.

An officer and twenty men exploring the area northwest of Ancervillers, east of Lunéville, sighted four enemy patrols and established contact with one of them. The enemy party, numbering sixteen, took up a position in an unused trench, from which they were driven by the rifle and grenade firing of the Americans. The Germans were then rushed by the Americans, who took two prisoners, one so badly injured that he died later. There were no casualties on the American side.

Enemy Patrol Driven Off.

Four hours later an enemy patrol made a bold attempt to rush one of our outposts, but was driven off. One German was killed and his body was brought back to the American lines for identification purposes.

Northwest of Toul an American patrol traversed the Apremont-Varneville Road and found a high tension cable used for charging the enemy wire. They cut the cable and brought back a large section of it.

Another patrol came on a German party southwest of Apremont and sharp fighting resulted. The Americans used their pistols, rifles, and hand grenades effectively, and the Germans were forced to retire.

A Corporal named Klick, from a New England State, carried out a "personal patrol" late yesterday afternoon. He crawled to the enemy wire to investigate what he thought was a periscope and saw a German step up to the firing trench. Bullets were exchanged, but the American returned safely across No Man's Land.

Our Front Ranks Third.

Washington's announcement that the combined fronts held by the American expeditionary forces in France cover a greater distance than that held by Belgium and take third rank has inspired the men in the American ranks as probably nothing else could.

The announcement was published in the newspapers reaching the various zones in which there are Americans today and the result is that every one of the "doughboys" is walking just a little straighter and there is just a little more snap in his salute.

Staff officers and certain other officers have known the fact for some time, but the average American soldier, billeted in some out-of-the-way little French village or living where the shells fly, does not get a chance to know what is going on outside his own little sphere.

In a vague way the men in the line have known that other Americans have been scattered along the battlefront somewhere between Switzerland and the sea. But none even thought the forces of which he was a member were holding a section of the line second only to that held by the French and British troops.

The announcement was the sole topic of conversation tonight in the dugouts, trenches, and billets. The men now are looking forward the time when there may be an announcement that the Americans are occupying the second place.

BOHEMIA DIVIDED TO CRUSH CZECHS

Split Into Twelve District Governments and Advantages Given to Germans.

MARTIAL LAW PROCLAIMED

Vienna Decree Forecasts General Scheme of Repression, Washington Is Told.

TEUTON GAIN IN REICHSRAT

Soldier Tries to Placate the Czechs by Telling of Emperor's Peace Efforts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—An official French dispatch received today announces that a decree has been issued in Vienna dividing Bohemia into twelve district governments, with administrative and electoral advantages to the Germans which will reduce the Czech power in the Reichsrat at Vienna as well as in Bohemia itself. Martial law, the dispatch also announces, has been proclaimed in some parts of Bohemia.

"The law bulletin of the Austrian Empire," said the dispatch, "publishes a decree according to which the district governments which were so long demanded by the Germans are established in Bohemia. The twelve district captains who are nominated will represent the Statthalter of Prague in each district and will have the same powers.

"The boundaries of the districts are fixed, so far as possible, according to the national grouping. In the words of the decree, 'the aim is to take the first steps toward the re-establishment of order in Bohemia.' This decree foreruns undoubtedly a policy of repression, the first act of which tends to dismember Bohemia by granting to the German elements the guarantees or, better, the privileges which they demand.

Old Nationalist Lines Broken.

"Up to the present, Bohemia comprised thirteen districts, only two of which had a majority of German population, according to statistics from Vienna. In four of the districts there are hardly any Germans. The new plan aims at creating in each of the twelve new districts a German minority and to grant to this minority, however small it may be, considerable advantages in the administrative and electoral domains.

"This method is meant to bring about as a first result a considerable increase in the number of German deputies in the Diet to the prejudice of the Czechs, who until now have held the majority of the seats. It is clear that this device of the Pan Germans is bound to arouse the most violent opposition on the part of the Czechs.

"A dispatch printed in all the Agram papers calls attention to the fact that martial law has been proclaimed in several districts of Bohemia because in certain regions serious riots have occurred. More than 150 persons have been put in prison. The estate of Prince Furstenberg was ransacked. Riots occurred at Marsch, Ostrau, Pilsen, and Nachod.

"The Czech press expresses itself very violently. The Vetcher writes:

"'This Government is trying in vain to present its reform under bright colors, but it is evident at first sight, in fact, that nothing but the dismembering of Bohemia is under way. The ministerial clique is preparing the parcelling out of our fatherland and the foundation of a German province made of our own Czech.'

Predicts Strong Resistance.

"The Narodni Listi, which was suppressed by the censorship as guilty of 'criminal dealings,' has written:

"'It is in vain that threats are hurled at us to divert us from the line of conduct which we have decided to follow according to our proclamation. It is in vain that the sessions of Parliament are adjourned. Our indignation will not be less in June (the Austrian chamber is to resume its sittings on June 18) and our opponents will have the opportunity of realizing it. The chart which, according to von Seidler, is to be granted to us, will not change our resolution: We shall fight on without any considerations, without compromise, for the defense of the Czech State.'

"This evidently shows the attitude of all the nationalities crushed by the Germans and the Magyars in the dual monarchy. The movement was not entirely unexpected, but it is possible that the fact of threatening them with a pitiless repression has advanced it and made it more formidable.

"Emperor Charles is away from Vienna, and on his return he will find political conditions which the food situation will make even more distressing. Once more the frightfulness of German methods, so dear to the Germans, will reap its fruit by arousing rebellion of the people oppressed."

Vienna Feared Prague Outbreak.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—An official Austrian note cabled to Washington from Berne throws light on the motives which caused the Austrian Government to declare martial law in Bohemia. The note says:

"Certain events, which were a danger to the safety of the State and presented even a character of high treason, took place during the first days of the fiftieth anniversary celebration of the founding of the National Bohemian Theatre, and led the authorities to take repressive measures."

Swiss commentators explain that this alludes to a note from the police posted in Prague, which declared that mob gatherings and processions would be dispersed by force if necessary. Jugo-Slav guests, who had come to Prague to participate in the celebration, were obliged to leave the city, and the newspaper Narodni Listi was suspended because the Austrian authorities declared:

"The manner in which this paper is worded tends to arouse sympathy in favor of the Entente States."

Accounts of the great gathering at Prague, which caused the Austrian Government to declare martial law, say that the city was adorned with the Czech colors and the Slav tricolor flag. The Czech press expressed regret at the absence of Russians and great satisfaction at the presence of Poles. It was reported that the Ruthenians of Oriental Galicia were prevented by the authorities from attending.

The festival was organized by the recently formed Independence Party of Dr. Kramarcz, and the ceremonies consisted generally of a glorification of the union of the Slavic peoples.

AIMS AT REICHSRATH GAIN.

Scheme for a German Bohemia Also Seen in Vienna Move.

The German plans of reorganization in Bohemia apparently have two purposes. One is to obtain an electoral reorganization so that some of the 109 seats in the Reichsrath held by Czech Deputies can be swung over to the Germans and enable them to maintain their hold on the Parliament.

The lower house of the Reichsrath consists of 516 members, of whom in the last session 233 were Germans. The dominant nationality has in years past managed to keep its control of the Parliament through alliance with the Poles, who hold 80 or 90 seats, but at the session which opened on May 31, 1917, and ended early in the present month—the first gathering of the Reichsrath since the war began—the Poles on several occasions broke away from the Germans and threw Parliament into chaos.

Already the Jugoslavs and Czechs were working together, and generally could count on the support of the Ruthenians (Ukrainians) and the Italians. This tendency was much accentuated during the last few months, when Polish leaders came much more closely toward an alliance with the Czechoslovaks and Jugoslavs. This was cemented by meetings of the intellectuals of the three nations, held at Prague, and was greatly promoted by the Conference of Oppressed Austrian Nationalities held at Rome in April. At the last-named conference the questions at issue between the Italians and Jugoslavs were settled, and the Poles joined the other delegates in the demand for a complete overthrow of the present Austrian Empire, declaring that the future of Poland lay in firm alliance with reconstituted nations of the Czechoslovaks, the Jugoslavs, and the Rumanians.

The movement thus brought about would leave the German minority isolated in the next Parliament, if this should ever be called together—a matter as to which considerable doubt has been expressed. It is evidently in the hope of still further strengthening the already existing discrimination in favor of the German minorities in Bohemia, Silesia, and Morava—the Germans in these provinces forming about one-fourth of the population, but having a much larger percentage of seats in the Reichsrath—that there is talk of electoral redistribution.

The proposal to cut up Bohemia into twelve districts is believed by Czechoslovak leaders in this city to have a double edge. It is intended partly, they think, to try to weaken the Bohemian national movement by decentralizing the forces of the nation and partly to prepare for the possible establishment of a province of "German Bohemia," such as has been talked of in case the national movement is so strong as to force the Austrian Government to try to compromise on some sort of federalization.

The Czechoslovak nation, which has declared its demands for unity and complete independence, includes the Slovaks in the northern part of the Kingdom of Hungary and the Czechs, now divided among Bohemia, Moravia, and Silesia, three of the seventeen crown lands of Austria.

There has been much reference in German-Austrian papers recently to the possible establishment of a German Bohemia, to include the districts with the largest German population. Any rearrangement on this basis would be beset with obstacles, for the Czechoslovaks refuse to consent to any partition and the Germans demand not only the border districts for their German Bohemia, but the City of Prague itself.

Local officials of the Czechoslovak National Council said last night that it was understood that each of the twelve districts into which it was proposed to divide Bohemia would have its own Diet, nominally in charge of certain phases of local self-government, and that while it was not exactly equivalent to the establishment of twelve new crown lands, a precedent which would probably prove inconvenient, there was no question that the object was to decentralize Bohemia and weaken the power of the national movement.

ITALIAN TROOPS LIKE GIFTS FROM AMERICA

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, May 22.—Queen Elena, who has been indefatigable in her desire to do her utmost to demonstrate her solicitude to the families who have so nobly given their sons in the fight for Italy with affection and thought for their country, has organized in the old historic Palazzo Chigi, a most interesting exhibition, showing to the minutest detail what has been accomplished by the nation for assisting the army. She inaugurated it personally today.

Different sections show the work accomplished by blind and mutilated Italian heroes, the manufacture of limbs, also a surgical hospital for jaw cases, &c. It would be too long to enumerate all the sections exhibited.

One department, which greatly interested the public, was the Bureau of Gifts for Soldiers.

Here was shown the great development undergone by this organization, which lately increased eightfold its distribution. Queen Elena expressed much interest on seeing exhibited in this department two bags bearing in one corner "The Star-Spangled Banner," the only foreign emblem in the whole exhibition. These were packages for Italian soldiers received through the American clearing house, also trench comfort packets from the committee in New York. The latter has already sent many thousands to be distributed at the Italian front.

A high personage accompanying the Queen said: "We have witnessed the great moral effect these gifts produce on our soldiers, who particularly like American presents, these being more original and coming from a land many of them have known. I am sure if Americans realized the great effect produced by these gifts they would double their efforts, although already so generous."

In fact, in many quarters here, it is suggested that part of the funds collected on Italy Day in America might be destined for this purpose.

said, "Don't mind us; we have no chance."

This last signal was the agreed emergency sign which was to be sent up in case there was no opportunity to give help. It is believed that they blew up their craft and took to the water in accordance with the program, as an explosive time bomb had been set to go off even if the craft was under water.

In the meantime, the sky was vivid with searchlights and the land batteries were pouring a terrific fire on the escort. They clung to their work for a time and then left, with forty searchlights and countless batteries playing upon them.

As daylight broke, a fleet of enemy airplanes swooped down, but was beaten off by a smaller fleet of Italian planes, three enemy machines falling into the water during the aerial battle.

No word has since been heard of Commander Pellegrini and his party. Their signal was definite that a ship had been hit and aerial photographs are expected soon to confirm their message.

There is every reason to believe that the four men are prisoners. In any event, their associates and the country greet the fearless band as heroes who have reflected lasting glory on the skill and daring of the Italian Navy.

Total $780,000

Michael Friedsam, in reporting a contribution of $15,000 by R. H. Macy & Co., made the explanation in behalf of that firm that it had contributed directly, instead of taking part in the profit-sharing arrangement between many large retail stores and the Red Cross, because of objections on principle to the profit-sharing plan.

The Red Cross yesterday called attention to the fact that contributions to the Red Cross reduce income tax payments.

"The Federal Income Tax act," a statement said, "as amended Oct. 3, 1917, permits an individual taxpayer to deduct from his net income contributions or gifts devoted to reputable relief or charitable purposes an amount not in excess of 15 per cent. of the taxpayer's income before such deductions are made. The Red Cross is, of course, included in this category.

"President Wilson himself has said: 'The American Red Cross is recognized by law and international conventions as a public instrumentality for war relief,' so those who are interested in the work of the great organization of humanity need feel no apprehension that their contributions from their income can be charged to any intent of withholding from the Government its just dues."

The Program for Today.

12:00 M.—St. Paul's Chapel; Justice Peter Schmuck, speaker.
12:00 M.—Meetings City Hall Park, Madison Square Park, Public Library steps, the Plaza, Fifty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue, and elsewhere, with speakers and music.

8:30 P. M.—677 Fifth Avenue, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt; exhibition of posters and musical entertainment; admission free.

There will be an exhibition of paintings donated to the War Fund of the Red Cross in the ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton all day.

On the program for the concert this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, at 677 Fifth Avenue, are Vera Curtis, Frederick Gunster, Harriet McConnell, and Jacques Grunberg. In the evening at 8:30 the following will appear: Herbert Withersoopn, Florence Hinkle, Marie Tiffany, Elisabeth Wheeler, and William Wheeler.

Program for Caruso Concert.

The parterre boxes for the Caruso concert at the Metropolitan Opera House next Monday night for the benefit of the Red Cross were auctioned off by ex-Ambassador James W. Gerard for $26,500 at the Lyric Theatre on Tuesday night. The highest price for a box was $2,000, paid by Clarence W. Mackay.

The program prepared for the benefit by Max Hirsch has been pronounced by Mr. Caruso to be the greatest he has ever seen. It begins with "The Star-Spangled Banner" by Sophia Braslau. Osaip Gabrilowitsch will conduct an orchestral number, "March Slave." Tamaki Miura will sing "Un bel di" from "Madama Butterfly." Harold Bauer will play Schubert's "A Flat Impromptu" and Saint-Saëns's "Valse Etude." Pasquale Amato will sing the "Largo al Factotum" from "Barber of Seville"; Anna Fitziu "Visi d'arte" from "Tosca," and, with Andreas de Segurola, the Barcarole from "Tales of Hoffmann." Adam Didur has the aria Dulcamara from "Elisir d'Amore," and Mr. Caruso will render several popular selections from his favorite operas.

Leon Rothier will open the second part by singing "La Marseillaise," and Walter Damrosch will conduct the Largo from Dvorak's "New World Symphony." José Mardones will sing "Spain's Homage to Columbia," by Anglada; Frances Alda, an air from "Manon Lescaut." Eddy Brown offers violin selections from Handel, Cha, Paderewski-Kreisler, and Bazzini. Claudia Muzio will sing "O Cielo Assuro" from "Aida"; Riccardo Stracciari a number from Verdi's "Un Ballo in Maschera"; Caruso and Antonio Scotti will close with the famous duet from "La Forza del Destino." The closing orchestral number will be the intermezzo from Puccini's "Amleo Fritz," conducted by Moransoni.

Over $12,000 Raised at Theatre.

The record for sums contributed at theatres was broken Tuesday night and early yesterday morning at the Ziegfield Midnight Frolic, where $12,253 was raised. Lieutenant Richardson, who lost a leg at the Somme, and Major Matheson, both Canadians, spoke with Will Rogers. John McCormack, who was in the front row, was called upon to sing, and agreed to do so if it was made worth while. Mr. Ziegfield offered a check of $5,000 for the Red Cross, and Mr. McCormack sang two songs for that.

Harry H. Gardiner, who calls himself the "Human Fly," gave a large crowd watching him in Borough Hall Square, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon many thrills by climbing up the race of the Temple Bar office building to the top of the flagstaff on the roof, 205 feet above the street. Gardiner performed the perilous task to arouse interest in a Red Cross drive meeting in the square. He took an hour to make the climb, using only his hands and feet in ascending the thirteen stories. At several floors Gardiner stopped to collect money offered to him by occupants of offices for the Red Cross fund.

Visitors in increasing numbers visited the exhibition of war photographs at the Red Cross gallery at 308 Fifth Avenue. Major Bream of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, a visitor at the gallery, was identified as one of the large figures in a group of officers in one of the Vimy Ridge battle scenes. Major Bream said that he had never seen such vivid pictur es of the battlefields. Some of the pictures of warfare in this gallery are considered among the greatest examples of photography in existence.

Gifts of paintings worth several thousands of dollars have been made by New York art dealers to the committee of which Michael Friedsam is Chairman to be auctioned off for the Red Cross by Joseph P. Day at the Waldorf-Astoria next Monday evening. Donations have been received from M. Knoedler & Co., the Kleinberger Galleries, Henry Reinhardt & Son, the Ralston Galleries, Lewis & Simmons, the John Levy Galleries, Henry Symons & Co., E. Gimpel & Wildenstein, the Canessa Galleries, Vitall Benguist, the Ehrich Galleries, the Dawson Galleries, and Dikran G. Kelekian. Louis Marks and M. A. Rasko have given samples of their work.

RED CROSS FUND TOTAL NOW $44,070,555

Chairman Davison Urges the Places That Have Oversubscribed to Keep at It.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Nearly one-half of the American Red Cross second $100,000,000 War Mercy Fund had been subscribed on the face of the returns received at headquarters here tonight at the end of the third day's campaign.

The total subscriptions from the twelve districts was $44,070,555, but it was recognized that these figures were incomplete and did not represent the maximum of subscriptions up to this time.

Although success of the campaign seems assured, workers are not letting up, as it is hoped to roll up an oversubscription. The necessity for those chapters, towns and States which have oversubscribed to continue their efforts was emphasized in a statement sent to war fund managers by Henry P. Davison, Chairman of the Red Cross War Council.

Mr. Davison called attention to the fact that the arangements for the campaign were made early in the year, before the recent German drives in Picardy and Flanders, and that changed conditions called for increased Red Cross funds. For that reason he asked all workers not to lessen their efforts to obtain subscriptions until the close of the campaign next Monday night.

None of the divisions yet has reached its quota, but many cities and towns today joined those that were over the top Monday and Tuesday. The total of the Atlantic Division, New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut, including New York City, is $16,645,281; of the New England Division, Massachusetts, Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Rhode Island, $1,544,000, and of the Pennsylvania Division, Pennsylvania and Delaware, $1,515,111.

PLUCKY FEAT BY RED CROSS

Workers Enter First Line Trenches to Serve Our Troops.

PARIS, May 22.—The latest feat of the American Red Cross workers in France is going into the first line trenches, serving coffee and chocolate to the American soldiers about to leave for their patrol in No Man's Land, and greeting the men upon their return with fresh supplies of coffee and chocolate, with cigarettes and dry socks.

A cold, rainy night recently was marked by activity of the Red Cross men. The soldiers had messed at 5:30 P. M., and would have had nothing to eat until 6 o'clock the next morning had it not been for the Red Cross workers.

The next day supplies were placed in various dugouts and trenches, and the Americans on night patrol in No Man's Land will have hot drinks until a canteen is established in the immediate vicinity.

NO GERMAN RIFLES HERE, SAYS BECKER

Finds No Basis in Reports of Vast Hidden Stores of Enemy Munitions.

STATE INQUIRY ENDED

Reported Importations Would Fill the Woolworth Building, Tauscher's Associate Says.

Deputy Attorney General Alfred L. Becker yesterday concluded his inquiry into the report that there were a million Mauser rifles, a billion cartridges, and 1,200 machine guns hidden in the vicinity of New York City. After examining several witnesses Mr. Becker announced that the hearings in the investigation by the State authorities were at an end, and said he would report to the Federal authorities who requested the investigation that there was no truth in the rumors regarding the hidden munitions. He said his investigation had exploded the myth surrounding the reported presence of the German arms and ammunition in this vicinity.

The last witness was Henry Muck, associated with Hans Tauscher, agent in this country for many years of German munition firms. Muck said he was associated with Tauscher from 1907 to 1914, and looked after Tauscher's rifle business.

Muck said that if a million rifles had been shipped to this country the customs officials would undoubtedly know about it. Such a vast quantity of arms, he said, would require the Woolworth Building for storage purposes. There were less than 1,000 Mauser rifles in America, he said, and hardly more than 300 could be found in any one place.

Asked to tell all he knew about the importation of Mauser rifles, Muck said that the largest shipment of which he was aware was 675 rifles in the Summer of 1914, made by Captain Tauscher. These were sold to the Mexican Government, he added.

Gustave Luesing testified that he made a contract with Herman Richards which was supposed to give him the exclusive option on the million rifles. He paid $250 for the option, he said, and he was to receive a commission of a dollar on each weapon when the rifles were sold. Asked if he ever saw the rifles, he said: "I did not see any rifles, only one or two supposed to be samples."

Captain Roger B. Hull of the Enemy Alien Bureau yesterday recommended that Lewis Federigo Felix von Kobbe, a German reserve officer, formerly attached to the Death's Head Hussars, be interned for the duration of the war. Von Kobbe is 24 years old and was graduated from the High School and Military College of Gross Lichterfeld, near Berlin. He was arrested up State for failing to notify the authorities of a change of address.

Von Kobbe, according to Captain Hull, was born in Argentina. He was naturalized in Germany and from 1911 to 1913 served in South Africa under the German colors. He came here in 1913 and engaged in farming. He is said to have a brother a Captain in the German Army. He admitted to Captain Hull that he took the reserve officer's oath before leaving Germany, but that he would not live up to it if Germany invaded this country. The young man is now a Lieutenant in reserve.

The Federal authorities yesterday began suit for the cancellation of the naturalization papers of Frans Hagen, a teacher in the Bloomingdale Asylum, on the ground that Hagen, since the United States entered the war, had asserted that in spite of his naturalization he considered himself a genuine German, and that he was ready at any time to give up his American citizenship and to join Germany, and do anything he could to further the German cause.

Henry Westley, 42, of 2,115 Hughes Avenue, was sent to the workhouse for two months by Magistrate Koenig in the West Farms Court yesterday for making disparaging remarks about the American army.

The American Defense Society yesterday telegraphed to the Committee on Privileges and Elections asking for an opportunity to be heard in connection with the investigation of the alleged unpatriotic utterances of Senator La Follette.

Charles R. McGuinness, 41, a physician and graduate of Johns Hopkins University, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Hand in the Federal Court to impersonating a naval officer and was sentenced to two years in Atlanta Prison.

BRITISH TO STUDY AMERICA.

Special Lectures for Summer Course at Cambridge University.

LONDON, May 22.—Arrangements have been made for a series of special lectures at Cambridge University for the Summer meeting, beginning Aug. 1, when the main subject will be the United States of America, The Times announces. This subject has been chosen because the university authorities believe it "of great importance that the British people should have a fuller knowledge of the national outlook of the United States."

Ambassador Page, who will attend the university at an early date to receive in behalf of President Wilson the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws conferred upon the President, will also deliver the inaugural address at the opening of the August meeting.

Among the lecturers selected for this session are Professors George H. Nettleton, Henry S. Canby, and Henry A. Homestead of Yale University; J. W. Cunliffe of Columbia, Dr. Santayana, formerly of Harvard, and Sir William Osler, formerly of Johns Hopkins and now of Oxford.

WOUNDED, FLOATED 7 HOURS

Experience of American Aviator Attached to British Forces.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 21, (Associated Press.)—To be helpless on his seaplane in the North Sea for seven hours with a broken leg before he was picked up was the experience of an American aviator attached to the British forces.

The aviator, who comes from New York State, was operating a seaplane off the Belgian coast. He was brought down by hostile fire, and his machine fell into the sea. After seven hours he was rescued and is now recovering in a hospital.

The Red Cross a War Blessing

The good done by the American Red Cross cannot be measured in dollars. But it takes dollars, and a great many of them, to accomplish this good. Give of your store freely. Give to-day. Give every day of the drive.

Our Red Cross and Our Allies

On a recent trip to America, Major Murphy, formerly Red Cross Commissioner for Europe, said:

"This is a war of nations, not of armies. There is not a man, woman or child in Great Britain, in Belgium, in France or in Italy that is not a factor in this war. I tell you that if you should go, as I have gone, about those ruined districts in France and had seen little children, four and five years old, driving in the herds at night; had seen little boys coming down the road—little bits of tots—with their arms full of fagots that they were accumulating against the winter; had seen old men and old women working in the fields until it was so dark that as you looked you could just make out those vague forms gathering in the crops for France, you would realize what this war is, what this war means.

"It is not the armies of France that are the essential thing to France in this war, nor the armies of England, nor of the other countries. Those armies will do their part and do it to a finish, if they are supported by the people behind them.

"The great crying need in Europe to-day is to build up the spirit and keep up the spirit of the people behind the lines, and it is that great work which the Red Cross has performed and which has been, up to the recent entrance of our Army on a large scale, the greatest single factor of our help in France since our entry into the war."

The plainest dictates of humanity, as well as obligations of honor to brave allies, demanded that the American Red Cross, financed by the liberality and spirit of the American people, should do all in its power to alleviate the sufferings and support the morale of the soldiers and people who had been suffering so long in a struggle for that liberty which is the foundation stone of our American Republic.

The Canteen System

The extraordinary canteen service is being carried on with the French, with the Belgians, with the Italians, and with the British, by the Red Cross abroad. There are rolling canteens which are operating right up in the trenches, where the soldiers get hot drinks as they go in and when they come out. These canteens are frequently operated under shell fire and gas, the Red Cross workers often working in gas masks.

Before the days of Red Cross help, a French soldier would come back from the trenches on his seven days' leave covered with vermin—officers and all—and go to a junction point for cars to take them home. Those junction points are equipped for 75 people, yet at times there were 4,000 people waiting, sometimes twenty-four, sometimes forty-eight hours. They slept on the ground and they got what food they could.

They brought home vermin which spread disease among the civil population behind the lines, and a discouraging atmosphere born of the conditions through which they passed on their way home. They went back to the lines through the same channels.

The Red Cross has changed this. In conjunction with the French Government, it is now feeding—not giving drinks and sandwiches—but giving hot meals to a million French soldiers every month. There are great recreation halls where they sit and dine and make merry. There are big barracks with bunks along the walls, there are shower baths and disinfecting machinery, so that the men's clothes, while they are bathing, are run through and the vermin killed.

At first these French soldiers were so glad that they did not use the bunks but sat and talked and sang and wondered at what America was doing for them. A prominent French general officer recently wrote to Major Murphy:

"The only thing that matters in this war is to beat the Boche, and to accomplish this the all important factor is the morale of the men. This you have done much to uphold, and the atmosphere you create is more valuable than even you can realise.

"Your work is that of maintaining the morale of the Americans and the French and the Allies, and I wish to thank you in our name and that of General Petain. Your canteens have been well run and kept up to a high standard. Let the men know that they are being cared for not as men only, but as friends; that makes them prefer your canteens to the wine shops. The morale has never been better than now. I need not tell you I feel strongly on this subject, and I am talking to you as man to man. I am speaking not only for myself but for General Petain. He feels as I do toward you and your work, and he endorses every word I have said."

Checking Tuberculosis

The Red Cross is conducting a work against tuberculosis in France which is unparalleled in the history of the world. France has suffered terribly from tuberculosis, brought on by so many of her people living in dugouts and other unwholesome conditions. Tuberculosis has developed in the trenches, too, and the troops are sent back carrying the germs of this dread disease.

In co-operation with the Rockefeller Foundation, the Red Cross is conducting a campaign of education on the care and prevention of this disease. Facilities have been provided to care for bad cases in sanatoriums, and a plan set up which will lead to the establishment of a great system of 800 dispensaries throughout France, with visiting nurses attached.

Four hospitals for tubercular French soldiers are maintained entirely by the Red Cross. At Malabray there is a 185-acre farm in temporary custody of the American Red Cross, where a model village with accommodations for 400 families is being constructed.

The Red Cross is assisting the French medical authorities in rebuilding and reorganizing other hospitals, and is aiding 96 French hospitals devoted to tuberculosis with supplies and funds. Ambroise Rendli, Vice-President of the Paris Municipal Council, says of this work:

"The Americans have fought the good fight against tuberculosis because they have pursued a strategic campaign against an enemy they know and rightly fear. They have taken the necessary measures. You know them well for a practical people; they will not reproach us if we say this of them in the temple of their charity.

"I have seen the program of the social activities the Americans would undertake in our country in the name of the Red Cross. They have drawn up a marvelous program that takes the child from his birth and even before his birth, since the mother also is cared for, and continues the effort all along the line of years. Such is the plan and nothing finer has ever been conceived."

Other Forms of Relief

It is difficult to give any adequate picture of the whole Red Cross program in France.

There is the whole vast program of relief for the refugees and repatries, for those driven before the invader, uprooted from their homes, and for those returned to France and Belgium broken and bent after being subject to the sway of the German for the last few years.

There is the medical and surgical supply service which the Red Cross is giving to over three thousand French military hospitals, the supplies for the most part produced by American women.

There is the Red Cross children's program of caring for needy and destitute children, the reduction of infant mortality. There is the Red Cross factory for the manufacture of artificial limbs. There is the big program of re-education for the mutilated soldier to teach him a means of self-support with its accompanying benefit to France.

Work in other Countries

What the Red Cross is doing for France she is doing, too, for the part of Belgium not held by the Germans, and to a very large degree for Italy. The story of how the American Red Cross rushed to the relief of Italy has already been told. At the time of the Italian disaster last fall, a propaganda was under way in Italy to the effect that America was not really in the war, as we had not yet then declared war on Austria; that we were not well disposed toward Italy; that America had done nothing but lend money to Italy and take back an obligation with interest attached. There was then no official organization that could speak, but the American Red Cross spoke, and she spoke so that the work resulted in the display of the American flag from one end of Italy to the other.

Four days after war was declared by the United States against Austria, the American Red Cross Ambulance Service swung into the Piave Line and took its place beside the brave Italians.

The Red Cross record in Roumania is one which will never be forgotten by that unhappy people. It was only when forced from the country by the capacity of Germany to compel a humiliating peace on Roumania that the American Red Cross left that people to its woes.

The turn of affairs in Russia seriously affected the Red Cross program in that country, but the permanent portion of the Red Cross Commission to Russia is still on hand ready to express America's sympathy and friendliness in terms of fact when that distracted land is ready to receive them.

In Great Britain the American Red Cross is carrying on a large work, and one which is having an excellent effect. The Red Cross is operating a number of hospitals, supporting a number of good works in Great Britain, in co-operation with the British Red Cross and the British Government.

During the Fall of 1917 the American Red Cross made a gift to the British Red Cross of a million dollars. At the time of the great German attack against the British in March, 1918, a gift of an additional million dollars was made to the British Red Cross to purchase hospital supplies, as evidence of America's sympathy in the great trial which Great Britain was enduring.

As so it is in Greece, in Serbia, in Palestine, wherever the ravages of war have gone, the American Red Cross has gone helping armies and peoples.

Constructive Work

"No other organisation since the world began has ever done such great constructive work with the efficiency, the dispatch, understanding, often under adverse circumstances, that has been done in France by American Red Cross in the last six months." GENERAL PERSHING.

What does General Pershing mean by "constructive work"? He means the share the Red Cross has had in reuniting scattered families, he means homeless children domiciled, bewildered refugees collected and protected, old men and women and babies received from behind the German lines and sent to homes and hospitals, the terrible tubercular scourge and other illnesses grappled with. He means medical and surgical supplies, nurses, hospitals, ambulances and dispensaries, artificial limbs and convalescent homes for the sick French soldiers. He means food, baths, rest, recreation, comfort and cheer for the poilu on leave.

He means that the American Red Cross has helped to sustain the courage, the hope and the patience of our fighting allies, of the soldiers themselves and the soldiers' families. Through the Red Cross the armies and peoples of France and Belgium and the other Allied countries have come to realise that they have friends, and under this touch their spirits have flamed into a new resolution to fight on and bear all.

Announcement Number 4.

LIEUT. TAYLOR WINS DESPERATE AIR FIGHT

BOY OF 19 FROM ANDOVER

Captain Peterson Chases Adversary at Forty Kilometers and Sends Him to the Ground.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 21, (Associated Press.)—Lieutenant William H. Taylor of New York chased a German biplane from the American lines to over Pagny-sur-Moselle, north of Pont-a-Mousson, today and defeated the boche in a desperate fight 5,000 meters in the air.

A bullet from the enemy machine barely missed Lieutenant Taylor and punctured a wing of his airplane. A second later the Lieutenant saw one of his tracer bullets penetrate the fuselage of the enemy machine where the observer was working a machine gun, and there was no more fire from the German.

Lieutenant Taylor continued to fire at the German pilot, and after 450 shots had been fired, most of them about 70 yards, the enemy machine went spinning toward the earth in a nose dive.

In addition to Lieutenant Taylor's fight there were several others in the bright, sunny skies today. Two American aviators chased two enemy machines to Thiaucourt and there attacked them. One of the American pilots fired from directly under the tail of a German machine, which went spinning toward the ground from 4,000 meters to 800, where it was seen to straighten out and escape.

Captain David Peterson of Honesdale, Penn., after a long chase, sent a German two-seater airplane wabbling and diving to the ground in the neighborhood of Château Salins today. The American aviator pursued the enemy machine for forty kilometers along the battleline and then chased him twelve kilometers behind the German lines before he succeeded in attacking him from beneath. The German's dive to the ground followed promptly.

Lieutenant Taylor, who is a First Lieutenant in the United States Aviation Corps although he is only 19 years old, was a student at Phillips Academy, Andover, until he went to France as a member of the Andover Ambulance Corps in April, 1916, it was said at the home of his father, William H. Taylor, at the Hotel Ansonia last night. Mr. Taylor said that his son on his arrival in Paris was among members of the Ambulance Corps who volunteered to serve in the Ammunition Transport Corps of the French Army as motor truck drivers. Lieutenant Taylor was commissioned as a Second Lieutenant in the French Transport Corps' last August, soon after the arrival of the first contingent of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, he entered the American Aviation Corps as a private, and last November received a commission. Later he was made a Flight Commander in charge of five other flyers and twenty mechanics.

Mr. Taylor said that he had received a letter from Lieutenant Taylor last Sunday which was written just after the young officer had had his first engagement with a German airplane. The following is an extract from the letter:

"For a wonder it was a beautiful day, and the Major of our squadron told us he would take us over the lines. We got way up and for an hour did nothing but fly, and I was beginning to get cold and tired, when suddenly I saw the Major signal 'attention.' Then he started to climb and pretty soon I looked over the side and about 600 feet below I saw a big white circle with a black cross in it. I had been waiting for that moment so long that it did not seem at all out of the way.

"It is funny: I expected that the first time I saw a boche plane, I would be horribly nervous, but that was not the case. I went up a couple of hundred more feet and circled around in case there were any more machines higher up. I stayed there three or four minutes and saw nothing. All the time I was watching the big plane below. All he did was circle slowly around to the right. There were two of them, but the other was circling to the left, and one of our fellows was already on his tail. As soon as I was sure there were no more machines higher up I went down and dove on his plane. I began to shoot, but my gun jammed, and I was unable to fix it. So after circling around for a few minutes I came home."

AMERICAN FLIER DIED FIGHTING

Potter Fell Flaming Into Sea Under Attack from Seven German Planes—Companion Escaped.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—News of the death of Ensign Stephen Potter, U. S. N. R., who was killed while fighting seven enemy single-seated airplanes in the North Sea on April 25, was received here today from the London representative of the Committee on Public Information. Ensign Potter, who was second pilot to a British Royal Flying Force Captain, six weeks before had shot down a German seaplane in Heligoland Bight.

Potter, according to the information received from London, left the North Sea station in a British seaplane and steered due east until six miles westsouthwest of North Hinder Light. Another plane accompanied him and kept a position to starboard throughout the action.

Two enemy planes were sighted to port, heading toward the British and flying low. Both British planes dived, about 100 yards apart, closing upon the nearest German. Fire was opened from both at close range.

Potter's companion had emptied one drum from the forward cockpit, when the gun jammed. Two more hostile planes then appeared overhead, attacking vigorously. Both Britons turned to the west, pursuing one of the lower enemy, who was soon lost to view. Three others passed astern, following at a sharp angle. Potter was close above his companion and dove to within 100 feet of the water.

Both machines flattened out, and Potter's companion, being faster, throttled down until Potter came abreast. Thus they ran westward at full speed, close together for several minutes, under continuous volleys from the rear.

Four more enemy machines now appeared in V formation. Of seven Germans in action, four were attacking Potter and the others his companion. Potter fell behind and began to zigzag. He first veered slightly to starboard, then turned at right angles to port.

Again his companion throttled down to let him catch up, and began climbing to reduce headway. Potter dodged again, but was then broadside to all enemy machines and under their fire only fifty feet from the water. His companion, 250 feet above, saw Potter's machine burst into flames, come down part of the way under control, then crash on the port wing tip.

Potter was last seen on the surface amid flames, which suddenly turned to a huge cloud of smoke. Two of the enemy circled over the spot for a time. When the pall of smoke had cleared not even wreckage was visible.

Potter enrolled Sept. 26 last in the Flying Corps. He was promoted to ensign Nov. 2, and was ordered to France. Later being sent to England. A brother lives in the Pasadena Apartments at Detroit, Mich.

The commanding officer of the British North Sea Station wrote:

"Potter always displayed the greatest eagerness to fly at all times. On the long reconnoissance in which he shot down the German seaplane he displayed great courage and coolness. He was very popular at this station."

SAW NO 'FLYING TANKS.'

British Admit, However, That the Germans Have Armored Machines.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 22.—Reports circulated in America that Major Lufbery met his death in a conflict with a so-called German "flying tank" require confirmation, in the opinion of the Royal Air Force expert here, to whom THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent showed a cable dispatch on the subject today. No British airman has yet come across any German armored airplane which could be justly called a "flying tank."

It is no secret that the Germans use a certain amount of armor in the construction of machines specially designed for the purpose of fighting infantry, or, as the British call them, contact patrols. In this line of machine, however, the Germans possess nothing which the Allies cannot or do not turn out equally well or even better. These particular machines are not very different from ordinary battleplanes.

American Killed in Seaplane.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—John Ganster, Quartermaster in the Navy Aviation Corps, was killed in a seaplane accident in France on May 20, the Navy Department announced tonight. His father, Harry W. Ganster, lives in Baltimore.

Chicago Flier Killed in England.

LONDON, May 22.—Second Lieutenant H. W. Preston of the British air force, son of Robert K. Preston of Chicago, was killed on May 14 while flying in England.

GENERAL PRAISED LUFBERY.

Touching Tribute to "Comrade" in Frenchman's Funeral Address.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 21, (Associated Press.)—The address delivered yesterday by a French General at the grave of Major Lufbery, the American "Ace," who was brought down on the Toul sector by a German airman, was an unusual tribute from one soldier to another. A complete translation of this address is now available. It follows:

"It is not without deep emotion that I come to bid a last farewell to a friend of many years, to a comrade in arms, and to render to him, in the name of the French aerial service, a tribute of our admiration and sympathy. Major Lufbery was one of the first in the struggle.

"After having been for some time with bombing squadrons he joined a pursuit squadron. His remarkable qualities soon stamped him as one of the ablest. In Champagne, at Verdun, and on the Somme, fields of his combats, he gained numerous victories over the enemy and won the admiration of his comrades. But it is to be noted that his simplicity, courage, and calm remained always the same.

"Great was his joy when the Star-Spangled Banner was raised beside our own flag, for the same ideals of liberty and justice. He went with the American Army after having fought with admirable courage in the French Army, furnishing a most noble example for all who witnessed his deeds. He had a large share in surrounding with a halo of glory the first flag of the allied republic on our front, which was entrusted to the Lafayette Squadron.

"Alas! This hero was to die. In attacking a hostile plane he fell in Lorraine, where the heavens had been witness of many combats which he fought with untiring energy. Great was the sorrow of all on learning this sad news.

"Always, my dear Lufbery, with pious thought we shall associate your name, a name dear to all Frenchmen, with this land of Lorraine, where already has ebbed so generously the blood of gallant soldiers of the army of the United States. The memory of you will remain forever graven on our hearts. Joined in common sorrow, two nations are weeping today; your own country, which may well be proud of you, and France, toward which you bore yourself as a true son.

"The love we have for you will be shared by those of your countrymen who cross the ocean to fight at our side. We wish them to say, like the poet: 'Each man has two countries, his own and France.' Au revoir."

ON PERSHING CASUALTY LIST

Three Men Wounded from New York and Its Vicinity.

Henry Weisler, who was reported seriously wounded in yesterday's American casualty list, was the son of Benjamin Weisler of 383 Hooper Street, Williamsburg. He was only 20 years old when he enlisted.

Charles Reis, also wounded, is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Reis of 307 Webster Avenue, Long Island City. Before he was drafted last December Reis was a clerk. He was 26 years old. Mrs. Reis said yesterday that she had received a telegram from Washington saying that her son had been wounded on April 29.

TWO SOLDIERS FACE BONNET ROUGE TRIAL

Paix and Mathieu Charged with Divulging Letters on Saloniki Forces.

GEN. SARRAIL TO TESTIFY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 22.—Another of a long series of trials connected with the complicated drama of treason and intrigue, in which figure the names of Almereyda, editor of the Bonnet Rouge, Bolo, Malvy, and Caillaux, began today with the arraignment of Sergeant Paix—Seailles, and Captain Mathieu before the Paris court-martial, charged with divulging confidential documents belonging to the War Office.

Paix, who is a wealthy man, was formerly attached to the Ministry of Inventions in Paris, and Maithieu was an orderly officer to General Sarrail when the latter was Commander in Chief at Saloniki.

The judicial inquiry, in its preliminary stages, showed that on Aug. 8 last, when the authorities raided the house of Almereyda, the notorious chief of the Bonnet Rouge gang, who strangled himself with his bootlace in prison shortly after, they found among his papers copies of five important confidential letters which were sent by Sarrail between March and June, 1916, to Messimy, who was then War Minister in the Briand Cabinet, and Noulens, President of the Army Committee.

There were also copies of telegrams from Joffre, then Commander in Chief, and Briand. Paix admitted that he handed these documents to Almereyda for the purpose of using them in a press campaign in favor of Sarrail, and Maithieu made no secret of the fact that it was he who handed the papers to Paix. The use which Almereyda made of the documents was to have them copied and sent by one of the Bonnet Rouge gang to Spain, whence they quickly reached the hands of the Germans.

It is alleged that the documents disclosed important information in regard to the strength of the Saloniki Army, and had real influence in modifying the direction of the campaign on that front.

It is significant that Paix helped to finance the Bonnet Rouge, a notorious defeatist journal, to the extent of $14,000.

Sarrail Painlevé, and Violette are among the witnesses for the prosecution, while General Messimy, former War Minister, and Steeg, another ex-Minister, will be called by the defense. The trial will last several days.

Using Mails to Defraud Charged.

Post Office Inspector Mayhew arraigned before United States Commissioner Hitchcock yesterday H. Kent Holmes, head of the United States Promotion House of 27 William Street. He was held in $5,000 bail for examination on May 29 on a charge of having used the mails to defraud investors. It is alleged that Holmes mailed circulars and booklets to persons urging them to invest their money in his concern for the purpose of financing mercantile and manufacturing companies and for the development of mines and oil fields, promising large profits. It was said that Holmes had received $38,000 from persons who had been induced to send him money.

HUGHES'S STAND ON AIRCRAFT INQUIRY

attempt to summarize briefly some of the points discussed in our conference today, particularly with respect to the scope of our inquiry.

It is quite evident, from the material you have already gathered and from the matters discussed with you and Mr. Frierson, that it would be necessary for us carefully to examine all the activities relating to aircraft production. It is easy, of course, theoretically to distinguish between an inquiry within the province of the Department of Justice and one which is aimed merely at alleged waste or neglect or mismanagement or inefficiency apart from any appropriate basis for a civil suit to recover misappropriated moneys or a criminal prosecution. As a practical matter, however, it is evident that in the endeavor to determine whether there is a basis for a civil suit by the Government or a criminal prosecution, it will be necessary for us to make a thorough inquiry into the entire history of aircraft production since the beginning of the war and of all proceedings which have been taken by any persons or corporations concerned therewith. We shall not be able to ascertain whether there has been dishonesty or malversation of any kind unless we go thoroughly into all the transactions which have been had.

If we discover a basis for civil suits by the Government, they will be instituted. If we find grounds for a criminal prosecution, it will be in order to go before the Grand Jury to obtain indictments. If we find no sufficient basis for such proceedings, our conclusion, to be convincing to the country, could not well be stated as a mere negative conclusion in general terms, but should be accompanied by a fair, candid and adequate statement of the facts which our investigation has disclosed. We should, of course, in no case make any statement which, from a military point of view, should not be made, and, if we had a basis for civil or criminal proceedings, we should properly reserve the evidence so far as it would be appropriately directed upon the trial and previously withheld.

But I am very sure that the country would not be content with our inquiry, and particularly if we discover no ground for further proceedings, unless we showed the basis for our conclusion in an adequate report of the facts we have ascertained. It certainly should be dispassionate and impartial and be confined to the facts.

When we are in a position to make such a report of our inquiry we shall know the facts, and it will be reassuring to the country and support our inquiry and its reputation for integrity, if we state concisely, but fairly and completely, the results of our investigation.

If it is understood that we contemplate this course of action, I should suppose that there would be a general disposition to permit our investigation to proceed unembarrassed by any other parallel course of action. Clearly as we may recognize the authority to conduct another official inquiry, at the same time, we cannot doubt that any official inquiry into the same course of conduct, although with another aim, would tend to make difficult, if not impossible, the successful prosecution of our own. Either nothing of importance would be elicited, which would make such an inquiry needless, or points would be brought out which would at once suggest to the guilty, if there be such, where effort should be made to block successful prosecution. Even with the best intention in the world, it would be almost impossible to know in advance what should be gone into and what should be left untouched. We might be following a promising clue, only to find our efforts unintentionally thwarted.

We are instructed to have a prompt and thorough investigation, and my desire is that we should have the fullest opportunity to make such an investigation, and in order that we may have this opportunity it is desirable that it should be generally understood that when we are through we shall state the facts we have ascertained in the manner I have suggested above, to the end that all may be satisfied to await the result of our investigation. When we have reached that result I should suppose that our report would have such thoroughness that it would be accepted as the final statement in the matter, unless, of course, some new evidence not discovered by us should therefore come to light.

Very sincerely yours,

CHARLES E. HUGHES.

Four Sub-Committees Named.

After receiving the letters, Senator Chamberlain called the Military Affairs Committee together to decide what course to pursue. Some of the committee favored going ahead with the inquiry into aircraft, as well as ordnance, and the Quartermaster General's Department. They argued that the committee's investigation would not touch upon any criminal feature and that facts as to inefficiency or deliberate attempts to block aircraft production ought to be investigated by the committee and a frank statement of the findings given to the public. It was pointed out that Mr. Hughes's investigation undoubtedly would run through many weeks, or months, and that the public was entitled to know the facts at once.

As against this viewpoint, other Senators maintained that, out of deference to the opinion expressed by Mr. Hughes, the committee ought not to touch upon aircraft, leaving it entirely for the Department of Justice. Senator Chamberlain himself favored this policy. Various Senators believed that the committee, while avoiding inquiry into aircraft, might proceed with the investigation into ordnance and the Quartermaster General's Department, which will not be embraced in the Hughes inquiry.

The committee was unable to come to any agreement, either as to aircraft, ordnance or the Quartermaster General's Department. Senator Chamberlain, at length, appointed four subcommittees, three to cover the three lines of inquiry mentioned, and the other the matter of "cross license contracts," or interchangeable agreements, among manufacturers of army aircraft, about which there has been some severe criticism in the Senate. These subcommittees are:

Ordnance—Hitchcock, Fletcher, Beckham, Weeks, and Wadsworth.

Cross License—Fletcher, Meyers, Sheppard, Warren, and Knox.

None of the chairmen of the subcommittees could say tonight if his committee would go into an inquiry. The members are to meet tomorrow or Friday to come to a decision. In the meantime the Military Affairs Committee will confer, as a whole, to see if any program can be mapped out.

"I don't know what the Sub-committee on Aircraft may decide to do," said Senator Thomas, its Chairman, tonight. "I have not talked with any of the members. My own impression is that Mr. Hughes's letter will carry weight with the committee, and that the inquiry may be abandoned at this time. But I am not positive about it."

Senator Hitchcock, Chairman of the Sub-committee on Ordnance, favors going ahead with that line of inquiry. Senator McKellar, head of the Sub-committee on the Quartermaster General's Department, is disposed to proceed with that investigation. The outcome of the situation may be the abandonment of the aircraft investigation and the prosecution of the others. In any event, it is believed by Senators, the inquiries will be conducted largely in secret.

"The contemplated inquiries would all go into matters that, to a large extent, it would be unwise to disclose to the public without full knowledge of the facts," said Senator Chamberlain. "If the investigations proceed, they will be thorough, and a full report will be forthcoming at their conclusion."

"WORK OR FIGHT" PLAN FOR DRAFT AGE MEN

Government to Round Up All Idlers and Use Them, Says South Carolina Governor.

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 22.—Governor Manning, returning today from Washington, announced that the War Department was planning to round up all idlers of draft age in the country and make use of their services.

It was planned, the Governor said, to take all men of deferred classification who are not engaged in some necessary occupation and make use of their services, either in the army or in war work.

Every man of draft age must work or fight, the Governor said.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Such a "work or fight" plan as Governor Manning said at Columbia today the Government was planning to put into effect was proposed by military officials about two months ago and received the indorsement of the Department of Labor. The proposal was then laid before President Wilson and there has been no announcement as to whether the President approved or disapproved.

As discussed here, the plan was to purge the lists of registrants of all men not engaged in some useful industry by giving them the alternative of going to work or being drafted.

Railroad Wage Increase Is Near.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—An announcement of a general wage increase for railway employes, following in a general way the Railroad Wage Commission's recommendations, but with many modifications, is imminent. It was learned tonight that Director General McAdoo, who has been studying the commission's report, will be ready to act within a few days.

The Outstanding Masterpiece of the War

The Infamy of the Teutons Exposed by a Hungarian Army Officer

It is true that everyone doesn't want to read war books. A great many books are war books and nothing else, but even if "Men In War" were nothing else, it is hardly likely you would feel that you could afford to overlook the book which Theodore Dreiser says is "far and away the greatest war book I have yet read," and which the Philadelphia Press calls "by far the outstanding masterpiece of the war."

Stuart P. Sherman writes us, "'Men In War' is a book written with memorable power of expression. I wish a copy of it could be put in every household in the Central Empires." John Haynes Holmes says: "'Men In War' is unquestionably one of the supremely great books produced by the Great War and like 'Under Fire,' makes all other war books seem trivial." Brander Matthews says: "Of all the war books I have read, this seems to me the most powerful in its stark presentation of reality as reality is imagined by an artist who has seen what he is describing." From all over the United States come similar expressions of opinion from other distinguished people.

But "Men In War" is more than a war book. Latzko is primarily a great literary artist, a word painter rarely equalled in the history of literature. Everybody is asking "Who is this Andreas Latzko? Is he really an Austrian army officer 'as advertised'?" The Chicago Evening Post after saying "'Men In War' is comparable only with 'Under Fire,'" questions whether the real name of the author is given, because the first edition of the book was published anonymously in Switzerland. The Post even questions whether the portrait bust of him that has recently appeared in so many of the newspapers is authentic. Andreas Latzko is not a pseudonym. The first edition of his book did not bear his name because he had not yet made his way to Switzerland from his Hungarian regiment. His name is printed on subsequent editions, and we shall shortly publish another book written by him.

It seems that nobody in this country had heard very much about Latzko or "Men In War" before last January, and we feel that it is a distinct achievement for a young publishing house to have its imprint on what is being called by the most competent critics in the country the greatest book the war has yet produced. Many people are congratulating us on what they call a peculiar stroke of good fortune. If good fortune consists in continually hunting for the best books that we can find, regardless of their apparent commercial value, we modestly accept the congratulations. Finding good books isn't an especially easy matter. Ninety-nine out of a hundred manuscripts that are submitted are valueless for our purposes. The great war has made it increasingly difficult to get good books from abroad. But on January 12th, the New York Evening Post published a long and unusually flattering review of "Menschen im Krieg" (Men In War), which so impressed all of us that the Swiss edition of this book was immediately secured from a local bookstore, read that afternoon and evening, and at about three o'clock on Sunday morning we sent a cable offer to the Swiss publishers. About a week afterward we received a reply that five offers had been made by cable by American publishers, but that as our offer was received first and was satisfactory, the book was ours.

We urge everybody who has confidence in the Boni & Liveright imprint to read "Men In War." Although the first edition of the book was not distributed until the second week of April, and although review copies were sent out only a couple of weeks ago, the book is now in its third edition and is creating more discussion than any book that has been published this year. Publications that received the book too late to print adequate reviews in the editions then going to press, felt it a work of such great importance that they printed pictures of Latzko with such captions as "The author of 'Men In War,' that observer and critic who cannot be neglected in making our estimate of the war" (N. Y. Evening Sun). "This is a picture of Andreas Latzko, an Austrian officer, author of 'Men In War,' which has been described as as great a book as 'Under Fire'—review to appear shortly" (Chicago Tribune). "Now comes Andreas Latzko's "Men In War,' which lies unopened on my desk, but arrives recommended by an universal panegyric" (Detroit News). Such treatment would hardly be accorded the book unless it were recognized as one of vital significance, not only as a human document treating of the war, but as a work of literary art. As the New York Sun says, "It has all the flaming red realism that characterizes many of the personal narratives of the war, but it has in addition artistry and style that set it far above them. The author's imagery of description is vivid and individual, his metaphors apt and illuminating. Each of his characters is limned in such lifelike colors that we say they are. Inevitably it challenges comparison with 'Under Fire,' and not to its disadvantage. 'Men In War' deserves to live."

"Men In War" has not only provoked unusual discussion because it is a great war book and a great work of art, but because of the fearlessness of its author, because of its outspoken detestation of Prussian ruthlessness and autocracy. Even though now in Switzerland, Latzko's whereabouts can hardly be unknown to the military-mad Prussian officials, who, it is said, are making every effort to apprehend him. Christopher Morley, who said in his review of the book in the Boston Transcript headed "The Infamy of the Teutons," "'Men In War' is one of the big books of the war," added "If the Teutonic military authorities ever get hold of it, the author will go straight to a firing squad." The New York Times in reviewing the book says, "Bitterly, angrily, madly, Latzko attacks the Fatherland that fights not for defense but for conquest; the Fatherland whose simple folk are tricked and maimed and murdered by the cant and the greed of their rulers, the Fatherland whose war, let loose upon the world, this Austrian hates." The Sun wrote on April 28th, "This is no book for a Prussian and you may be sure that the volume will not be circulated in Germany." But we know that the book has been read in Germany, and that Latzko is wanted there.

It is impossible in the space available to indicate one-half of the criticism and comment that has appeared on this remarkable book, but we ask our readers whether the heading we have chosen for this advertisement seems extravagant on the evidence we have presented.

"Men In War" can be purchased wherever books are sold, for $1.50 per copy. If your dealer should be temporarily out of it, we will send it to you for $1.60 postpaid, and shall also be glad to send you our Spring catalog listing our miscellaneous publications and the fifty titles now included in the Modern Library.

HARDMAN PIANOS and AUTOTONES (The Perfect Player-Pianos)

at Reductions of

$75 to $250

Convenient Terms of Payment if Desired

They are new Pianos, autographed by famous Operatic Stars like Caruso, Barrientos, Muzio, Amato, DeLuca and Florence Easton, who have used them for the past few months at the Metropolitan Opera House or in their homes. These endorsements, despite their distinguished character, are simply an added feature that does not cost you one extra cent.

It has always been a source of great wonderment to many, why the celebrated artistic associations of these beautiful Hardman Pianos and Autotones should be made the occasion for such sweeping reductions once a year.

But this year the reductions are even more significant because the trend of prices for good pianos is upward instead of down. So, in urging you to take advantage of these remarkable money-saving values, we do so in the firm knowledge that it is the last chance you will have to pay less instead of more for a famous Hardman (the official Piano of the Metropolitan Opera House) in a long, long time.

A small deposit will reserve any instrument for future delivery.

"A great net of mercy drawn through an ocean of unspeakable pain"

The Relief That Appeals to All Humanity

The Red Cross is binding up and healing the wounds of war—it is bringing relief to the most terrible misery and suffering the world has ever known.

It appeals to everyone who loves his fellow man.

And now, the Red Cross comes nearer to every American heart. For it is bringing to our millions of American boys in arms the aid and comfort that each of us would so gladly give them personally if we could.

In barracks, in canteen, in trench, in hospital, and on shell-swept battlefields, the Red Cross is supplying surgical and medical aid, the material comforts of life, and a ready aid and sympathy that is a heartening message from home to American soldiers and sailors.

It is when the need is greatest, when the boys are thinking of home and mother, that the Red Cross acts.

It is doing these things alike for Americans—and for France, England, Italy, Serbia, Rumania and Belgium, for the people of these countries have been fighting our battles and have a need that is great.

If you could only see the needs which your money meets, the gratitude of those to whom it is a matter of life and death, you would give several times as much as you have intended to give.

If you could go to Europe you would understand why those who talk about it have fire in their eye and a tremor in their voice.

The Red Cross is the practical expression of humanity is this crisis of the world.

END OF RATIONING FRANCE IN SIGHT

Boret, Food Controller, Reports the Best Crop Outlook Since 1890.

FIXING PRICES OF MEAT

Municipalities to Combat Profiteering—Warning to Greedy Restaurant Keepers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 21.—Victor Boret, the French Food Controller, delighted Paris this morning by announcing that the outlook had so greatly improved that the end of food restrictions was in sight. He said that the drastic measure instituting three meatless days a week had already produced such excellent results that it would be necessary to enforce it for only a short period, and no alternative system of meat cards would be required.

At the some time M. Boret said that if the harvest fulfilled present promises it would be possible to increase the existing bread ration of ten and a half ounces a day for each adult to something more substantial.

Equally good news is the Food Controller's statement that a new system of price restriction is to be enforced. Wholesale and retail dealers in foodstuff, since the institution of meatless days, have ruthlessly raised prices to an extent which the Minister has publicly denounced as scandalous. The price of fish, for instance, which is one of the few possible substitutes for meat, has risen enormously. Soles, which sold at wholesale at 6 francs a bundle on May 1, were quoted at 14 francs on May 15, the first meatless day. Eggs rose proportionately, while meat itself soared to figures out of all reason.

M. Boret has already made strong efforts to remedy the scandal by inducing the Paris City Council to open twelve municipal butcher shops, where meat is sold at a fixed price. This week-end the first consignment of eight tons of beef bought by M. Boret in the provinces was transported to Paris, slaughtered under his control, and distributed among the municipal shops and the working-class co-operative stores, and a certain number of ordinary butchers, who agreed to sell at prices fixed by the City Council. This system is to be extended until the meat so provided equals one-tenth of the daily consumption of Paris.

The Food Controller now announces a drastic extension of the methods of fighting the greed of food speculators. By Government decree the sale price of all meat will in future be fixed by the municipalities throughout France, or by the Prefects, if the former decline to act. The holding back of meat supplies by speculators, which has been practiced to a shocking extent in Paris in order to force prices up, will be met by a law requiring that all meat be placed on the market the day after its arrival from the slaughter houses, under penalty of requisition.

Restaurants whose prices have made eating almost impossible lately are also to be made to toe the mark by the establishment, if other means fail, of prices fixed by the State.

In order to compel cattle raisers to declare their stocks truthfully, forage cards are to be put in use, allowing only enough fodder for the number of head declared.

It is also announced that all condensed milk must be placed on sale within a year of the date of its manufacture. Holders will have four months in which to dispose of their existing stocks, which are known to be enormous.

PARIS, May 21.—Prospects for the coming harvest in France are better than in any year since 1890, Victor Boret, Food Minister, informed The Associated Press on his return today from a week-end tour in the country.

"Unless unforeseen situations arise between now and harvest time," he added, "actual restrictions on food consumption will not be increased. I may even say that we are approaching the end of the era of restriction, and that the restrictions at present in force gradually will be eliminated.

"But I want men for the harvest. If they can be found I can promise that I will diminish the importation of cereals and release important tonnage."

M. Boret presented to the Council of Ministers several measures tending to decrease the cost of living. These include the placing of a tax on cattle on the hoof, sheep and hogs, a census of French cattle, the reorganization of the La Villette stockyards and the building of refrigerating warehouses there. The Minister said he intended to make "a small Chicago" out of the La Villette stockyards.

SHIPS AT 10,000 TONS DAILY.

That Is the Rate of Delivery of Our Yards in May, Says Schwab.

DETROIT, May 22.—During May there has been delivered the equivalent of a 10,000-ton ship for every working day, said Charles M. Schwab in an address here today.

Mr. Schwab visited the plant of the Ford submarine chasers, and expressed surprise at the progress made there.

MILLION MEN NOW READY TO EMBARK

"When war was declared in April, 1917, the standing army of the United States consisted of 136,000 officers and men; many of whom were in the foreign service, and the National Guard consisted of 164,000 officers and men, many of whom were too old for active service and a large part of them physically unfit for the work for which they had volunteered.

"Our experts told us it would take two years to raise an army of 1,000,000 men and five years to train the commissioned personnel. It has now been about one year since the first legislation was passed authorising the increase of our army for war purposes.

Total Strength of Army.

"The strength of our military forces is now as follows:

	Officers.	Men.
Regular army	10,286	804,677
Reserve Corps	70,038	78,500
National Guard	16,908	411,952
National army	38,894	510,963
Special and technical duty	8,195
Drafted in April		150,000
Drafted in May		275,742
Total	148,323	1,929,894
Grand total		2,078,222

"So we have today," continued Mr. Caldwell, "an army of more than 2,000,000, of which more than 500,000 have already been shipped to France, and 1,000,000 more have the necessary training to fit them for foreign service. They are now waiting for the ships to carry them over.

"Our critics now complain that we have not done more, yet we have done in one year twice as much as they thought we could do in two years."

Mr. Caldwell recalled to the attention of Congress statements by various allied commissions which, he said, had advised America to send materials, not men. He continued:

"Under the legislation that Congress passed in spite of the recommendations from the Allies, we have already raised more than 2,000,000 men and early in the year 1919 will have 3,000,000 in the army. We have now taken the 'lid off' so that President Wilson may have as great an army as necessity requires and our manpower permits. Notwithstanding the fact that the appropriation measure now pending is drawn with the view of supporting an army of only 3,000,000, I am confident that before many months, deficiency appropriations may be necessary. We will probably have 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 men before the end of the next fiscal year."

Mr. Caldwell's estimate of man-power in America was: Two million men now in the army; 2,000,000 more in Class 1 waiting to be called, and 1,000,000 additional in the class of men who have become 21 this year. Classes 2, 3, 4, and 5, he said, had 6,000,000 other men, and there were 3,000,000 boys between 18 and 21. He estimated, therefore, that if the war lasted until 1924, there would be 6,000,000 more men, all of Class 1. He said the total number of men of military age in 1924 would be 20,000,000, out of a total population of 125,000,000.

Building of Cantonments.

Mr. Caldwell said that the building of thirty-two cantonments, made necessary because there was not enough cloth in the world to shelter the army planned, used in ten weeks more human labor than went into the building of the Panama Canal. Clothing had been supplied, he said, by taking over carpet, ducking, and similar factories, so that "we have now an ample reserve of every kind of clothing for our soldiers."

"England," declared Mr. Caldwell, "trained her first million men in citizens' clothes and top hats, with walking sticks for guns, but notwithstanding our difficulties, our first million men were clothed in uniforms and were drilled in the manual of arms with a rifle."

The delay of the United States for experimenting so that it might get the best possible rifle was now vindicated, said Mr. Caldwell, for "production is now ample" and the rifle is of the highest quality.

"When General Joffre requested a small expeditionary force," he concluded, "the critics of the Administration demanded what they thought was impossible, that we ship to France in the first year 50,000 to 100,000 men.

"In the first ten days of May we shipped 90,000. Within a year after the first shipment America will have 1,000,000 of the best fed, best clothed, and best paid soldiers in France that the world have every known. It will have been trained under the modern conditions, surrounded by the best moral influences, with the lowest precentage of disease, and will be served by the highest motives that actuate men."

GENERAL WEAVER RETIRES.

Regret Expressed and He May Be Recalled to Active Service.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Major Gen. Erasmus M. Weaver, Chief of Coast Artillery, U. S. A., will be 64 tomorrow, and by law will be placed on the retired list for age. His duties as a member of the War Council will end with his retirement, but it was indicated in a high quarter today that he might be called for important active service as soon as he had taken a rest from the fatigue occasioned by the constant attention that he has given to public business before and since the entrance of the United States into the war.

Secretary Baker showed today that no officer stood higher in his estimation for ability and conscientious attention to duty that General Weaver. Mr. Baker spoke of the fact that General Weaver had entered the service of the United States as a cadet at the West Point Military Academy the year Mr. Baker was born, and has been constantly at work since then seeking to bring the army to a high state of efficiency. Deep regret was expressed by Mr. Baker that General Weaver would have to retire.

General Weaver was one of the officers of the regular establishment who began many years ago to devote themselves to the effort to perfect the army in methods of scientific warfare. He was an artilleryman and sought in every way to learn all the ins and outs of advanced artillery science. While at Fort Monroe as a Captain he developed mortar battery practice to such a point of perfection that he was able to have his mortars drop shells one after another in Hampton Roads within a charted space ten feet square at a distance of three miles. The great utility of howitzer or mortar warfare in the war in Europe has demonstrated how far-seeing were General Weaver and the other mortar battery experts of years ago.

What "Slow" Accounts Mean

"SLOW" ACCOUNTS mean something more than the mere matter of delay in receiving payment of bills.

THEY MEAN DUPLICATION OF EFFORT, the maintenance of records and additional officework that would be unnecessary if such accounts were paid within the reasonable specified time.

BUT MOST OF ALL they mean that labor which might be devoted to necessary tasks essential to the comfort, convenience and efficiency that you derive from your telephone service, is wasted on what should be unnecessary tasks.

AT THIS TIME IT IS DESIRABLE that unnecessary labor be eliminated as much as possible so that the out-put of necessary labor may be increased.

Subscribers who pay their telephone bills promptly help to conserve labor at a time when the conservation of all labor is a national necessity.

THORMAHLEN MOWS DOWN SOX BATSMEN

PIPP'S RAP DECIDES ISSUE

Wallie Sends Baker Over the Plate with the Run That Conquers Chicago Champions.

Youth will be served, and served it was at the Polo Grounds yesterday, when Lefty Thormahlen of the Yanks pulled through a winner in a sharp, seething slinging duel with Eddie Cicotte of the White Sox. For fourteen innings the youngster of the Huggins staff had to show his grit and gameness to hold his own against the cunning and generalship of the famous knuckle-ball veteran of the world's champions.

Wallie Pipp brought the altercation to a close with a vicious rap to centre in the last of the fourteenth, which hustled Frank Baker over the platter with the [illegible]bilant unit which gave the Yanks victory by a 1-to-0 count. The long-delayed triumph put the Yanks back into second place.

Thormahlen had the tougher job, for the Sox maulers hit him more often than the Yanks could solve Cicotte. There were three errors behind the Yank southpaw, but he overcame these obstacles with a masterly exhibition of mound skill. Time and again he was in a hole, but his courage never faltered, and he turned the best of the Sox hitters back to the bench with a clever pitching display, which marks him as one of the season's finds.

It was Clark Griffith Bat and Ball Day at the park, but the threatening weather kept the crowd down, and President Ruppert will have another benefit for the soldiers' fund when the Yanks return after the coming Western trip. There were large detachments of doughboys and jackies there yesterday from Governors Island, Fort Hamilton, Pelham Bay, Fort Slocum, Fort Wadsworth, Camp Merritt, and Camp Mills, and after the game they were all presented with baseball outfits, which included bats, balls, gloves, mitts, chest protectors and masks. The soldiers had two brass bands along, and they made things lively during the long, tense diamond struggle.

Peck on the Jump Throughout.

In spite of three errors in Thormahlen's support he received glittering assistance in the field, especially from Roger Peckinpaugh and Frank Gilhooley. Peck swept his territory clean of numerous White Sox drives which were ticketed hits, and in the twelfth, when Buck Weaver threatened to break up the game with a home-run drive to deep right, Gilhooley scampered back on the soft, muddy turf, pulled down a tremendous drive, and then rolled over in a somersault, but clutched the ball for dear life.

Thormahlen did some truly wonderful pitching in the tenth and fourteenth innings, when it appeared as if the world's champions were sure to smash his praiseworthy performance. In the tenth, with two out and Weaver on third, Thormahlen walked Shano Collins intentionally and waited to take a chance at Schalk. The little Sox catcher tried hard to knock the ball out of the lot, but Thormahlen struck him out and the soldiers set up a din which lasted several minutes.

The fourteenth inning was a terrific strain on weak hearts. Liebold, the first Sox up, was safe when his easy grounder breezed through Pipp at first. McMullin sacrificed Nemo to second, and a sharp safe crack to left by Eddie Collins sent the runner to third. Hap Felsch, a dangerous batsman, was up, and Thormahlen walked him and jammed the bases. The Yanks' youthful southpaw then turned on the steam and the best that Buck Weaver could do was to slap a grounder at Baker, who fired the ball home to Hannah and forced Liebold at the plate.

There was still plenty of danger in the Sox layout with Gandil at the bat. The crowd turned loose a sigh of great relief when Gandil hoisted a high fly to Miller in centre.

Cicotte Has Yanks in Hand.

Up to the fourteenth inning Cicotte held the Yanks in almost complete submission. For thirteen innings he gave them only four hits, only two of these by Baker and Miller being clean drives. The knuckle ball, the shine ball, and all the other tricks in Cicotte's kit were brought into perfect execution. Pipp twice reached third base, once in the second and again in the tenth, but none of the other Yanks got beyond first.

Miller got as far as second in the thirteenth, but he went to seed there. The last of the fourteenth saw the crowd pulling hard for the courageous young Yank portsider, and when he pulled out of the deep excavation after the bases had been loaded with White Sox twice there wasn't a fan inside the park who didn't want to see him win.

Peck was the first Yank up in the last of the fourteenth, and he died at first. Baker then beat out a hit to deep short, even after Weaver had made a marvelous stop. Pratt shot a single to centre and put Baker on second. Cicotte was weakening and the crowd was yelling like mad for the tense, uncertain struggle to end. Pipp, who had not been able to land solidly on Cicotte's curves, pounded a single to centre, and Baker romped home with the victory.

SUPERBAS SUCCUMB WHEN BRUINS RALLY

CHICAGO, May 22.—Larry Cheney, Brooklyn's dependable veteran, weakened in the face of a late batting rally by the Cubs this afternoon, and just when the Dodgers had the game won by a 1-to-0 score, Chicago pounded out a 2-to-1 victory.

For seven innings Cheney and Hendrix waged a close pitching battle and neither array of batters were able to break through to the plate. Cheney was a bit wild at times, but his support pulled him through. He hit two of the Cubs' batsmen and uncorked a wild pitch.

Brooklyn broke through Hendrix in the first of the eighth. Cheney singled to left and Olson's drive bounced off Hendrix's bare hand, but Chuck Deal recovered the ball in time to get it to Kilduff and force Cheney. O'Mara lifted a high foul to O'Farrell. Daubert smashed a single to right and when the ball got away from Eddie Flack, Olson crossed the plate and Daubert pulled up at third.

Hendrix walked Zach Wheat intentionally and then Zach stole second. Hi Myers had a great chance to distinguish himself, but ended the Brooklyn activity by lifting a fly to Flack.

The Cubs brought on their rally in their half of the same inning. Flack singled to right and Hollocher sacrificed him to second. After Mann flied to Johnston, Kilduff singled back of first and Flack scored with the tying run. Paskert walked and Deal poked a single to centre, sending Kilduff home with the winning tally.

EASTERN LEAGUE OPENING.

Two New Cities Represented in Reorganized Circuit.

The reorganized Eastern League opened its baseball season yesterday. Providence and Waterbury have been added to the list of clubs this year in place of Portland and Lawrence, and this tends to make a more compact circuit. Until this season Providence was in the International League circuit.

The results of yesterday's games were as follows:

Bridgeport, 6; New Haven, 2.
New London, 4; Hartford, 3.
Worcester, 4; Providence, 2.

FORDHAM'S HITS ARE FUTILE

Although Bill Finn, the Fordham twirler, allowed only one hit, the Maroon collegians were defeated by the Fort Slocum nine on Fordham Field yesterday by a score of 1 to 0. Ray Fisher, the ex-Yankee pitcher who topped the mound for the soldiers, was nicked for nine hits, four of which came in the ninth inning, and still Fordham failed to score. In this frame Coletti and Lefevre were nipped at the plate, while two other Fordham players were similarly caught in previous innings. Finn fanned twelve batters.

In the first inning Sturquel reached first when Halligan, who supplanted Scanlon as catcher, dropped a third strike. Sturquel stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on a squeeze play, with Charles supplying the bunt.

Heavy Hitting Toward Close of Game Gives 7 to 2 Victory.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., May 22.—The Wesleyan baseball team had a disastrous three innings toward the close of the game with New York University here this afternoon, and the visitors batted out a victory by a score of 7 to 2. Hall and Sano were sent into the box by Wesleyan to save the game, but were ineffective.

The Wesleyan batters were helpless before Sulzer, the visiting twirler, who allowed only five hits and fanned nine men. Curtis's home run was the one bright spot in the Wesleyan batting department.

Cooper Drives Across Winning Run in Twelfth Inning.

PITTSBURGH, May 22. — Pittsburgh and Philadelphia played a twelve-inning game here today, which the Pirates won, 6 to 5. Jacobs, who went to the mound for Pittsburgh in the opening inning, was relieved by Harmon in the second, but not until the visitors had tallied four times. The first two batters in the tenth inning touched Harmon for clean hits, and he was removed, giving way to Cooper, who retired the side scoreless.

ETRUSCAN GALLOPS AWAY FROM FIELD

E. G. Vivell's Etruscan came to life yesterday and won the Newtown Selling Stakes at six furlongs, which was the feature of the racing card at Jamaica. The victory of the son of Burgomaster entailed such a startling reversal of form that the stewards acted promptly and decided to refuse the entries of owner Vivell, pending further investigation.

The unexpected success of Etruscan was only one incident in a day of disaster for the players. Not a favorite won during the afternoon; even in a two-horse race the public finally settled on J. E. Widener's Trompe La Mort as the choice, only to have John Sanford's Achilles lead him to the finish.

Etruscan's record during the last few days was sufficient to cause him to be overlooked in the speculation, so that he started at odds of 30 to 1, with the Quincy Stable's Compadre the favorite. On Saturday Etruscan and Compadre both competed in a three-horse race. The former was well played by the public, but at no stage of the race did he display any of the speed for which he is noted, and Compadre won in a gallop by six lengths. Further evidence of the unfitness of Etruscan came Monday, when he was brought out again for the Clarendon Handicap and, with odds of 20 to 1 against him, finished next to last in a field of eight.

He was a different animal yesterday, and leaped to the front shortly after the rise of the barrier to set a pace that soon had the others dizzy behind him. Walls, on Compadre, did his best to follow in the flying footsteps of Etruscan, but was forced to give way in the stretch. L. Feustel's He Will, the second choice, began to loom up then, but never had a chance to catch the winner, which sailed across the line well in hand and a length and a half to the good. The investigation by the stewards followed, and so far as could be learned the only explanation given for the form somersault was the slight change in track conditions.

Turf and Rio formed the Butler entry in the sixth race, but both were unplaced. F. Ambrose Clark, whose colors are generally seen in steeplechases, supplied the winner in the imported Shanballymore.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—For two-year-olds; selling; by subscription of $5, with $600 added; five furlongs. Time—1:02.

UPSET IN JUNIOR TENNIS.

Bassford and Donaldson Vanquish Taylor and Emerson in Semi-Final.

One decided surprise marked the first day of play in the doubles tournament to determine the junior tennis championship of Brooklyn at the Terrace Club yesterday. In the semi-final round of the event, which went forward by leaps and bounds because of the numerous defaults, Abraham Bassford, 3d, and Gerald Donaldson, Jr., obtained a place in the finals when they defeated the formidable combination of Harold Taylor and Gerald Emerson in a sharply played three-set match, with the score 6—4, 2—6, 6—4. The victors showed some pretty combination work on the court, while the rival pair was handicapped by the wildness of Emerson, who could not depend on his drives going true.

In the boys' singles tournament Cecil Donaldson obtained a place in the semi-finals when he defeated S. F. Phiesinger, 6—0, 6—2.

The summaries:

Junior Doubles.—First Round—R. Kynaston and A. Silverman defeated H. Wycoff and R. J. Clark, 6—4, 6—3.
Semi-Final Round—A. Bassford, 3d, and G. Donaldson, Jr., defeated Harold Taylor and G. Emerson, 6—4, 2—6, 6—4.

TENNIS PROBLEM ON TAPIS.

Equalization of Voting Power to be Discussed in Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 22.—The next meeting of the Executive Committee of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association will be held here on July 4, and it is expected that the question of equalization of voting power which has become a bone of contention between Eastern and Western tennis circles will be thrashed out at that time. The date set for the meeting by Julian S. Myrick, acting President of the tennis association, brings it during the week of the National Clay Court Tennis Championship of the United States, and it is believed that nearly the entire Executive Committee will be represented. It is therefore believed that some definite basis for future action will be determined which will be acceptable to the entire country.

DOUGLAS HAS BEST NET CARD ON LINKS

F. H. Douglas of Princeton led the field of fifty-three golfers who participated yesterday in the annual Spring tournament of the University Club, held this year over the links of the St. Andrew's Golf Club at Mount Hope, N. Y. The play was at thirty-six hole medal play handicap, in morning and afternoon rounds, and at the conclusion of the day's golf thirty-one contestants returned full cards. Douglas carried off the chief prize for the tournament, that offered for the best net score, when he returned a card of 181 26—155 for the total distance.

This was two strokes better than the effort of H. H. Fries of Columbia, who captured second prize with 185, 28—157. For third prize there was a tie between A. F. Mabon, Rutgers; L. A. Gillet, Yale, and T. F. Wilcox, Princeton, all of whom finished with net scores of 160 strokes. Wilcox, however, accounted for the prize offered for the best net score in the afternoon round, and he was eliminated from the day's net tie, leaving Mabon and Gillet tied for the prize.

The laurels for the day's best gross score fell to S. C. Mabon, Rutgers, who went over the thirty-six holes in 171 strokes. His handicap was four, however, and with a net score of 167 he finished far back of the net leaders. Mabon also returned the best gross round for eighteen holes when he went over the course in the morning competition for a 79. This was five strokes better than the card of his nearest rival, but because of his leading gross effort in the thirty-six holes play, he was ineligible for the prize in the morning round. This went to George T. Brokaw of Princeton, who had an 84.

The golfers this year, duplicating the conditions of last year, competed for engraved certificates. These awards were made in the cases of all prize winners. The financial returns from the tournament, resulting from entrance fees, were donated to the Y. M. C. A. Last year the money was turned over to the Red Cross.

The scores:

F. H. Douglas, Princeton, 181, 26—155; H. H. Fries, Columbia, 185, 28—157; T. F. Wilcox, Princeton, 180, 20—160; A. F. Mabon, Rutgers, 192, 32—160; L. A. Gillet, Yale, 186, 26—160; G. S. $50,000 TO REVIVE CARDS.

St. Louis Directors Will Discuss Plan for Raising Amount.

ST. LOUIS, May 22.—Directors of the St. Louis National League club will meet here Friday to discuss plans for raising $50,000 for the purchase of players to bolster up the lagging Cardinals.

One of the plans suggested provides for the assessment of twenty-five of the stockholders to the amount of $2,000 each.

Members of the board denied rumors that Roger Hornsby would be sold to raise money. W. C. Anderson, one of the Directors, said the team would retain Hornsby as long as there was a dollar left in the treasury.

Studebaker
The New BIG-SIX
Beautiful in Design
Thoroughly Modern Mechanically Right
Note the harmonious design of body, fenders, radiator, lamps, and general outline of this New Studebaker Big Six!
See how gracefully the curves of each are blended. Few indeed are the cars which match it in appearance, or in which the modern bevel-edge body (originated by Studebaker) has been so perfectly developed.
Its power-resources are marvelous. Its "touring range" is ample for ordinary driving; its "emergency range" gives express train speed and power. Yet this is really an economical car to run. Even its tire-economy is notable.
Its stamina has been proven by 40,000 miles of driving under the severest conditions. Its finish, equipment and appointments are of the highest quality.

FINE TUNES LULL 'ROCK-A-BYE BABY'

SOME HILARIOUS MOMENTS

Jerome Kern's Score May Carry Piece Through the Summer—Edna Hibbard in Leading Role.

ROCK-A-BYE BABY, a musical comedy in three acts, based on "Baby Mine," by Margaret Mayo, book by Edgar Allan Woolf, lyrics by Herbert Reynolds, music by Jerome Kern. At the Astor.

The musical comedy makers, in pursuance of their drive to convert all the farces of yesterday into musical shows, reached Margaret Mayo's "Baby Mine" at the Astor Theatre last night. "Rock-a-Bye Baby," as the musicalized version is called, has one of the best scores which Jerome Kern has written for a season or more, a dozen good looking and well dressed girls, two handsome sets of scenery, no singing to speak of, and several hilarious moments inherited from Miss Mayo's farce. It is hopefully put forward by the management as a Summer show, and, as its weaknesses are no greater than those of the average musical piece, it appears reasonably certain to be one.

Strangely enough, the principal weakness of "Rock-a-Bye Baby" is that its adapters selected too good a farce to work upon. Miss Mayo's story does not surrender itself readily to musical treatment; it persists in showing signs of life just when the librettist is congratulating himself that he has clubbed it to death. It has movement, it is closely knit, and it is too good a tale to stand idly by while the principals and the friends of the principals sing pleasant little melodies which have nothing to do with the case.

At the climax of the farcical situation, for example, it becomes necessary for the story to be left dangling while the heroine sits up in bed to assist in the singing of a song entitled "There's No Better Use for Time Than Kissing." The number, furthermore, is sung with two rank outsiders, persons totally unconnected with the plot, who just happened to enter the lady's boudoir. At that, one of them is a man, and almost a stranger. It is true that musical comedy lays no claim to relevance as one of its charms, but in the case of so hardy a farce as "Baby Mine" these matters should be better arranged. There were half a dozen other spots, equally inappropriate, where the story was baited and musical numbers forcibly inserted.

Had they been any one's musical numbers but Mr. Kern's the result probably would have been disastrous, as it was, it was merely unfortunate. There are four or five high spots in the Kern score—his best, undoubtedly, since "Oh, Boy!" The kissing number is one of them, and, "According to Dr. Holt," is another one, and "My Own Light Infantry," a charming nursery number, is still another. For that matter, there was not one tune in the fifteen which it was not good to hear.

There is a Summer breeziness and a good taste about the production which promises to do considerable for it. Its cast is capable, but not distinguished. The rôle of Zoie, which was Marguerite Clark's when the piece was a straight farce, is handled by Edna Hibbard. Miss Hibbard is an agreeable enough ingenue of the Marguerite Clark-Madge Kennedy type, who looks cute, sings a little, but not much, and does nothing which is really wrong.

Dorothy Dickson and her shoulders caught the fancy of last night's audience. In addition to dancing, for which she is already noted here, Miss Dickson played a small part and acquitted herself nobly. Louise Dresser, as blondly pretty as ever, sang three or four numbers and generally abetted the job of baby snatching, and Walter Jones, in his old rôle of the cradle robber, supplied most of the humor. The husband was played by Frank Morgan, hitherto of the movies.

NO SWEETS AND BE SLENDER

Philadelphia Food Chief's Advice to Those Who Would Have "War Figure."

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—The ideal "food administration figure" has been defined in a statement issued by Jay Cooke, 3d, local Food Administrator.

"Eat less candy this Summer," says Mr. Cooke in his heart-to-heart talk with women. "The less sugar you eat, the more slender and graceful you will become. Besides, you are conserving food elements for our allies and fighting the Hun while you stay at home.

"There are hundreds of thousands of children and young people, of both sexes in Philadelphia who can display their patriotism only by acts of self-denial. I suggest to these young people that they display their patriotism by cutting down their allowance of candy, chocolate sundaes, bon-bons, and the various luxuries manufactured almost entirely from sugar."

The new sugar rulings, according to Mr. Cooke, have been designed solely to give the housewife and the canner the opportunity to put up a large quantity of fruits this Summer.

"The fact is," said Mr. Cooke, "that the sugar situation is not at all encouraging, and I anticipate that some stringent rules may be promulgated after the canning season is over."

MAY BUILD BIG SHIPYARD.

Greenpoint Waterfront Property Is Sold for $950,000.

A big real estate transfer, said to be a preliminary to an important waterfront development in the Greenpoint district of Brooklyn, was recorded yesterday in the Register's office in that borough. The transaction was between the trustees of the estate of Lowell M. Palmer and the Greenpoint Improvement Company, a recently formed corporation. The estate has conveyed to the company holdings in Commercial, Dupont, and other streets, at the entrance to Newtown Creek, having an area of about 800,000 square feet. The property has a water frontage of more than 1,700 feet. No price was mentioned in the deed, but the war tax on the document indicated that the property was sold for $950,000.

There was a report yesterday afternoon that the new owners of the land planned to build a big shipyard there, involving an outlay of several million dollars. John K. Byard of 120 Broadway, Manhattan, an official of the Greenpoint Improvement Company, said last evening, however, that the corporation had not as yet formed definite plans for the development of the property. He would not say what character the improvement would probably take.

KNEWITZ APPOINTS AIDS.

Bronx Commissioner of Records Names James O'Brien as Deputy.

Commissioner of Records John Knewitz of Bronx County yesterday announced the appointment of James F. O'Brien of 3,106 Park Avenue Deputy Commissioner of Records for the Bronx at an annual salary of $3,000. He is a Democrat. James Brady of 1,356 University Avenue was appointed Chief Clerk, at $1,800 a year. He is an Independent Democrat, and was Deputy Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity in the Bronx under the Mitchel Administration.

Albert W. Rettinger, a real estate dealer living at Barnes Avenue and 200th Street, the Bronx, was appointed Superintendent of Records at $1,800 a year. He is a Republican. Henry Baker of 1,210 Franklin Avenue and Nicholas Curl of 174 East 205th Street were appointed clerks in the office of the Commissioner of Records.

Commissioner Knewitz pointed out that he made the appointments on the advice of the Attorney General and the Corporation Counsel.

SULTAN HONORS CHARLES.

AMSTERDAM, May 22.—Sulton Mohammed of Turkey toasting Emperor Charles of Austria at a dinner given at the Imperial Palace on Monday is quoted in a Constantinople dispatch received here as saying:

"The treaties of Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest, which so happily put an end to the state of war between the Central Allies on the one hand and Russia and Rumania on the other, constitute an undeniable proof of our desire to terminate this murderous war."

It was remarked that the ladies of the imperial harem were present in a special waiting room when the Austrian Emperor and Empress arrived at the railroad station at the Turkish Capital on Sunday. This is an innovation in Turkish social life.

The Emperor and Empress were met at the station by the Sultan, the Turkish Ministers and diplomatic representatives of the Central Powers. They were formally received at a ceremony in the Yildiz Palace.

LEXINGTON FOR CONCERTS.

Syndicate of Buyers Announces Plans—4 Weeks of Chicago Opera.

The Lexington Opera House, recently sold under mortgage to a life insurance corporation by Oscar Hammerstein, is to be transferred to a syndicate of purchasers, under contracts signed yesterday, for use as an opera house and home of high-class concerts and recitals, such as are held in Carnegie and Aeolian Halls.

Lewis & Kelsey, attorneys of 120 Broadway, announced last night that a syndicate headed by George D. Grundy, who is part lessee of the Grand Central Palace, had contracted for the purchase of the Lexington, and would give Sunday night concerts there next Winter with star soloists.

The Chicago Opera Association announced that it had taken a lease of the Lexington for future seasons here, and would again give four weeks of grand opera, beginning Jan. 27, 1919, for which renewals would be received up to June 15 next, and new subscribers thereafter.

Hippodrome's Red Cross Benefit.

The Hippodrome's Red Cross performance will take place tonight, when, in addition to "Cheer Up," a dozen well-known performers will be on view. Governor Whitman will be present and will make an address after the second act. Raymond Hitchcock will be master of ceremonies, and those who will appear include Fred Stone, Doyle, and Dixon, Will Rogers, Eddie Cantor, Leon Errol, Annette Kellermann, and Helen Stanley.

Although "Cheer Up" closed ten days ago, the entire company will return to the Hippodrome for tonight's performance.

Dolly Sisters in Midnight Revue.

Roszika and Yancsi Dolly, who have been absent from New York for a longer period than is their wont, returned to the city's theatrical life last night as members of the cast of the Midnight Revue in the Century Grove. They offered some half dozen dances and were enthusiastically greeted.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"A Pair of Petticoats" will end its run at the Bijou Theatre a week from Saturday. The piece will next be seen in Chicago.

The Festival Dancers will present "A Festival of Pentecost" at the Neighborhood Playhouse on Saturday and Sunday evenings in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Henry Street Settlement.

Chrystal and Julie Herne will be seen in vaudeville next season under the management of E. A. Weil in a one-act play by Harriet Ford, entitled "His God-Mother."

The vaudeville performances at the New Brighton Theatre on Friday of next week will be for the benefit of the Red Cross.

"David's Adventure," by A. E. Thomas, has been placed in rehearsal by Cohan and Harris, and will be given a preliminary production in Atlantic City on June 3. The piece is based upon a story by Leona Dalrymple, and the cast will include Donald Gallaher, David Higgins, Ben Johnson, Donald Meek, Madeline Delmar, Marion Coakley, Lucile La Verne, Frank Erbin, Frank Kilday, Joseph B. Miners, and Meyer Behrensen.

FARMERETTE PLAY BY BESSIE TYREE

Girls to the Farm, Boys to the Front, and Audience to the Red Cross.

Under inspiration from the Red Cross drive, Mrs. James S. Metcalfe became Bessie Tyree again last night, and for the rest of the week will appear at the French Theatre in Thirty-fifth Street in "Starting Something," of which she is author and stage manager. It is a "farmerette comedy" in three acts, and it shows how our city girls go back to the land in North Westchester, sending their boys to the front and incidentally inspiring adjacent parts with patriotic fervor.

Mrs. Metcalfe is a Westchester farmerette in her own right, and an employer of farmerettes. With perhaps a single exception, her facts and her local color are authentic. Among her heroines are a girl from a paper-box factory, a cabaret dancer, a hello girl, an unmarried mother, and a fat girl training down for the matrimonial handicap. All are married except the fat girl, and, with a rigor which permits no dodging, the happy swains are one and all sent off in khaki. The single unveracious detail is the costume of the farmerettes. Instead of the blue jeans and suspenders which prevail in North Westchester, Mrs. Metcalfe has arrayed her heroines in the trimmest of knickerbockers with skirted coats. What the play loses in grim, bucolic realism it gains in decorative quality. The farmerette colony in Bedford Village will please take note.

A large and able company contributed their services. Ethel Hornick was a philanthropist, Frank Andrews and Mrs. Jacques Martin were the farmer and his wife. Douglas Ross was a braw Scotch chauffeur, and Robert Midgley an inimitably funny tramp. Marion Berry and Clarice Berry were leading farmerettes, revealing a charm power of personality and a talent for acting quite out of the ordinary.

'SUICIDE' FOR KAISER'S NAVY

German Admiral Says Attacks on Transports Would Mean Just That.

LONDON, May 11, (Associated Press.)—"Suicide" is the word used by the German naval authorities to describe what it would mean for the Kaiser's navy to attempt to interfere with the transport of allied troops and munitions across the English Channel.

According to German papers, considerable irritation has been caused in Germany by the rapidity with which England has been throwing men into France, and criticism has been directed at the Admiralty. In a vigorous defense, Rear Admiral Karl Hollweg points out that the activity of the German Navy is subject to certain geographical limitations.

"A voluntary attempt to remove these limitations," he argues, "would signify a heroic but useless suicide for the German Fleet. The distance from German harbors is too great for the regular and frequent attacks which alone could cause continuous interruption of channel traffic. A small German Fleet cannot remain long in the channel, for submarines and mines would reap a rich harvest among it and, after being cut off, it would be compelled to accept battle with overwhelming British forces in unfavorable circumstances."

Even German submarines, according to their commanders, writes Captain von Kuhlwetter in the Berlin Lokal-Anzeiger, find that attacking transports is especially difficult in the channel.

Discussing U-boat warfare possibilities generally, he alludes to a suggestion made to post submarines off various allied harbor entrances. The idea, he says, "is impracticable," because "there are not enough submarines."

WARNS DRAFT ABSENTEES.

Crowder Says They Must Register Before June 5 if Necessary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Maj. Gen. Crowder, Provost Marshal General, who is working to meet the problem of registering young men included in the shifting population of the country on June 5, when those who have reached 21 years since June 5 last must register, issued a warning today that men of 21 who may be away from home on registration day must protect themselves by arranging for registration before that date in order that their local boards may have their cards on June 5.

"Any local board," said General Crowder, "is authorized to record the answers of persons absent from the jurisdiction of their local boards and to certify to their registration cards, upon application. Your card will be made out and turned over to you, and you must mail it to your home local board in time to reach it on Wednesday, June 5.

"If you do not know the designation and address of your home local board, address the card to the Mayor of your home town, in case your home is in a city of 30,000 population or over; or to the Clerk of your county, parish or similar unit, in case your home is not in a city of 30,000 population or over. The Mayor or County Clerk, as the case may be, will forward the card to your home local board.

"You must inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your registration card for the return of your registration certificate. Failure to get this certificate may cause you serious inconvenience. Any local board to which you apply will give you full information as to what to do."

General Crowder today wired the draft executives in all States that they must prepare to handle the registration of many absentees from home. His telegram in part reads:

"Your attention is again invited to the necessity of furnishing an adequate supply of registration cards to cities having a large nonresident or floating population. Shipbuilding plants, munition factories, and other industries connected with the prosecution of the war are responsible for a large influx of population at many places. States within whose borders such industries are located should make sure that sufficient cards are on hand to supply requests of absentees for same."

General Crowder has also wired the Governors of all States, except Florida, saying:

"If new county or counties have been erected in your State within past twelve months, necessitating creation of additional local boards, please immediately recommend personnel for appointment to such boards in ample time for approaching new registration. Please acknowledge this telegram by wire, stating whether necessity exists or not."

OUR RAILWAY NAPOLEON.

The President set a distinguished example when he confronted the country with an accomplished fact regarding the taking over of the railways by the nation. Director General McAdoo follows the precedent when he makes himself the chief operator, and makes his subordinates the successors of all the railway Presidents in the land. Nothing more ruthless was ever done by the biggest and worst of the trusts before their power was broken, but there is a difference. The old railway official who avowed his profane indifference to public opinion was thinking of his railways. The railways of the United States are not the property of the Director General, and he is not thinking of the convenience or profit of the railways primarily. He is thinking first and last of the public interests, and acts in the manner customary with those responsible for the conduct of a war.

Never is a question asked about the cost or profit or loss of any necessary act of war. That is why Government management is not suitable for normal conditions, but is peculiarly fit for meeting military imperatives. The only question to be asked respecting the wisdom and propriety of the unprecedented action of the Director General is, What will be the effect upon the efficiency of the railways in their military uses? Already there had appeared symptoms of a disposition to cling to old ways and to have independent opinions regarding what should be done by the railways in the public service. The merits of such differences of opinion are debatable only by those not in the line of duty, whether in high or low degree. Those highly placed have great responsibilities and cannot succeed if there is the least hesitation in obedience to orders. They alone have the right to think. Others in the line of duty should do what they are told, without consulting counsel or stockholders. Recourse to the courts to preserve either public or private interests in that manner is open to anybody except the officials under the Director General. From him to the humblest trackwalker or car cleaner there should be an unbroken line of authority and obedience. If the removal of the Presidents promotes that result in this war emergency, it is to be commended, whatever the effects upon the railways or however ruffling to the high railway officials' susceptibilities.

Those not in the line of duty to the Director General are less limited in their opinions than the Presidents of the railways. It is apparent that the plan is incomplete, and needs much working out of details. Perhaps it might have been better if there had been some delay to permit of a more complete plan and the announcement of the new officials. Now the roads are left headless for a time, and there is some danger of disorganization of operating forces. However, the Director General is as well aware of that as anybody, and there are passages in his announcement which reassure the working forces of the roads that they are secure in their positions as soon as they know who is their chief. That may apply even to the Presidents. They are useful in varying degrees, and presumably those wanted will receive the opportunity to serve their country rather than their companies. There is little difficulty about the matter of salaries. Some of the Presidents are indifferent to the pay; others will work more cheaply for the Government than for private employers; others, perhaps, may be paid both by the Government and the company when the matter of subordination is understood. It is a minor consideration at worst, for the Director General can have no difficulty in finding railway talent at one price or another.

However the matter is arranged, it challenges attention by the fact that it is in the line of evolution. It has long been proposed that the Government should have representatives upon the railway directorates to learn the inside of the business which it was regulating at a disadvantage. Now the situation is simply reversed. The railways need somebody to watch the inside of Government operation for the term of the lease. The Government is paying a rent sufficient for it to have control of the property without disturbance, but the property belongs to the lessor still, and there is an agreement for maintenance of the property in a manner which gives the owner the right to overlook what is done. The Presidents have a new function, quite enough to occupy them if they wish to work for those with whom they have had relations hitherto. There is not a little of unexplored territory in the railway field about which the public has had too little information. With the Director General on the inside and the Presidents in positions of observation, there will remain little hidden. The dual relation will be good for the railways in whatever future there is in store for them.

It must be clear that the more complete the reconstruction of railway operation, the more complete will be the destruction of the good-will of the various companies. Uncounted millions have been spent in making trade connections which now are scrapped. The railways had a value as going concerns which they no longer possess when they are made to go so differently. That going value cannot be restored to them, however excellent may be the physical maintenance of the properties. Other values, perhaps, may be created in the new relations. There are such opportunities for the increase of earnings with the same plant and labor that larger incomes should result from less outlay. The railways are sure of their earnings for the period of the lease, and they may be made more valuable by what they gain from Government operation, regardless of what they may lose from old methods which never can be restored. We are in a new railway era, not altogether master of our doings, and should be open-minded to possible benefits, rather than stubborn in old ideas, which, perhaps, may turn out to have been prejudices.

KEYSTONE REFORMERS.

Once a mortgage, always a mortgage. Once a reformer, always a reformer. When Senator Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania saw the beatific possibilities of the direct primary, he clasped it to his bosom. He loves it still, grins when he thinks of it. It has kept him in the Senate. Why shouldn't he be grateful? Entering upon his post-graduate reform studies, Mr. Penrose saw another reform and loved it.

So did the Vares, fellow-reformers with him. Their candidate for Governor, State Senator Sproul, Federal Prohibitionist, carried the Republican primaries Tuesday by a plurality of nearly 180,000 over J. Denny O'Neil, Highway Commissioner and Federal Prohibitionist. Thus one reform boosts another. The direct primary leads Mr. Penrose toward ratification of the Federal prohibition amendment. Virtue begets virtue.

Bad news for the Wets, this notice of the Dryness of Pennsylvania primary Republicans, but who does not rejoice to see Boies Penrose—the Vares with him—on the prohibition wagon, rolling along the sunny streets of righteousness? What will his next reform be? Proportional representation or an anti-cigarette Federal amendment? Goodness is progressive.

BISMARCK ON ABSOLUTISM.

The fatal divergence of the present German Emperor from the policy of Bismarck, the maker of the German Empire, is illustrated again by the impotence of the Reichstag, the Chancellor, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, the control of foreign and internal policies by the military ring, the substitution of military absolutism for constitutional government, or such shadow of it as Germany has had.

Well known are Bismarck's opposition to unnecessary wars, his policy of friendship for Russia, his aversion to using the alliance with Austria-Hungary to further Austria's interests in the Balkans; his belief that the German Empire required no new wars, and that "its principal aim "must be to increase its internal "strength"; his insistence upon the value of good Anglo-German relations and his warning against competing with the English fleet, "against "fantastical plans which might cause "us to quarrel with people who are "important for our position in Eu-"rope"; against "daring and adven-"turous enterprises guided by the de-"sire to have a finger in every pie."

On account of his governing, without Parliament or budget, when Prime Minister of Prussia, his later exhortations against absolutism, his perception of the perilous megalomaniacal path on which the then young Emperor had entered, have not been so well remembered. In his speech at Jena in 1892 he said things now perfectly contemporaneous:

> It is a dangerous experiment nowadays to strive after absolutism in the centre of Europe. Henceforward we must aim at strengthening independent political conviction in Parliament and among the German people. * * * In building up the empire some kind of dictatorship was necessary, but that cannot be considered as a permanent feature. Our task can be completed only when Germany possesses a powerful Parliament which embodies our sense of unity.

Again, at Kissingen in the same year, he said that the responsibility of Ministers should be increased so as to strengthen the Reichstag. "If "Parliament becomes powerless, be-"comes a mere tool in the hands of "the Government, we return to the "régime of absolutism." Germany has returned to that régime. This creator, whose pictures, whose memoirs used to be in almost every German house, has been extruded from the German mind by the brood of destroyers who have reversed his policies and forgotten his warnings. His foresight has been vindicated often and strikingly since he was dismissed from office in 1890, most strikingly since his death. What a deadly criticism of German policy under Wilhelm II. Bismarck set down in his memoirs:

> We ought to do all we can to weaken the bad feeling which has been called forth through our growth to the position of a real great Power by the honorable and peaceful use of our influence.

THE KAISER'S PATENT BOSWELL.

Karl Rosner, the Kaiser's official Boswell, has finished his job; or, as a somewhat clumsy translation of his valedictory published in The World puts it, "My command is at an end." The Kaiser has observed that books without end are crammed with anecdotes of Napoleon, his sayings and doings; every man who got within hearing distance of that extraordinary man had some characteristic act or utterance to report. It occurred to him that the second and greater Napoleon must not go unreported. He must say and do some characteristic things, and they must be Boswelled. Therefore he did something that would never have occurred to the original Napoleon; he set about doing these characteristic things and he appointed an official Boswell. This Boswell was Karl Rosner, correspondent of the Berliner Lokal-Anzeiger.

Mr. Rosner has accompanied or followed the Kaiser throughout the western offensive, Boswelling away at stated and measured times. When it was time for the Kaiser to do something characteristic, the signal was given for Mr. Rosner to advance and begin Boswelling. Of course Mr. Rosner was somewhat handicapped by the fact that the Kaiser did not do any fighting. The men who were around Napoleon had no such trouble. "What are you dodging for? If that "ball had been meant for you, it "would have found you if you had "been fifty feet underground." "Ah, "I am hit. It must have been a "Tyrolese sharpshooter who got me "at such a distance. Those fellows "are wonderful shots." That was Napoleon. He really didn't need any machine-made Boswell; anybody who came in his company became a Boswell because he couldn't help it.

What, however, is a made-to-order Boswell to do in the case of such a very different Napoleon? Mr. Rosner did the best he could. Notified that the Kaiser is to say something pathetic and historic at 1:30 P. M. on a hillock near Queant, to the west of Cambrai, Mr. Rosner repairs thither. He finds the Kaiser in the correct attitude, looking mournfully down upon the battlefield, his staff disposed properly, some at L., some at R., some at L. U. E., one alongside him—necessarily, for the Kaiser cannot utter the historic and pathetic saying unless he has somebody to utter it to. As soon as Mr. Rosner has arrived the Kaiser turns to the officer who is serving, if we may so phrase it, as Mr. Hennessy to his Mr. Dooley, and says, "What "have I not done to preserve the "world from these horrors?" Mr. Rosner duly notes it, retires at the proper signal, and the characteristic utterance is properly Boswelled to the world.

At another time the Kaiser decides on picking a violet, and Mr. Rosner is sent for to record this beautiful incident. Really, it is the best of all, because original. Napoleon never thought of picking a violet; neither did Hannibal or Caesar or Alexander. Even if one of them had, it would never have occurred to him to have a Rosner on hand for purposes of Boswellization. This was a stroke of genius, but in the main the "turns" the Kaiser performed for Mr. Rosner seem lacking in imagination. Maybe that is why Napoleon's characteristic performances seem so different. When the disastrous attack on Mount Kemmel began, the Kaiser was on hand—not in the battle, of course, but where he could see it. He began this arduous labor at 9 A. M., so Mr. Rosner told us, and kept it up heroically until "late in the afternoon." During this majestic scene he was surrounded entirely by Generals, and was "marking the results on the maps" as the fighting went on. This was the best the Kaiser and Mr. Rosner could do with the battle of Kemmel.

This matter of the maps is suggestive. In the movies a General or a King is always identified by his earnest, constant, and excited examination of maps, just as a thug is identified by his cap and a priest by his clerical garb. When the movie devotee sees a man in a uniform pawing a map he knows he is looking upon either a great General or a mighty monarch. For further identification, a number of supers in uniform are always represented as standing around in awestruck attitudes, just as the Kaiser at the battle of Kemmel had himself surrounded by Generals for Mr. Rosner to see and note. We cannot resist the suspicion that Mr. Rosner was not the only official recorder of these impressive scenes; that, in fact, there was a movie operator along who is not mentioned, and that Berlin will get the results pictorially as well as Boswellically.

And now "my command is at an end"; Mr. Rosner can go back to commonplace war reporting again. Before dismissing him, the Kaiser gave him one more Napoleonic scene—Hindenburg "awaiting his highest war "lord on the front steps of a little "red house;" the Kaiser arriving, the production of the inevitable maps; "they stand before maps;" "the "Kaiser, Hindenburg, and Luden-"dorff stand before other maps;" "once again new maps lie before the Kaiser." Any movie devotee would recognize this scene in an instant. The Kaiser gives him a last message, as poverty-stricken in imagination as all the rest. "I stand on the platform," finishes Rosner. "The Kaiser is still "talking out of the window as the "train pulls out."

We would not hurt the Kaiser's feelings, but we are bound to tell him that he is not the least bit like Napoleon.

NEW YORK MUST GO OVER THE TOP, TOO.

To Germany the work of the Red Cross on the battlefields of France and among the victims of "frightfulness" is the propaganda of humanity, and the Red Cross is, therefore, a formidable antagonist, always to be reckoned with as a factor that may be decisive. Of what avail is it to destroy the homes of noncombatants by sword and fire and to lay a country waste, with the design of ruining, starving, and demoralizing a people, if the Red Cross comes to their rescue, feeds them, nurses them, finds them shelter, clothes them, restores their courage, and fills their souls with the will to achieve victory?

What the Germans think of the "second line of defense," as the indefatigable Red Cross has been so aptly called, they show by shelling and bombing its hospitals and firing upon its ambulances. This has been of such common occurrence, so many cases have been proved, that the enemy's intentions are now well understood and guarded against.

The Germans cannot conceive of the activities of the Red Cross on the side of the Allies, backed so lavishly with money and organised so thoroughly, except in the light of propaganda. The humanity, the idealism of the Red Cross campaign they are blind to, or think it a sham to hide a subtle political motive, a strategical plan. It is the success of the Red Cross in healing the soul hurts of stricken communities, in raising up a despairful people to face the horrors of war with resolution, that worries the Germans. And especially they hold in aversion the American Red Cross, because the great resources of the United States are behind it for sanitary, constructive, and restorative work, which renders futile the barbarous tactics of "frightfulness."

Make no mistake, the German war lords fear the Red Cross campaign of humanity, although they call it by another name, as much as they do an American army corps. It will be bad news for them when they hear that the American people have gone "over the top" in contributing to the Red Cross War Fund. New York cannot afford to have it said that other communities have exceeded their quotas and she has failed, for New York in patriotic giving has always been bountiful. Michigan, South Dakota, and Delaware, also many cities, have gone "over the top." New York should be good for several millions more than the $25,000,000 asked for. Give till it hurts. It will hurt the Germans ever so much more.

A POOR MONTH FOR THE U-BOATS.

On the eve of the submarine campaign to sink all ships without notice, that is to say late in January, 1917, the German Admiralty boasted that 1,000,000 tons would be destroyed a month, and calculated the end of the British mercantile marine almost to a day, also the end of the British Empire. The Germans had some good months, but the average they aimed at was never attained. During the Winter of 1917-1918 they destroyed about 400,000 tons of British and neutral shipping each month. The shadow of failure had fallen over their abhorrent enterprise. With the publication of sinkings for April by the British Government it is no longer possible even for a German official with a gift for self-deception to believe that the war can ever be won by the U-boats.

During April 220,709 tons of British and 84,393 tons of neutral and allied shipping were sunk, altogether 305,102 tons. The portentous decline may be due in large measure to the unceasing activity of the Anglo-American and French patrols, to which vessels are constantly being added. The convoy system has also been successful in baffling the U-boats, and more attacks by them on armed cargo carriers have proved unsuccessful. No doubt the closing of the Ostend and Zeebrugge channels, whether a complete job or not, has had its effect upon the score. The War Insurance Bureau has cut its rates almost in two, a sign that the submarines are no longer considered a very serious menace to shipping.

The other day the mining of a large area between Germany and Scotland, to restrict the operations of the German flotillas, was reported. The nights are now so short that their most favorable working hours are limited. It is quite likely that May will show a still further and significant decline in sinkings.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Starvation Leads to Cannibalism. Often have there come before now, from the Central Empires, reports indicating that their civilian populations were on the very verge of starvation, and as often has there failed to follow the insistent and effectual demand for peace, even if it were not "German peace," to be expected as a result of such conditions. So like statements now are all open to suspicion. It may be, however, that yesterday's special dispatch in The Times did not exaggerate either the reality or the extent of the suffering prevalent in Austria. The accuracy of this account was emphatically guaranteed by the correspondent who sent it from the Franco-Swiss frontier, and its credibility is increased by the fact that its details were in substance exactly in consonance with the trend of evidence given by many previous witnesses.

It has long been known that the food situation in Austria was worse than in Germany, and there is no intrinsic improbability that, as was stated, some of the people in Austria have already been brought to cannibalism—a point always reached when famine has reduced men to the state of desperate animals. The dispatch said that the victims were prisoners of war employed in the gas works, apparently, of Vienna, but it referred to those who murdered them only as "fellow-workmen." That might have meant either that the killing was done by other war prisoners or that it was the work of their Austrian associates.

If the former interpretation is the true one, the revelation is not politically important, as it only shows that the Austrians are letting their prisoners of war starve to death, as was done long since by the Germans; but if the resort to this ghastly means of sustaining life was by Austrian workmen, the episode has a larger significance, and, coming from any other country than one of the two where the people as a whole are practically without a voice in the determination of national policies, it would justify a confident prophecy of immediate revolt against the military class. But Austria and Germany are not to be judged by the rules that apply to the rest of mankind, and the limit of their endurance is unknown.

Letters to Soldiers Criticised. Again it is necessary to remind the relatives in this country of soldiers in France that in writing to them those relatives should keep constantly in mind the necessity for winning the war, and that the coming of peace, earnestly as it is to be desired, is not a proper or even decent subject of present discussion or prophecy. One of The Times correspondents on the western front complained yesterday, and with good reason, that the men in far too many instances are getting letters the writers of which express the belief that the end of the war is close at hand—that it will be over within the present year. For that belief, of course, there is in this country no basis whatever except the wish. Not only is it without any foundation of knowledge, but it is contradicted by all the available information and by the leaders of all the allied armies—the only men who have a right to speak with authority.

Worse than that, the wish for immediate peace is not shared by the men in the field; it is entertained only by people here at home who either put their personal anxieties above all other considerations or else lack the intelligence to see that peace this year would be more than likely to be—would almost necessarily be—a "negotiated peace" of the horrible sort that has been established in Russia and in Rumania.

The American soldiers who are risking their lives in France have no desire to be relieved from hardship and danger at that dreadful price. They are ready and eager to fight on until there is gained the victory which alone could justify the enormous sacrifices of life and treasure already made by the nations allied against Germany. Nevertheless, they are disheartened and their morale is deteriorated when they get from home letters indicating the lack here of their own appreciation of the fact that the object of the world's desire is not peace, but a restoration for all time of the conditions that made life tolerable to free men and women.

Every parent or other relative of a soldier who cannot be forgetful enough of self to refrain from writing such expectations or aspirations as are shown by forecasts of speedy peace simply gives excuse for not improving the war mail service—almost gives excuse for cutting it off altogether.

One Victory Is Quite Inconclusive. Orville Wright, who knows a thing or two about airplanes, admits the possibility of giving them some degree of protection against machine-gun fire by covering them with steel plates. He insists, however, that in doing this the Germans have produced a machine of such narrowly limited utility as to be inferior to the unarmored planes.

The accuracy of this judgment is easily credible, in spite of the fact that Major Lufbery seems to have lost his life, in spite of his skill, while battling with an aerial "tank." A single conflict with an armored airplane proves little or nothing as to the merit of the innovation. Before now, and not infrequently, German aviators not thus guarded have been victorious against aviators even of his ability, and it may be that in this case, also, the result would have been the same—that the American "ace" would have fallen and his enemy have escaped his fire—even if the fight had been on even terms as regards protection.

To make an airplane slow and clumsy for the sake of a problematical safety for its operators would evidently be a bad bargain. As an experiment, it was interesting, but it would appeal to few other than German minds, and it is not to be forgotten that, according to present accounts, the machine against which Major Lufbery contended with such lamentable results was wrecked a few hours or minutes later by men in just such machines as his.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Ludendorff to Hindenburg: "Say, old pal, they will soon be calling you Behindenburg if you don't get another move on."

Hindenburg to Ludendorff: "They will soon be calling you Deludendorff if you don't plan a better than the last one."

A FOOTNOTE TO LICHNOWSKY.

The Ambassador's Statement to Admiral Hood Confirms the Charges of His Famous Memorandum.

By WILLIAM ROSCOE THAYER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The following authentic statement is of interest because it confirms from a different angle Prince Lichnowsky's recently published revelations. It also is one more of the hundred pieces of testimony which prove that the German Kaiser was meditating war in the Spring of 1914.

When diplomatic relations were broken off between England and Germany, the English sent the German Ambassador, Prince Lichnowsky, home with full honors, unlike the boorish treatment which the Kaiser gave the French Ambassador, M. Cambon. The battleship on which the Prince went back was commanded by Admiral Hood, who was on very friendly relations with Lichnowsky. For the latter, being a Slav, had good manners, which the Prussians have never been able to attain, and had been really popular in London society.

During the crossing the Prince was much dejected, and he said in substance to Admiral Hood:

"I might as well jump overboard, for my career is ended. Three months ago [that is about May 1] his Majesty the Emperor wrote and instructed me to investigate secretly the state of English public opinion and to let him know whether there was any likelihood that the English would enter the war in case we made war. I looked over the ground in all directions and replied that the English were not likely to go to war on any account. In the first place, they had ceased to be a martial nation. They had grown so rich that their chief desire was to enjoy the luxury and comfort which their wealth brought them. Next, they had a civil war on their hands in Ireland. Then, they had only a very small army ready—160,000 men—and it would take them at least a year to train any considerable force. Finally, I added, they had grown so unmilitary that they allowed even women [suffragettes] to intimidate them.

"I have no doubt," said Lichnowsky, "that my report must have influenced the decision of the Emperor in forcing the war. So you see what my fate is likely to be."

On his return to London immediately after, Admiral Hood repeated Prince Lichnowsky's statement to several persons and, among others, to a Harvard professor of worldwide reputation, who repeated it to me soon after he came back to Boston. Admiral Hood, I need hardly remind you, married a well-known Boston lady and had himself many friends and acquaintances, including the Harvard professor, in Boston society. I printed the story in my 'Germany versus Civilization' more than two years ago, but I did not give Admiral Hood as its source because he was then in active service in the British Navy. He went down with his ship, as every one knows, in the battle of Jutland, and there can be no impropriety in naming him now.

In the light of such evidence, how long will even the German people go on believing the lie which the Kaiser passed off on them at the beginning of the war when he assured them that the sword had been forced into his hands?

'DRY' VOTES FUTILE WOMEN ARE WARNED

Anti-Saloon League Urges Them Not to Enroll in Prohibition Party.

SUFFRAGISTS ARE TEACHING

They Have Established 60 Centres in City for Political Instruction of Women.

All days that remain before the newly enfranchised women have their opportunity on Saturday to enroll with the different parties and thus qualify for participation in the primary elections next September will be political school days with the leaders of the New York City Woman Suffrage Party, of which Miss Mary Garrett Hay is the official head. They are giving impartial instruction to the women voters in what the different parties stand for in the matter of principles and public service.

Sixty centres for the dissemination of such information have been established during the last few days by the Woman Suffrage Party in this city, a majority of them in the Borough of Manhattan and principally with a view to reaching prospective women voters of alien birth, who are most in need of such reaching. This work is under the direction of the Americanization Committee of the Woman Suffrage Party, of which Miss Mary Dreier is Chairman. The centres of information have been established in settlements and neighborhood houses which abound in the densely populated sections of the city, where foreign-born voters are in a majority; also in public libraries, public schools, churches, and women's clubs. To meet the increased pressure of work during the remaining days many auxiliary centres have been established in private homes in such sections.

To reach the women voters of foreign birth the Woman Suffrage Party has had printed and distributed 42,000 hand bills in foreign languages, informing women of the opportunity to make themselves felt that Saturday's enrollment affords, and urging that they will not do their full duty as citizens and voters unless they qualify for the right to participate in the primaries, where party candidates are nominated. Suffrage workers at the headquarters of the organization, 8 East Thirty-eighth Street, said yesterday that the interest displayed by the women voters of alien birth was most vivid and the response their efforts among them has evoked most hearty.

In addition to the work done by the information centres, thirteen large rallies have been held under the auspices of the Woman Suffrage Party during the present month for the purpose of arousing interest in the enrollment among the foreign-born women. In many of the settlement houses, too, so-called "first voters' parties" have been given, at which the women have appeared in the finery of many lands, and, after listening to music and partaking of refreshments, have been treated to a lecture in civics and received instruction in how to enroll.

While much of the work done by the Woman Suffrage Party has been among the foreign-born women, their American sisters are not being neglected. The Woman Voters' Council, another agency of the Woman Suffrage Party, is the medium through which the work among the latter is being done. It was said at the headquarters of the New York City Woman Suffrage Party yesterday that 125,000 women have availed themselves of the brief courses of instructions in government and civics conducted by the Woman Voters' Council since January. In practically all the big department stores and in other establishments, where women are employed in large numbers, special classes are being conducted every week with the co-operation of the employers. A full citizenship course includes four lessons in which are embodied the fundamentals of political organization and elections; 160,000 pamphlets containing these lessons in printed form have been distributed among women who will be qualified to enroll next Saturday.

As the ratification of the Federal Prohibition amendment is to be an issue in at least the Republican primaries, the New York Anti-Saloon League has sent out a warning to women who favor national prohibition not to become identified with the Prohibition Party, alluring though its title may be.

"If you live in New York City and want to help Prohibition enroll with the Republican Party," the appeal from the Anti-Saloon League reads in part. "A Democratic candidate next Fall in New York City means a Tammany Democrat. Tammany is bitterly opposed to prohibition. A Prohibition Party candidate can not be elected—such dry votes are lost. To make sure of having dry candidates in the Republican Party, enough 'dry' voters must enroll in it to outvote the 'wets.' If that is done the dry candidates will get the nomination of the party."

WON'T DISCUSS PROHIBITION

Long Island Episcopalians Refuse to Take Up the Subject.

A discussion of the prohibition question so far as the State is concerned was averted at yesterday's convention of the Long Island Episcopal Diocese at the Garden City Cathedral, when the convention, by a vote of 88 to 55, voted to table a resolution calling up the matter for argument. The resolution, introduced by the Rev. Charles E. Cragg of Huntington, was for the purpose of ratifying the amendment to the United States Constitution.

"I oppose any action, as we have no legal right to discuss the question at this convention. It is purely a political question," declared Colonel William S. Cogswell of Jamaica. He was supported by Charles H. Fuller of Brooklyn.

"As Governor Whitman favors Statewide prohibition," said Milton Le Cluse, a real estate operator of Huntington, "it would take a very strong candidate to oppose him." He was declared out of order by Bishop Burgess, presiding, who said political discussions were barred.

By a vote of 84 to 51 the convention went on record as favoring a plan to permit women to vote at the primaries if the vestries sanction it. The convention also passed a resolution expressing approval of the country's attitude regarding the war.

ROOSEVELT BACK IN CLUB.

Republicans Rehang Colonel's Picture and Invite Him to Return.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is again a member of the Republican Club. In 1912, when the Colonel's Bull Moose Party bolted the Republican organization and sought to bring about the defeat of William Howard Taft for re-election as President, the relations between the Colonel and the prominent leaders of the Republican Party were more than strained. They broke in many directions, not the least important fracture being in the famous club in West Fortieth Street founded by the leaders of the party of Abraham Lincoln. The Colonel was bitterly denounced in the club, and an oil painting of him which occupied a place of honor along with paintings of Mr. Taft, Elihu Root, and other idols of the Republican faith; was summarily relegated to the cellar.

Some time ago the Roosevelt painting was dusted off and rehung in the assembly room, the circumstance presaging the fact that the Colonel was about to be welcomed back into the fold. About two weeks ago some member of the club suggested that the year 1912 was a long way back in history, and that it might be a nice thing to invite the sage of Oyster Bay to take his old place in the councils of the club. The suggestion met with favor, and the Colonel was sounded on the proposal. "Delighted," was the Colonel's answer. When this decision was carried back to the club officials the Executive Committee met and unanimously voted to reinstate the Colonel as a member. The Colonel expressed his appreciation in the following letter to Secretary William S. Denison:

> My Dear Mr. Denison: I am very much pleased, indeed, at the action of the Executive Committee. I accept with the utmost pleasure, and I shall be around at the club very soon.
> With hearty thanks and all good wishes to my fellow-members, faithfully yours,
> THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

It was emphatically denied that William Barnes had resigned from the club. He is still a member, and it was predicted that the efforts of the dove of peace may yet bring about a reconciliation between the Colonel and his long time enemy, the Albany leader.

MAKE CITIZENS OF SOLDIERS

Camp Upton Aliens to the Number of 330 Take Oath of Allegiance.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP UPTON, N. Y., May 22.—It took less than a half hour here today to grant citizenship to 330 soldiers of the National Army, aliens and enemy aliens, who had been subjects of more than thirty different countries. Justice Joseph Morschauser, sitting at Special Term of the Supreme Court, administered the oath of allegiance to the men whose applications for citizenship were accepted, and their papers were furnished them by James F. Richardson, County Clerk of Suffolk County.

Altogether there were naturalized 13 Austrians, 4 Germans, 2 Mexicans, 1 Montenegrin, 1 Portuguese, 24 Turks, including Armenians and Syrians; 2 Belgians and 1 Bulgarian, 6 Danes, 73 British, of whom 25 were negro infantrymen of the 367th Regiment; 8 Greeks, 84 Italians, 7 Dutch, 3 Serbians, 7 Norwegians, 2 Rumanians, 73 Russians, including Poles; 3 Spaniards, and 11 Swedes. There were no French applicants. The Germans were heartily applauded.

Each applicant presented a statement from his company commander attesting his loyalty and was required to have two witnesses. Not one of the applicants had ever before tried to obtain citizenship. The court will sit again tomorrow.

General Bell in an address told the applicants that if they did not want to fight or felt any lingering feeling for their mother countries they should not take the oath. "You can't be loyal," said the General, "unless you can wholeheartedly support the Government of the United States."

Orange Bars Unpatriotic Papers.

ORANGE, N. J., May 22.—Without qualification the West Orange Town Council passed the following resolution: "Resolved, That it is the wish of this council that all news dealers of West Orange refrain from selling or offering for sale unpatriotic or seditious publications. We also call upon all good citizens to refrain from buying the same, and also ask the co-operation of the National Defense League."

TREASON IN LUXURY, SCHURMAN ASSERTS

WOULD BAR PLEASURE CARS

All Physically Fit Men and Women Should Be Freed from Non-Essential Industries, He Says.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 22.—The spendthrift of today is a traitor, the good citizen the man who stints and saves; non-essential industries should be closed down; physically fit men and women should be released from non-essential service and sent into war industries; costly entertainment should cease and civilians should be prohibited from purchasing gasoline for the "luxury" of motoring, said Jacob Gould Schurman, President of Cornell, in his address at the fiftieth annual commencement of the university here today.

It is only by following these tenets that America will win the war, President Schurman said. The war has shown the necessity for athletic and military training for young men and women and they should be put in force after the war, he said. He predicted also that the exraordinary development of science during the war would bring a new era for scholars and scientists in the years to come.

If America screws her courage to the "sticking point" she shall not fail, he said, for behind her "are the men and material resources of all the democracies of the world; with her the inspiring consciousness of a just and righteous cause. It took the American people a long time to find their soul in this war; having found it they will keep it however long the struggle and however great the sacrifices."

In emphasizing the demand for saving and self-denial by the American people, President Schurman said that the reason for this was not that abstention was desirable in itself, but that it was necessary for the efficient supply of our army and navy, and the armies and navies of our allies.

"The nation cannot spare either commodities or services for the mere enjoyment of stay-at-homes," he said. "The time has arrived when the non-essential industries should be closed down just as soon as they can be transformed, or their capital and labor transferred to essential industries. The time has arrived when all physically fit men should be released from non-essential service and sent into war industries; the number of women in domestic service should be greatly reduced, and those who can be spared sent into the war industries; men and women who have not worked should begin to work—with their hands or brains or both.

"The time has arrived when costly entertainments should cease, when gasolene, which is needed for military operations, should in general be denied to civilians for mere luxury motoring. The time has arrived when every man and woman who spend on themselves more than is absolutely necessary should be tabooed as robbers of the public treasury. The spendthrift of today is a traitor. The good citizen is the man who stints and saves. And let him invest what he saves in Government bonds to provide the means for carrying on the war."

Leading up to the assertion that the United States has done all within its power since the beginning of hostilities to harness science and education to its war needs, President Schurman said:

"Germany has the advantage over all her opponents, especially over Great Britain and the United States, in the solid fabric of science she has constructed during the last generation by means of generous Government encouragement of and appropriations for scientific research and instruction. Our Government today, instructed by the war, is ready to spend billions of dollars for new scientific truths in which prior to the war it felt no concern and for which it would make no provisions."

GIRLS VICTIMS OF POMP.

Made Ill by Singing in Cold for Bavarian Royalty.

AMSTERDAM, May 11, (Associated Press.)—Bavarian high school girls, forced by an official order issued "at his Majesty's personal request," have paid tragic tribute to German court pomp, according to the Munich Post.

The occasion was the royal golden wedding celebration, and the school girls were made to assemble, attired in thin white dresses and dilapidated shoes, despite bitter cold and an icy pavement, in front of the royal palace and sing patriotic songs for an hour.

"Two of the girls," the Munich paper relates, "half-starved as they were, have succumbed to consumption. Four others were taken seriously ill, and one is undergoing treatment in the municipal hospital.

"We have no hesitation in declaring that the whole affair is a disgrace at a time like the present, when old and young alike are in an enfeebled condition owing to the lack of sufficient food."

GOLD BASIS FOR SPAIN.

Government Presents a Bill Which, if Passed, Will Have That Effect.

MADRID, May 22.—The Finance Ministry has presented a bill in Parliament the effect of the passage of which would be to place Spain on a gold basis. It provides that silver shall not be legal tender in amounts of more than 50 pesetas, except for payments to the Government. Until facilities have been provided for minting the required amount of gold, foreign gold coins will have currency in Spain, their value in pesetas being stamped on them.

The bill provides that paper currency of the denomination of 25 pesetas shall be withdrawn from circulation after Jan. 1 next. The Government will be authorized to redeem exterior loans, wholly or in part, issuing an internal loan, if necessary, to obtain funds for the operation.

CLAIMS 3,575,000 CAPTIVES.

Germany Boasts of Value of "Our Growing Labor Army."

AMSTERDAM, May 11, (Associated Press.)—"Our growing labor army" is the description applied by the German newspapers to tehir prisoners of war. In an official statement the German people is notified that Germany and her allied States now hold 3,575,000 prisoners.

The statement lays stress on the "supreme value" of these prisoners as manpower for industry and agriculture. They will go far, it is said, to compensate Germany for the men she has had to withdraw from peaceful pursuits for active military service.

"The longer the war lasts the more adaptable and useful these prisoners become," says the official statement.

Borglum Defends His Sculpture.

Special to The New York Times.

COLD SPRING, N. Y., May 22.—Gutzon Borglum was a witness in the Surrogate's Court here today in the case of the Gorham Manufacturing Company against the executors of the estate of Mrs. Julia Butterfield, the suit involving payment for a statue of General Butterfield. Mr. Borglum modeled the statue and the executors hold that it is not a good likeness of the hero of Gettysburg. The sculptor defended his work.

MRS. STOKES DENIES DISLOYAL INTENT

Declares She Never Expected Kansas City Newspaper to Publish Her Anti-War Letter.

CASE READY FOR JURY

Federal Prosecutor in Argument Insists Her Purpose Was to Spread Sedition.

KANSAS CITY, May 22.—Presentation of testimony in the case of Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes, who is on trial in the Federal Court here charged with violation of the Espionage act, was completed this afternoon and argument begun. Final summing up by both sides will take place tomorrow, after which Judge Arba S. Van Valkenburgh will charge the jury. Court officials expect the case to go to the jury about noon.

Elmer B. Silvers, Assistant United States District Attorney, spoke for the Government this afternoon and Seymour Stedman of Chicago for the defense. Mr. Silvers said that the question at issue was the intent or motive behind the signed communication of Mrs. Stokes which appeared in The Kansas City Star and in which she expressed opposition to the Government. He pictured the defendant as having sought every opportunity to spread disloyal propaganda.

Mr. Silvers referred to the address of Mrs. Stokes at Kansas City, which he said, "stirred up a hornet's nest." He declared she saw further opportunity to spread disloyalty in an interview which a reporter "toned down." Enraged, he said, when she saw her seditious declarations misquoted, she dictated and sent the signed letter of correction on which the indictment was based.

In replying Mr. Stedman asserted the freedom of speech and the length to which a citizen might go in criticising the Government in war time were the principal issues involved. He declared Mrs. Stokes's chief concern was that the war might not accomplish the purposes for which America entered it. He argued that the Government must prove motive on each count of the indictment and that Mrs. Stokes had wilfully sought to create mutiny and insubordination. Expression of opposition to the Government, he said, was directed against those in power in the Government, and was, moreover, an expression of opinion rather than fact, based on Mrs. Stokes's reading of statistics indicating that vast profits were being made out of war industries. Whether these figures were correct did not matter, he said.

On taking the stand this morning in continuation of her direct examination, Mrs. Stokes testified that her husband was a member of the Ninth Coast Guard Artillery. She denied that in her communication to The Star she had intended to cause insubordination or obstruct recruiting.

Mrs. Stokes declared the letter written to The Star was dictated in such haste that her exact meaning was not expressed. She explained that she was preparing to leave the city on her speaking tour at the time the letter was written.

"I was in such a hurry," she testified, "that I never even read the copy before sending it to the newspaper. You know I didn't expect The Star to print the letter, as they had repressed a previous interview."

"Do you believe in patriotism in the ordinary sense of love for the country of which you are a citizen?" asked Mr. Silvers.

"I believe in country as exemplified in its people and not by those in control. I love all countries," was the reply.

She admitted selling the transcript of her speech made in Minneapolis to an Eastern magazine in which she had said: "This is a historic event in my life. It is the first time I have ever stood on any platform as an American."

Mr. Silvers quoted from the article statements to the effect that she had refused to rise to the national anthem or salute the flag, and had stated she would rather be shot than do so.

Dr. Eva Harding of Topeka, former candidate for Congress, testified today that she had attended the luncheon given by the Women's Dining Club at which Mrs. Stokes spoke.

Mrs. Stokes, the witness testified, spoke of the "invisible government" which the people "would have to fight after the war." Dr. Harding quoted the defendant as saying there were two elements in this country—the people and the profiteers—and that at the conclusion of the world war would come the crisis.

The people would not fight for dollars, Dr. Harding testified Mrs. Stokes had declared, and therefore the phrase "make the world safe for democracy" had been adopted.

On cross-examination Dr. Harding admitted she had been arrested, tried, and acquitted on a charge of obstructing the draft, but that she had no clear idea of why she had been arrested.

LA FOLLETTE COUNSEL CRITICISES PRESS

St. Paul Speech Was Patriotic, Roe Says, and Senator Was Misquoted.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Counsel for Senator La Follette closed today the argument begun yesterday before the Senate Privileges and Elections Committee in support of a motion to dismiss charges that statements by the Wisconsin Senator in a speech at St. Paul last September were disloyal and seditious. Gilbert M. Roe of New York, the Senator's attorney, concluded with the declaration that Senator La Follette was not disloyal and that to say that in his heart he desired to see the German cause succeed was unthinkable. Two weeks were given to the attorney to file a supplementary brief.

The attorney read from the text of the speech, as submitted by him to the committee, to show that Senator La Follette said that in entering the war this country had "cause for complaint" and "serious grievances" against Germany. He declared if there were any inaccurate statements they were made in good faith by the Senator and with no intention "to put the Administration in a hole."

Mr. Roe declared that the St. Paul speech was highly patriotic and that the charges followed attacks which had been concentrated on the Wisconsin Senator by a "war party" and a "war-mad press." He denied that Senator La Follette said that the carrying of American citizens on a munition-loaded ship was "the only thing that carried us into the war." He said The Chicago Tribune on Sept. 21 last quoted Senator La Follette as saying: "I was not in favor of beginning this war. We had no grievance." Similar statements also appeared in The New York Times and The Washington Post, he said.

"Every Associated Press dispatch carried it that way," Mr. Roe said, adding that all Associated Press newspapers "got that story and printed it that way."

When Senator Walsh of Montana questioned Mr. Roe regarding Senator La Follette's reference to war profiteers, Senator Vardaman of Mississippi interrupted to say if the committee would read the evidence in the Hog Island investigation by a Senate committee "they would find fraud that stinks to Heaven."

Senator Reed of Missouri urged the committee to confine its investigation to the text of the speech. He added that if anybody could show that Senator La Follette was trying to defeat this country in war, instead of merely criticising some member of the Administration, he would be willing to vote to expel him from the Senate.

CONFER ON REVENUE TODAY.

Wilson to Meet Congressional Leaders and Discuss Matter.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Whether revenue legislation shall be undertaken at this session of Congress depends on President Wilson's decision after a conference tomorrow with Congressional leaders, who are strongly in favor of postponing the legislation until next December.

Today the President went over the arguments presented by Secretary McAdoo for enactment of a new tax law before adjournment and he will see Mr. McAdoo again before finally determining whether the Administration shall declare the legislation necessary to preservation of the nation's finances in healthy condition for the war.

All the advice which Secretary McAdoo got today from his advisers having direct charge of administering the revenue law and of planning to meet future financial needs of the Government was that a new measure must be enacted by Fall.

Regardless of Government needs, Secretary McAdoo is represented as believing that the business interests of the nation should know long before February or March the nature and amount of taxes to be assessed on them for this year's business. Members of the Senate and House, however, still are hostile to the enactment of tax legislation on the eve of election.

THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Simeon B. Chittenden to Celebrate Event Today.

Mr. and Mrs Simeon Baldwin Chittenden of 121 Madison Avenue will celebrate their golden wedding this afternoon at their residence. On account of the war there will be only a small reception, members of the family and a few friends. Following the reception there will be a family dinner. Assisting in receiving will be two daughters, Mrs. A. F. Holly and Miss Alice Hill Chittenden, the latter the well-known anti-suffrage leader, who is now engaged in Red Cross work out of the city.

Mrs. James L. Morgan of Brooklyn, a sister, who celebrated her own golden wedding two years ago, will also assist in receiving. Other members of the family who will be present will be Simeon Baldwin Chittenden, Jr., of Cleveland, Ohio, with his wife and children, and another daughter, Mrs. Charles M. Thayer, from Worcester, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Chittenden have spent all of their long married life within the limits of New York. Mr. Chittenden is descended from one of the men who helped to build up Brooklyn, the first Simeon Baldwin Chittenden, a leading merchant, Vice President of the Chamber of Commerce and member of Congress.

Celebrate Corporal Roth's Birthday.

Although Corporal Jesse Roth is in France with the American Expeditionary Forces his twenty-second birthday was celebrated yesterday by his mother, Mrs. Leopold Roth of 636 West 172d Street, who invited the young soldier's friends and twenty children from the Hebrew Orphan Asylum. The children during the afternoon offered a prayer for President Wilson and the soldiers and sailors.

HOLLAND RENEWS ITS SHIP PROTEST

Lansing's Reply Did Not Fully Answer Objections to Seizure, New Note Says.

GERMANS COERCING DUTCH

Prohibition of Sailings Due to Berlin Pressure for Economic Agreement, Rotterdam Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—A supplementary note from the Netherlands Government was delivered to the State Department today by the Netherlands Legation, making response to this Government's reply to Holland's original protest against the recent seizure by the United States Government of the Dutch merchant shipping in American ports.

Secretary Lansing had not had opportunity to examine the communication carefully, and no comment was forthcoming from the State Department. It is understood that the note contends that the United States in its reply did not answer all the objections made by the Dutch Government, and that the Allies, rather than Germany, are responsible for the present plight of Holland in the matter of food shortage.

It is understood that the State Department has inquired whether the Holland Government is willing to have the correspondence relating to the requisitioning of the Dutch ships made public, and that Holland has replied that it has no objection.

Nothing has reached Washington officially in confirmation of the report that the Dutch Government has decreed that Dutch ships shall not sail from Holland. In any event, it is understood, such a measure will not affect the departure from Holland of three vessels to replace the steamers Java, Stella, and Hollandia, the latter from an Argentine port, taking on cargo in the United States under an agreement entered into between the two Governments. As soon as these vessels sail from America three of equivalent tonnage are to be released in Holland. It is not known whether the substitute ship for the Hollandia will come to the United States or to Argentina, this point not yet having been settled in the negotiations now going forward.

The War Trade Board has refused a request of the Dutch Government that three additional Dutch-owned ships in the United States be permitted to sail with foodstuffs for Holland, the Dutch position being that, if three additional vessels are released in Holland at the same time, as required by the War Trade Board, they would have to leave in ballast.

LONDON, May 22.—The prohibition of the departure of all Dutch ships from Dutch ports, the Rotterdam correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says he learns, is connected with a new move by the German Government to compel Holland to sign or Berlin's terms the long-pending economic agreement, which Holland has declined to do owing to the onerous conditions imposed by Germany.

The German Government, accordingly, has refused a safe conduct to Dutch shipping through the war zone, and has seized the steamship Megres, which Holland had chartered to fetch a cargo of wood from Sweden. The seizure was a direct challenge to Holland, and, it is added, the prohibition of further sailings is the sequel.

AMSTERDAM, May 22.—August Phillips, the Dutch Minister to the United States, who recently returned on a leave of absence because of ill-health, has requested that he be relieved of his post at Washington, according to advices from The Hague today. The Minister's request, it is stated, is made on medical advice.

13 MORE LOST ON CYCLOPS.

Transferred from Other Ships to Collier as Passengers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The names of thirteen more members of crews of various vessels of the American navy who are believed to have been lost with the collier Cyclops were made public today by the Navy Department. The announcement was based on additional information just received by the department indicating that these men were transferred from other ships to the Cyclops as passengers and that they were presumably aboard the collier when she sailed on her last voyage. The names follow:

SAVE AVIATORS AT SEA.

Fishing Smack Rescues Flyers Clinging to Disabled Sea Plane.

Special to The New York Times.

FREEPORT, L. I., May 22.—Captain Joseph Carman and the crew of the fishing boat Salmato this afternoon saved two aviators whose seaplane became disabled several miles off shore. They were clinging to the wings of the machine when taken aboard the fishing boat.

Engine trouble compelled the aviators to descend, and for three hours they were in danger of drowning as the air tanks were punctured when the seaplane struck the water. The flyers refused to give their names.

TO EASE PORT CONGESTION.

Dock Commissioner Hulbert Tells of Plans of His Department.

The present shipping congestion in the Port of New York is largely due to the failure of the responsible authorities in the past to look beyond Manhattan Island in the development of the city's waterfront, said Dock Commissioner Murray Hulbert yesterday before the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce. The Commissioner told of the plans of his department to bring about relief by co-operating with the Federal Government for shipping improvements in Jamaica Bay and South Brooklyn.

"If we had not been so provincial in our ideas with respect to the improvement of this port," said Commissioner Hulbert, "we would have seen that the Empire City depended for her supremacy on the development of the harbor as a whole and not upon any restrictive portion. Instead of petitioning the Secretary of War to extend the North River pierhead line further out into the river or frantically digging back into the upland, so as to secure longer piers in an already crowded district, we should have done the perfectly obvious thing, taken advantage of the splendid facilities of the waterfront of Brooklyn and the other boroughs. Had a broad, comprehensive plan been adopted for the whole port it could not have been subjected to any pressure that would have strained its facilities. The plan would have been sufficiently elastic to meet every demand.

"Because of the lack of a broad policy and a national perspective, the outbreak of the war found the facilities of the port totally inadequate to meet the sudden and extensive demands of the various branches of the Government. What I have learned as Dock Commissioner has made me determined to open New York's front door by making the commercial development of Jamaica Bay and Staten Island an actuality."

Commissioner Hulbert said that he believed the $40,000,000 war base warehouses which the Government is constructing at Bay Ridge would pave the way for the building of a tunnel from the terminal of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Greenville, on the New Jersey side of the bay, to Bay Ridge. This, with the giving of Jamaica Bay direct railroad connection with the whole country, would go far toward assuring the commercial future of the port. He said that he had recommended to the Sinking Fund Commission what he considered to be the most effective plan for the utilization of the advantages of Jamaica Bay. This provided for the construction of a bulkhead from Barren Island to Mill Basin, near Bergen Beach, and for the building of fourteen piers extending to the main channel, each to be 1,000 feet in length, with the suggestion that twenty-eight warehouses be erected in the rear of these piers.

FAVORS WOMEN AS POLICE.

Chief Magistrate McAdoo expressed himself in favor of the appointment of women to the Police Department in Jefferson Market Court yesterday morning when he praised the amateur detective work of a girl who appeared in court to prosecute a man charged with petty larceny.

The girl, Jean Reilly, works for the Westcott Express Company as a stenographer, and lives at 351 West Twentieth Street. On Sunday afternoon while seated at a window on the ground floor of her home, she said she saw across the street a wagon of the American Express standing at the curb and two men acting suspiciously. She stated in court that she saw these men take a package from the wagon and proceed down the street with it. She hurried from the house and followed them to Thirtieth Street and Ninth Avenue, where, she said, she saw them hand the package to another man. The two then disappeared.

Miss Reilly appealed to Patrolman Russell of the Twenty-second Precinct, who arrested the man with the package. In court today the prisoner gave his name as Carmine Dedesco, 20 years old, but refused to give an address. Chief Magistrate then held him for trial in Special Sessions.

He turned to Miss Reilly and complimented her on her work, saying:

"Now that we have a special women's division of the Police Department, I shall take great pleasure in recommending you to Commissioner Enright as a member. You have shown exceptional ability and fine citizenship in causing this man's arrest. You have the physique, and should make a fine addition to our force. I wish to thank you for what you have done."

TO HAVE POLICE POWERS.

Reserves to Get Status of Regular Force, Announces Leach.

Acting Commissioner of Police John A. Leach, in addressing 600 officers of New York's 10,000 police reserves at a conference held at Police Headquarters Tuesday night, surprised them with the announcement that the reserves will be installed with the same power vested in the regular police officers of the city. They will be sworn in as peace officers. That will allow them to carry revolvers, wear uniforms and shields and to carry handcuffs and club. The only difference between the regular policemen and the reserves, it was explained, will be in the matter of compensation. The reserves will serve gratuitously. Commissioner Leach instructed the officers to inform the men on the subject. The reserves will be classified as special officers.

GOVERNOR PROMISES AID.

But Writes That Suppression of German Papers Is Federal Matter.

At the preliminary meeting held by Mrs. Oliver Cromwell Field, Chairman of the American Defense Society's Committee for Suppressing All Things German, at the Hotel McAlpin recently, it was decided to send a copy of a resolution calling for the suspension of German language newspapers to Governor Whitman, Mayor Hylan, and the President. The Governor, through his secretary, sent a letter to Mrs. Field yesterday promising that he would act the moment the Federal authorities directed him to do so. The letter, in part, read:

> The Governor is intensely interested in your communication of May 8 and the work which is being furthered by your society. Of course, as yo uknow, certain ideas which are conveyed in your letter are such as would be handled by the Federal Government and any action taken by the State would be at the direction of the Federal authorities.
> You may rest assured that the Governor will do everything possible in assisting your society.

In announcing that the society would soon renew its street speaking campaign, which had been interrupted by poor weather, Mrs. Field added:

"I hope the Federal Government will step in now and take some action. I have just read in one of the newspapers that American prisoners of war are being shamefully treated in German prison camps. One American related that after being in a cell heated to an unnaturally high temperature he was turned out in the snow and required to stand at 'attention' for a certain length of time. And yet at home here we have American mothers who consider my crusade against the German newspapers sheer fanaticism."

REV. DR. M. J. SAVAGE DIES SUDDENLY AT 76

Ex-Pastor of Church of Messiah, Noted for His Advanced Views, Was to Wed in June.

BOSTON, May 22.—The Rev. Dr. Minot J. Savage of Cleveland, Ohio, a leading minister of the Unitarian Church, died suddenly at a hotel here today. Dr. Savage, who was 76 years old, came here two weeks ago and was to have been married in June to Miss Katharine Jones of Brockton. He was ill only a few hours.

Dr. Savage retired from the active ministry in 1906, after serving for ten years as pastor of the Church of the Messiah in New York City. During his career he aroused much public attention because of the advanced views expressed in some of his books.

In his day one of the most direct and forceful speakers the pulpits of this city had ever seen. Dr. Savage, in spite of his mental vigor, suffered throughout his life from illnesses induced by overtried nerves. Born June 10, 1841, he passed a sickly childhood in the small Maine town of Norridgewock, and when the time came prepared for entrance to college, but could not take the course because of poor health. His enforced retirement from the world caused him to turn his thoughts toward religion, and when an opportunity shortly presented itself, he entered the Bangor Theological Seminary, and was graduated in 1864. During Autumn of the same year he married Ella A. Dodge, daughter of the Rev. John S. Dodge of Harvard, Mass.

Dr. Savage became well known in this city when in 1896 he was brought from the Church of the Unity, Boston, to the Church of the Messiah, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, to assist the pastor, the Rev. Robert Collyer, whose strength was beginning to feel the effect of advanced age. He was singled out at once not only because of the fire of his preaching, but also for the originality of his views, and in 1898 succeeded to the pastorate, Dr. Collyer having resigned.

One of his beliefs was that there was communication between living minds without bodily contact, and that living intelligences might be impressed by invisible intelligences. In support of these views he cited experiences of his own and published his books, "Life Beyond Death," and "Can Telepathy Explain?" He maintained that he could not possibly doubt that unseen powers existed, from actual facts to which he was prepared to swear.

But the literary activities of the preacher were by no means limited to this abstruse subject. For thirty years before his retirement from the active pastorate his sermons had been published. He wrote on many subjects, and, altogether, more than thirty works have come from his pen. Among the better known of them are "The Religion of Evolution," "Social Problems," and "The Passing and Permanent in Religion." He was, too, a poet, and published three volumes of verses, most of which had been embodied in his sermons.

AIRMEN FILL TEXAS SKIES.

Formation Flying Furnishes Thrilling Spectacle in All Camps.

DALLAS, Texas, May 22.—The aviators have given Texas another spectacle. Formation flying, which now is being practiced in all the aviation camps, is so "different," so impressive, and so thrilling to witness that it has overcome the ennui with which the average citizen has viewed a sky flecked with individual aviators, and the epidemic of "arched neck," which was common when the aviators first came south to practice, again threatens.

There is something about the appearance of airplanes in formation, each flier rigidly keeping an exact distance from the others, that impresses one with the feeling that these men actually have control of the air. The single airplane may respond to conditions in the air, rising and falling to take advantage of the atmospheric situation, but in formation flying each must maintain his proper place, and the sight of a fleet of machines flying in a triangle or in a square causes the realization that conquest of the air had advanced to a point heretofore unrealized.

Most of those who are now perfecting their skill in formation flying are "bombers." Aviators on this duty must travel in groups, guards flying at the side, before, behind, and above the planes which carry explosives to be dropped upon the enemy. The leader usually flies much higher than the others in the party, not only for the advantage of the additional vision his height will give, but also so as to be able to dart down upon any enemy plane which undertakes to break up the party.

The scout planes travel alone and the aviators who will adhere to this branch of the service are not so much in need of skill at formation flying. Neither is the artillery control branch nor the contact patrol, which latter branch must perfect itself in flying low to report the position of its own and enemy troops during the progress of a battle.

THREE LOST WITH TANKER.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The Navy Department has received a dispatch from Vice Admiral Sims at London stating that the American oil tanker William Rockefeller was torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine in European waters on May 18.

Latest reports indicate that one engineer officer and two men of the engineer force were killed, names not yet known. Eleven officers and sixty-one of the crew have been landed, none seriously injured. The William Rockefeller was an oil tanker of 7,157 tons gross.

Morris Miller, 3 East 105th Street, New York, was paymaster on the Rockefeller, and had crossed the war zone nine times. He was on the Antilles when it was torpedoed and was given up as dead, but after floating four hours was picked up by the Alcedo. The Finland, on which he was coming back to this country, was torpedoed.

Recently in Washington Secretary Daniels asked Miller whether he would prefer sea or shore duty, and Miller replied that he "would see the war through on the sea."

DR. WARBASSE REINSTATED.

Kings County Medical Society Will Investigate Charges Against Him.

Dr. James Peter Warbasse of Brooklyn, dropped from membership in the Kings County Medical Society at a meeting of that organiztion on April 16 last, was on Tuesday night restored to membership, but under charges. About one hundred physicians attended the meeting, which was held in the rooms of the society, 1,313 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn. A letter received from Dr. Warbasse was read, in which he apologized for the article published in a medical journal some weeks ago, in which it was intimated that the rich could obtain certificates from physicians showing they were physically unfit for military duties.

At the conclusion of the meeting the announcement was made that a committee, consisting of Dr. Frederick C. Holden, President of the society, with Dr. John A. Lee, Vice President, and the other officers, was named to investigate the charges and report at the June meeting. Dr. Warbasse was not present at the meeting on Tuesday night, but he had sent letters to the members explaining the article objected to.

Seed Merchants & Growers
114 Chambers St., N. Y. City.
10 per cent of Store's Gross Sales
THURSDAY, MAY 23rd, 1918

DR. MASARYK COMING HERE.

Slavs to Honor Leader of Suppressed Nationalities in Austria.

Dr. Thomas G. Masaryk, ex-Professor of Philosophy in the Czech University of Prague, and now head of the Czechoslovak National Committee, organizer of the Czechoslovak armies which have fought against Austria in Russia and are now fighting in Italy and France, will spend the latter part of this week in New York. His presence here will be made the occasion for a celebration, not only by the Czechoslovaks, but also by other Slavonic nationalities, for he is looked on as one of the greatest Slav scholars and statesmen and is spoken of as the man likely to be the first president of the Bohemian republic if the Allies win complete victory.

The principal event of his stay here will be a mass meeting at Carnegie Hall on Friday night, at which Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler will preside. The speakers, besides Professor Masaryk, will include Senator William J. Kenyon of Iowa and Congressman Adolph J. Sabath of Chicago. Before the meeting a parade of Czech, Slovak, Jugoslav, and Russian organizations will be held, starting from Seventy-first Street and Avenue A, marching through the Bohemian quarter of the upper east side and then into Fifth Avenue at Seventy-second Street. Professor Masaryk will review the procession from the balcony of the Plaza Hotel.

Dr. Masaryk is under sentence of death in Austria. He was born in Moravia in 1850, studied at the Universities of Vienna and Leipsic, and married Miss Charlotte Garrigue of Brooklyn.

GERMANS BLAME MERCIER.

Dr. Hall Says Spain Is Told He Caused Destruction of Churches.

Dr. Edward Hagaman Hall, Secretary of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society, speaking last night before the Laymen's Club of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine on the destruction of the cathedrals and works of art in Europe, said that the Germans have widely distributed a pamphlet in Spain which blames Cardinal Mercier for the German destruction of religious edifices.

The pamphlet states that it was due to "the treachery of Cardinal Mercier that the Germans were forced to teach the Belgians a lesson." The pamphlet adds that seventy-five churches and cathedrals were either destroyed entirely or rendered useless by the German armies.

Dr. Hall showed stereopticon views of the destroyed buildings, of the wanton destruction of tombs, and the desecration of graves by the Teuton invaders. He showed views of the Cathedral of Rheims before and after its destruction, and a large number of other churches, including churches in Italy and Alsace as well as in Northern France and Belgium.

EAST SIDE TO PARADE.

Whitman Will Review the Coming War Savings Demonstration.

Governor Whitman yesterday sent a telegram to the War Savings Committee accepting its invitation to review the east side parade for War Savings on the afternoon of Memorial Day. The reviewing stand will be at St. Mark's Place and Second Avenue. In addition to the Governor, there will be representative of the army and navy, city officials, and members of the War Savings Committee in the reviewing party.

Twenty thousand east siders will be in line as a tribute to their sons who have gone to the front. Among the features of the procession will be a division of peddlers, who are Treasury Department agents, with their push carts; a division of Jewish Red Cross nurses, and a division of east side "war mothers," each with a service flag.

Major Gen. Bell has been requested to send a detachment of east side boys now in training at Camp Upton. Some of the other features will be delegations from the Independent Order of B'rith Abraham, the Educational Alliance, the Henry Street Settlement, the east side schools, and the Yiddish newspapers.

Charles F. Murphy's home district is one of the first to begin War Savings work, in accordance with an arrangement entered into by the two big political parties to boom the sale of Thrift Stamps through their district organizations. Justice Edward F. Boyle, executive member of the regular Democratic organization of the Twelfth Assembly District, announced yesterday that the members had started a pledge chain in the form of a printed card, the acceptance of which obligated the recipient to fill the Thrift Card accompanying it and to pass on the pledge with another Thrift Card to some friend. Two hundred cards were sent out by the organization several days ago, and already the chain has spread throughout the district.

HYLAN LOSES CLERK TO WAR

T. P. Casey, in Mayor's Office Since 1907, Is Called in Draft.

Terence P. Casey, who has been executive clerk of the Mayor's office since 1907, was yesterday called in the draft and ordered to report at Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga., next Sunday. Mr. Casey lives at 2,863 Decatur Avenue, the Bronx, and his salary is $2,340 a year. Yesterday the employes in the Mayor's office gave him a wrist watch. This is the second of the Mayor's private staff who has been called into the service in the last month. The first to go was John F. Sinnott, who was the Mayor's executive secretary. He was ordered to Camp Upton and his place has not yet been filled.

Joseph A. Solovei, personal friend of Mayor Hylan, who was recently appointed head of the Brooklyn Bureau of Street Openings in the Corporation Counsel's office, was yesterday removed from Class 3 in the draft and put in Class 1 by the Appeal Board. Solovei obtained deferred classification from Local Board 86 of Brooklyn upon the ground of dependent relatives. William R. Conklin, Government appeal agent, objected to the action of the board and declared that Solovei's parents are well to do.

TO TEACH X-RAY WORK.

Hunter College Will Train Women to Meet Present Demand.

An X-ray class will be a feature of the Hunter College Summer School, which will open on June 3. The class is formed in response to a demand from hospitals in different parts of the country which need trained workers to supply the places of men who have gone to the front. High school graduates and nurses who have completed a part of their course are eligible for the class. Dr. Elsie Fox will be the instructor. The charge for the tuition is $75, not including the cost of plates.

Two women graduates of a Winter course in bacteriology at Hunter College are now in the army camps with the rank of Second Lieutenant, and later will be sent to the front. A course in clinical pathology is to be opened at the college with daily instruction. As a patriotic offering this Summer, the college will open and give free instruction at its evening classes, except those in X-ray and bacteriology, to the wives, mothers, sisters and daughters of men in the army and navy, an enrollment fee of only $3 being required. A new class in wireless telegraphy is soon to open. There are 142 courses in the Summer schedule of the college. Professor R. B. Earle is in charge.

Marriage and death notices, intended for insertion in The New York Times may be telephoned to 1000 Bryant.

M'ADOO SELECTING RAILROAD CHIEFS

tions out of the rentals received from the Government, and not out of the operating income under Government control. Whether these executives receive the same remuneration that they did before they were deposed is a question which the Railroad Administration will leave for the stockholders and Boards of Directors of the individual lines to decide. The salaries which they receive, however, must not be charged against operating expenses in computing the rentals. These salaries, therefore, must be met directly by the stockholders, and not by the Government.

Saving of $2,000,000 a Year.

The Railroad Administration today declined to make public the salaries which are being received at present by the different railroad Presidents. A comparatively few, it is said, however, are found in the class who receive from $75,000 to $100,000 or more, and the large majority run from $25,000 to $40,000.

The saving that the Railroad Administration will effect by refusing to pay the high salaries of the Presidents is difficult to estimate. It is probable that the total will be at least $2,000,000 annually and possibly considerably more.

Neither has the question of the salaries to be paid to the Federal Managers been settled. It is possible that a few of these will receive as high as $40,000, but such cases will be the exception. In most instances the Government will not pay more than $20,000. The importance of the work will be the basis of the salary.

It is probable that the first announcement concerning Government salaries will be in connection with the sum to be paid Regional Directors. After consulting with these men recently Mr. McAdoo decided that they must appear only as Government employes and accept the Government wage, and to this all agreed.

A. H. Smith, Director for the Eastern region, is said to have received $100,000 or more annually as President of the New York Central System. His present post is considered one of the most important in the Railroad Administration.

It was said today that where the President of a railroad was not named as the Federal manager it was probable that one of the Vice Presidents in charge of operation would be put in charge. The Regional Directors have been keeping in close touch with the situation in order to determine with as little delay as possible upon the men best fitted for the places.

Appointments to Come Soon.

It was understood that the first of the new Federal managers would be named within a day or two, and that the new organization would be completed within a month. C. H. Markham, who has been named Director of the Allegheny Region, was at the offices of the Railroad Administration today for consultation with members of Mr. McAdoo's Cabinet. His region includes the Pennsylvania lines east of and including Pittsburgh and Erie, the Baltimore & Ohio, and other important systems. His recommendations to the Director General are said to be ready for consideration.

The Railroad Administration is determined that its new organization shall be completed in time to prepare fully for transportation conditions necessary to meet demands for shipments of coal and steel and hundreds of thousands of tons of foods and materials for the overseas forces.

It is the ambition and hope of the Railroad Administration, it is said, to handle all war orders and still maintain a system which will call for the least dislocation of the ordinary business of the nation.

How far that policy can be carried out, it is believed, will depend in no small measure on the complete co-operation of all agencies which have to do with the operation of the railroads.

There was a belief expressed today that plenty of work would be found for the railroad Presidents who were not returned as the Federal Managers in charge of the operating policies of their railroads. Some of these Presidents, it was said, had been confronted by the problems of protecting the future of their railroads as well as the desires of the Government to use the individual lines in a manner which might not appear to be to their best interests after the war.

Where such problems arose the Railroad Administration, it was said, had been guided only by the urgent demands of the Government at war, although seeking in every way to protect the interests of the stockholders. It has refused to budge from the position that in the present emergency the only tenable Government policy is one which would best serve the nation, even in opposition to the beliefs of some of the railroad officials.

FORESEEN IN WALL STREET.

Little Adverse Comment on McAdoo's Railroad Order.

Such railroad Presidents, executive officials and Directors of railroads as could be seen yesterday in New York declined to comment for publication on the action of Director General McAdoo in putting Federal managers in charge of the railroads. The reason given in most cases was that, beyond newspaper accounts, they knew nothing about the matter, and were waiting official information as to the new order and its precise meaning.

The general tone of comment in financial circles, however, was very moderate, and in many cases approving, save for the generally expressed opinion that the Director General might possibly have been less abrupt in his manner of making known his decision, where is affected so many interests.

A Director in several big systems prepared a memorandum precisely one month before Mr. McAdoo announced his decision, on April 22 last, predicting that the Director General would take just the action he has taken, that it was inevitable from the circumstances, and advising his fellow Directors to consider what action they would take not only in relation to this particular step, but to the probable general policy of the Director General in cutting down the overhead expenses of all the roads, their salary lists, and their number of employes, to the lowest point consistent with safe and efficient operation. He was, and still is, of the opinion that in the interests of the corporation as distinct from those of the operating property, it will be advisable for the Directors of almost any railroad in this situation to keep the corporate organization intact, so far as possible, even though holding men "in reserve" at high salaries, against the time that the roads are returned to the stockholders.

Another opinion frequently expressed yesterday in one form or another was that the decision of the Director General would be very beneficial in clearing the air, and would be welcomed in many cases by the railroad Presidents themselves, as relieving them from a delicate and embarrassing situation arising from their dual loyalty to the Government as operating agents, and to the Directors and stockholders as corporate officials.

Elements Productive of Friction.

"The whole question of the distinction between Government control and corporate control, where one ends and the other begins, has been so delicate that it is really remarkable that there has been no more friction than has occurred," said another prominent executive, who cited as an instance various questions which had arisen between the Government and the Directors of roads which own and operate large coal properties and have considerable real estate interests, regarding the control of funds, responsibility for which could not be divided between the coal properties and the railroad property.

The majority of bankers and Directors of railroads were of the opinion, that if the Presidents of the roads in which they were interested did not enlist with Mr. McAdoo as his operating men, they should be retained to look after the corporate interests of the companies. The only dissent from this opinion came from a leading banker who is Director of several roads, who said that such cases would have to be dealt with individually, according to the organization of each road and the place filled in it by the President.

"In one case," said this man, "we have a President who is not only the active operating head of the railroad, but an immensely valuable manager of all the financial and business affairs of the corporation—who in that capacity alone is worth many times the salary we pay him. Naturally we want to keep him if we possibly can, no matter what happens to the operation of the road. If he goes with Mr. McAdoo, we feel that we are making a big sacrifice in relinquishing his services.

"On the other hand, there are many other roads in which the President is an operating man, pure and simple, and the Chairman and other members of the board, taking a much more active part in the corporate affairs of the company, look after all that for him. In justice to our stockholders we could not continue to pay a big salary to a man who is nothing but an operating man when we have nothing left for him to operate. However, a man like that will almost certainly go with Mr. McAdoo."

Two other questions which interested the railroad world keenly yesterday were the amount of overhead expense which Mr. McAdoo by this arrangement would succeed in transferring from the shoulders of the Government to that of the railroad corporations, with its effect upon the contract negotiations, and the general reduction in salaries which is expected among the Presidents who stay with Mr. McAdoo.

Regarding the first question, it was pointed out that the problem involves the transference of charges on the railroads' books, from the item of operating expenses to that of deductions from corporate income. The Government, under the law, pays all operating expenses and guarantees the corporations owning the roads a net operating income equal to their average net operating income for three years before they were taken over. Consequently Mr. McAdoo has the authority to discharge any officer or man of any company whose salary is charged against operating expenses, and if the corporation retains him that means it assumes the charge against its rental from the Government. Several prominent railroad officials remarked yesterday that they did not know themselves against which item their salaries were charged, and consequently whether they were Government officials or corporate officials.

May Put Maximum at $15,000.

It is the general opinion that Mr. McAdoo will pay no salaries to his operating men above $20,000 a year, and that it is not improbable he will make $15,000 the maximum—either of these figures, it was pointed out, being larger than the Director General's own salary. This means that the men who accept office as Federal operating agents will make very considerable financial sacrifices.

The average salary of the President of a big railroad is believed to be about $50,000 a year. There are three railroad Presidents who are supposed to have received $100,000 a year, two of whom are now in the Government service, and another executive also in Mr. McAdoo's organization, who received $75,000.

"We have always gone on the theory," said the banker already quoted, "that to secure the best service of a man we made President of a road—and nothing but the best service would do us—we must pay him enough money to relieve him absolutely of all worry about his financial situation and his future, so that he could concentrate every bit of his time and attention and energy on his job.

"It has always been worth the money to us to enable him to have the best doctor and the best dentist in the United States, to have a limousine to carry him to and from his office in stormy weather, and to make sure that he never would be bothered with domestic worries and cares of any description. It usually has taken a man from fifteen to thirty-five years to rise to the Presidency of a big road. After that he is good, if he takes care of himself and his corporation takes good care of him, for ten or twenty years more, and when his service is over we don't want him to go out of office a broken man with no more money saved than enough to give him a bare living."

It was said repeatedly yesterday in Wall Street that the new order increased the probability that the railroads never would be returned to private ownership, at least on the basis on which they existed before last December.

OCCUPIED DISTRICTS TO GET MORE FOOD

WASHINGTON, May 22.—President Wilson today approved arrangements which will remove the menace of starvation which the ten million inhabitants in German-occupied Belgium and France have been facing. Herbert C. Hoover, as Chairman of the Commission for Relief in Belgium, announced tonight that the President had approved the restoring of the fleet of steamers employed by the commission to the original number and the placing at the commission's disposal sufficient tonnage for the dispatch of 90,000 tons of foodstuffs in the next ninety days.

Mr. Hoover said the American and British Governments had undertaken each to find half of the necessary shipping. Adjustments have been made in the American shipping position, including the removal of 50,000 tons from the Cuban sugar trade through reduction in sugar allotments to the confectionery trade.

"As a result of the diversion of a large part of the shipping employed by the Relief Commission to other war purposes," said Mr. Hoover, "it had been necessary to reduce the bread ration to six ounces per diem, this being an ounce below the present German ration, with corresponding reductions in other foodstuffs. Even with the additional shipping, the Belgian ration must be of the most meagre character, but I am confident that actual starvation on a wholesale scale has again been prevented."

THE COTTON MARKET

Nearly everybody had cotton to sell on the local market, and very few had cotton to buy. Most of those who had cotton to buy apparently went upstairs, where an agent of the Alien Property Custodian had 5,891 bales of cotton to dispose of at auction, virtually all of it of good quality and grades coming up to the Government's specifications. This cotton, of known grade and deliverable on the spot for cash, brought prices higher than the official spot cotton quotation on the New York Cotton Exchange for three weeks past—more than 200 points higher than yesterday's official spot quotation—but this had no effect on the futures market, which sold off from 50 to 97 points on the session, closing weak at the low prices of the day and of the current season for 1918 crop months.

At the very opening the bulls were faced with a crop report by one of the most trustworthy private authorities, giving the condition at 82.4, with 2 per cent. increase in acreage and 14 per cent. more fertilizer available. The opening, consequently, was 15 to 59 points off, which made an admirable opportunity for short floor traders, who recently have been acting cautiously and covering on quick turns. They brought the market back 80-odd points, but the Government weekly weather report was fully as good as had been expected, some Wall Street interests offered big blocks of July, and from then on it was a downhill market all the way.

There was a little bargain hunting by trade representatives toward the close, but this amounted to no more than sniping on the outskirts of the market movement, and had no perceptible effect on its progress. July at 23.70 was 1,010 trading points, or $50.50 a bale, below its top price of the season, April 4, of 33.80.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The weekly weather and crop bulletin gave a very favorable report on the progress of the wheat crop during the last week, the main complaints being of too low temperatures in the Northwest and of a lack of moisture in one or two spots in the Far West. On the whole, the crop is doing well and the promise is maintained.

RYE.

CORN.

The corn market experienced a sharp reaction, prices closing with net losses of ¾c to 1¼c. The downward tendency was due largely to a lack of the demand from shorts, which has recently been the principal sustaining factor. In the local cash market No. 3 yellow corn was quoted at $1.50; No. 4 yellow, $1.40, cost and freight, New York.

OATS.

A break of over 2 cents a bushel in the price of May oats in Chicago was looked upon as very strong evidence that the congestion in that position had been relieved, and the whole list was weak in sympathy. The Western cash markets were sharply lower, especially No. 3 white oats, which was quoted at ½c to 1c under May, and it was the prevailing impression that holders of the cash article will tender it for delivery. The local cash market was weak; standard quoted at 85c to 85½c; No. 2 white, 84c; No. 3 white, 82½c to 85c; No. 4 white, 82c to 82½c; fancy clipped white, 85c to 88c; ordinary clipped white, 84c to 85c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The firmer tone to the hog market and comparatively light receipts at Western points caused an early upturn in the provision list, but when grain turned weak in the afternoon prices sold off and closed at about the lowest. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 19,000, estimated for Thursday, 24,000; Kansas City, received 17,000 and Omaha, 16,000 hogs.

COFFEE.

There was further liquidation in the coffee market yesterday, and on the call July broke sharply, opening 17 points below the previous close, with other months showing declines of 2 to 5 points. Trading was quite active after a prolonged period of stagnation, but prices ruled irregular, the close showing net declines of 5 to 12 points. A good part of the demand for the late positions was believed to be trade covering. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

Shipments of raw sugar from Cuba continue liberal, and refiners are amply supplied for the time being and are now in a position to operate their plants on full time. Some interests are still withdrawn, being oversold and trying to catch up on old orders, while others are able to make a better distribution throughout the country, and shipments are said to be fairly prompt.

The International Sugar Committee is now spreading raw sugar purchases over into June, the committee reporting purchases of 395,000 bags Cubas, late May, first half June shipments, at 4.985c, cost and freight, and 80 tons Venezuelas, afloat, at 4.749c, cost, insurance, and freight.

Burns Bros.' Profit $1,449,833.

The report of Burns Brothers, Inc., for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1918, shows net sales of $20,984,483, as compared with $15,285,909 for the previous year, and net profits of $1,449,833, an increase for the year of $160,049, of which $645,820 was carried to profit and loss surplus after payment of all dividends. The company's surplus is now $2,605,584, and the company has reserved for Federal taxes the sum of $458,701.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Stocks closed weak in an active market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Selling on a heavy scale developed in the final hour, causing a sharp reaction throughout the list. Substantial earlier gains were wiped out, and net losses from a fraction to 3 points were registered at the close. Steel, railroad, equipment, and marine shares were the main objectives in the downward drive, induced by the heavy selling pressure.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Irregular, with Losses the Rule—Rails Off on New Order.

After a good beginning stocks again inclined to heaviness yesterday and closed generally under the previous day's final prices. Losses in most issues were small, and while there was some increase in activity over Tuesday's modest total there was evident a growing disposition on the part of traders to free themselves from commitments pending further light on the proposals to reopen the taxation question at an early date. From some source the Stock Exchange obtained a report that the German drive had been resumed in definite fashion, and selling of stocks for a time was credited to this fact. It was also reported over Washington wires that as a result of the decision to leave to the President the matter of enacting new revenue measures Congress would be asked to take up Mr. McAdoo's recommendations.

The movement of prices was irregular, with only a few issues maintaining at the close any of the early gains. The most striking exception in this class was American Cotton Oil, which, after a long period of comparative inactivity became suddenly much in demand and advanced sharply. The railroads moved uncertainly, finally losing ground. The steel shares were rather strong before noon, but made their lowest prices shortly before the close, Steel common reacting to 107⅝ at the end of the session, with the preferred closing a ground. The Marine issues both lost little above par, while the 6 per cent. bonds fell back to 96⅛.

To some extent the selling of the rails was based on the uncertainty created by Mr. McAdoo's abrupt dismissal of all of the railroad Presidents. Among the bankers and executives themselves it was conceded that the operating men had been occupying an anomalous position which the Director General had properly terminated. From the investors' standpoint the turning out of men who had reached their positions in most cases as a result of many years of faithful service reopened doubts as to the intention of the Administration to return the properties to the owners eighteen months after the war. The discharge of all traffic solicitors some weeks ago, followed now by the release of the Presidents, threatens to disrupt railroad organizations to such an extent that, if it be believed that the roads are to be turned back as the law now provides, it will be difficult, if not impossible, to reconstruct the old executive machinery. It is expected that most of the officers will be asked to continue as Government employes and will make the personal secrifice necessary to accept.

Amazement at the ambitious nature of the Government's plans for the steel industry continues to be voiced by trade organs. The Iron Age says that if all of the steel called for in the surprising total made up by the War Industries Board can be put to use in the specified delivery period it is obvious that there will be very little steel left for ordinary consumption. Manufacturers doubt that as much steel as is being called for can be used by shipyards and other Government departments, but the committee has nevertheless gone to work to increase deliveries on the theory that the steel can be made use of as fast as it is called for.

GOOD TONE IN LONDON.

Securities Firm on Prospects of Reinvestment.

LONDON, May 22.—The stock market maintained a good tone today despite the smallness of business. Gilt edge securities were firm on the prospects of the reinvestment of £50,000,000 Government dividends to be disbursed at the end of the month. Shipping shares were in demand on International Mercantile Marine purchase reports. Banking shares were lower and speculative issues quiet.

Money was slightly dearer and discount rates were steady.

Trading Quiet on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, May 22.—Trading was quiet on the bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 58 francs, 30 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs, 15½ centimes. Five per cent. loan, 87 francs, 75 centimes.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Call Loans Renewed at 5 Per Cent. Final Quotation for Day Is 4½%.

The money market was quiet yesterday. Call loans were renewed at 5 per cent., compared with 4½ per cent. on Tuesday, and the final quotation of the day was 4½, as against 6 per cent. There was very little doing in time money, and most maturities commanded 6 per cent., although some 30-day loans were put through at 5½ to 5¾ per cent.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Country's Largest Bank.

The statement of condition of the National City Bank of New York as of May 10, issued in response to the call of the Controller of the Currency, shows deposits of $628,196,000 and total resources of $747,241,000. The National City is the largest banking institution in the United States, and, exclusive of Government banks, is outranked only by three London joint stock banks which recently effected mergers, chief among which is the London City and Midland Bank, Ltd., which, even before its amalgamation with the London Joint Stock Bank, had deposits of $1,102,758,000, and resources of about $1,200,000,000. Forty years ago the deposits of the 2,056 National Banks in the United States amounted to slightly less than the deposits of the National City Bank today. Fifteen years ago the deposits of the 362 National Banks in this State totaled less than $636,000,000, and their aggregate resources were only $1,522,000,000, or about double today's total for the single institution. The report of May 10 is not the highest record made by the National City Bank, its figures for Dec. 31, 1917, showing deposits of more than $705,000,000 and resources of $812,681,000.

Selling a Seat at Auction.

A very unusual, though not unprecedented, action will be the sale at auction, on the floor of the Cotton Exchange on May 31, of the Exchange membership held by G. L. Schiffer, a floor trader, who made an assignment of his affairs after the big break of early April. The sum realized from the sale of his seat will be used to satisfy various claims made against him under the Exchange rules, and the balance will be turned over to his attorney.

A Boost for American Cotton Oil.

Three hundred shares of American Cotton Oil changed hands in the first hour of trading yesterday. At 11 o'clock a sudden outburst of buying appeared which carried the price upward from 38½ to 41⅞ before noon, and to 42⅝ at the maximum of the afternoon. The day's transactions comprised more than 18,000 shares, an exceptional turnover for an ordinarily quiet stock, and the net gain was 4¼ points. The preferred paralleled the common with a 4-point gain. In the first hour the commission houses heard that a prominent firm had sent a message over its wires to branch offices that at 11 o'clock a stock would be named which appeared due for an advance because of its good earnings. On the hour "American Cotton Oil" was flashed out, and orders came pouring in. It has been a long time since a method at all similar to this has been used to stimulate interest in a particular stock, and the Street had something to talk about the rest of the day.

Aetna Explosives Situation.

The decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals as to whether or not the postponed annual meeting of the Aetna Explosives Company may be held at an early date is expected to be handed down at any time. There have been rumors in the financial district for several days that representatives of the common and preferred stockholders have been holding "conversations" over a possible settlement of their differences without further legal manoeuvres, although attorneys interested in the situation said yesterday that no definite results were yet in sight.

Essex County, N. J., Notes Sold.

There was awarded yesterday to J. S. Rippel & Co. of Newark, N. J., $1,000,000 of Essex County, N. J., notes on a 5.14 per cent. basis. There were four notes of $250,000 each. They are dated May 24 and mature Dec. 28.

President Noble Honored.

Governors of the Stock Exchange recorded their appreciation of the services of H. G. S. Noble as President for four years and his acceptance of a fifth term by recording a resolution on their minutes yesterday. The Governors emphasized their gratitude for Mr. Noble's consent to serve again, "mindful of his responsibilities to the nation and regardless of the personal sacrifice involved." Mr. Noble has been a Governor for twenty years. A tablet in the north wall of the Stock Exchange room records his work as a member of the Committee of Five which managed the affairs of the board when it was closed in the Summer and Autumn of 1914.

Chesapeake & Ohio Dividend.

Action on the semi-annual dividend of 2 per cent. on the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company's stock was to have been taken last Friday, but the Directors postponed the matter because permission had not been obtained from Director General of Railroads, Mr. McAdoo, despite the fact that the executives of the road had been promised a definite answer by May 10. Word has not yet been received. Frank Trumbull, Chairman of the Board of Directors, is in Washington.

Rumors Further the Decline.

The pressure against stocks was insistent in the last half hour of business, when big blocks of Steel were offered and Baldwin Locomotive looked especially weak. The bears had forceful influences under which to work in the shape of rumors which appeared early in the afternoon, one being to the effect that additional taxation plans were almost certain to be considered before Congress adjourned.

Emphasizing a Discrepancy.

The auction sale of 5,301 bales of German-owned cotton held yesterday morning in the Cotton Exchange building served to emphasize the disparity between the prices manufacturers are willing to pay for high-grade cotton and the prices of contracts for future delivery, which can be satisfied at a price adjustment by low-grade cotton. With futures declining on the Exchange from 50 to 97 points, and the official spot quotation at 25.70c, there were plenty of bidders for strict to good middling lots of this cotton at 27 to 28 cents and over, premiums of 300 to 380 points on May.

Chain Stores Profiting.

Another of the new chain stores went into the dividend-paying class yesterday with the declaration of an initial quarterly dividend of $1 a share on the common stock of the S. H. Kress Company, payable Aug. 1 to stockholders of record July 20, with regular preferred dividend of 1¾ per cent., payable July 1. Permission was granted yesterday by the Stock Exchange to list the $1,849,100 of the 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock and $9,929,200 of common stock of the reorganized S. S. Kresge Company, another chain store corporation.

The Norwegian Ships.

It is rumored along the waterfront that some of the British shipping corporations, and American shipping concerns with predominantly British connections, are not pleased with the allotment of chartered Norwegian tonnage for operation. The corporations owning these ships are in several cases controlled by British interests, but the ships were all given to strictly American firms to operate by the Shipping Board.

STEEL PRODUCTION HITS A HIGH LEVEL

DUE TO DEMANDS OF WAR

Manufacturers Set to Work to Increase Rapid Deliveries of Plates, Shell Steel, and Rails.

The stimulation imparted to the steel and iron trade by the insistence of war demands, and the emphasis laid on a greater output by the War Industries Board, is finding reflection in production. The current month promises a greater outturn of pig iron, billets, and finished products than any of the last twelve months, according to reports from the trade centres.

The Iron Age hints at a difference of opinion between the War Industries Board and steel makers over the amount of steel which the Government can absorb in a given period. At the same time it is noted that the manufacturers have set to work to increase rapidly deliveries of plates, shell steel, and rails, in which the demand is pressing.

"If all the steel in the surprising total made up by the War Board," this periodical says, "can be applied to ship, projectile, track, car, locomotive, farm implement, oil well, structural, and other war uses in the specified delivery period, there can be no escape from the conclusion that little steel can be had for ordinary consumption this year.

"The most serious factor in the situation is the loss of three months' time in the placing of locomotive and car orders—a delay costing the Allies thousands of tons of steel that by no possibility can now be delivered in 1918. Some of the steel for the new cars has been allocated this week, including 135,000 tons of plates to the Steel Corporation. The total of plates, shapes, and bars for cars is 922,110 tons, deliveries to be made in 120 days, beginning June 20.

"The Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company is about contracting to build and operate for the Government a great plant at Nicetown, Penn., to turn out 16-inch howitzers, additional land being acquired by the Government. For this and the Neville Island gun and projectile plant, which the Steel Corporation has just started to build, more heavy machine tools are wanted than present capacity for such tools can supply, and the Government is urging extensions in that industry.

"Important among the price adjustments announced on May 21 was a $6 per ton advance on cast iron water pipe, a reduction of 25 cents per 100 pound for structural and ship rivets and 15 cents for boiler rivets (a differentiation now being made) and a reduction of about 5 per cent. on smaller rivets. Copper bearing low phosphorus pig iron was advanced $2 per ton."

The Iron Trade Review states that the finished output of the Neville Island plant is to be 25,000 tons of large guns and projectiles monthly. The periodical says further:

"Great Government war enterprises of an iron and steel character continue to develop. A large program of construction in byproduct coke plants, under Government financial auspices, is to be launched. Expectations are that 1,500 additional ovens will be built at different locations. These will serve the double purpose of augmenting the supply of high explosives for military needs, and of fortifying weak spots in the coke situation against the uncertainties of Winter. The new ovens are to be rushed into service. Possible blast furnace extensions figure in these plans. A start along this line already is being made in the Wheeling district. Two new furnaces at St. Louis are being considered."

NO RIGHT TO BAR PAPERS.

Plainfield Council Hears Government Only Has Power to Suppress.

Mayor Leighton Calkins of Plainfield, N. J., advised the Common Council of that city yesterday that it was without legal power to forbid the sale of The New York American and Evening Journal in Plainfield. The Council heeded his advice.

"We should be especially careful in these times not to let our sympathy run away with our judgment," said Mayor Calkins. "Germany's justification of her outrages in Belgium was that necessity knows no law. If the Hearst papers are disloyal and ought to be suppressed the National Government is competent to act, but until it does act I am clear that local authorities should not attempt to exercise authority which does not exist."

Mayor Calkins said the newsdealers at Plainfield had decided not to handle German-language publications, not because they were all disloyal, but because they afford a more ready channel for disloyal or seditious influence, and constitute a sort of potential danger.

TRENTON, N. J., May 22.—Following the suit for $100,000 damages, started a few days ago by The New York American and Evening Journal, and the Newark Newsdealers' Supply Company against Mayor Rufford Franklin of Summit, because he induced dealers not to sell these papers, Justice Gummere today ordered the defendant to answer the suit within twenty days.

The publishing company avers that its business suffered as a result of the boycott of the Summit newsdealers.

ASSAIL EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

Manufacturers Say It Increases Cost of Production Arbitrarily.

The eight-hour law enacted by Congress in June, 1912, was assailed in a resolution adopted yesterday by the National Association of Manufacturers at the final session of the twenty-third annual convention held at the Waldorf-Astoria. The law was charged with unduly increasing the cost of public and private production arbitrarily, and accordingly the association urged upon the War Industries Board the wisdom of recommending to Congress that the power formerly lodged in the President to modify the provisions of the law be restored to him. Resolutions were also passed condemning the rider to the Navy Appropriation bill which prohibits the payment of bonus or cash rewards to employes for efficient services; indorsing the use of trade acceptances in business transactions, and condemning the proposal to establish the metric system of weights and measures in this country in place of the present British system.

The association has for some time been studying the best methods to be used in restoring crippled soldiers to industry, and at the afternoon session yesterday American and Canadian Army officers told what was being accomplished in this direction. It was said that 125,000 crippled soldiers would have to be provided with and trained in occupations after the war. A development of the discussion not planned in the schedule was the demand for vocational employment now for fully 100,000 men and women injured in industrial work.

NAVAL BILL PASSES SENATE IN QUICK TIME

Appropriation Increased $226,000,000—"Stop Watch" Labor System Barred.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The Senate passed today, by a viva voce vote, the $1,615,000,000 Naval Appropriation bill, after exactly four hours and thirty minutes of debate. It was increased about $226,000,000 over the amount originally voted by the House.

Most of the debate on the bill was focussed upon an amendment, which was adopted by a vote of 37 to 22, providing that no part of the appropriation should be available to maintain a "stop-watch" or other time-measuring device upon Government employes engaged in war work. Such a provision has popped up in nearly every naval appropriation bill for years, and has always been adopted. Linked with this provision was one providing against allowing premiums or bonus cash awards to employes on Government war work. This was stricken from the bill by a vote of 37 to 21, so that bonuses may be allowed.

Senators urging the adoption of the provision against the "stop-watch," said they could see no reason why the watch should be held over labor. They believed labor was doing its patriotic duty in the war and would do it without "tab" being kept on it.

Senator Thomas of Colorado pointed out the failure in aircraft production and the deficiency in ordnance.

"We must have artillery, the production of which is distressingly small," urged Senator Thomas. "We are engaged in the mightiest task labor has ever had and we must get the full benefit of labor. I believe we ought to expect a full day's work, and to make sure that we have it. I also favor giving bonuses to men who do especially expert work or whose product stands out."

Senator Townsend of Michigan declared that the "stop-watch" in Government arsenals in Michigan had brought production up to 100 per cent. efficiency.

The bill now goes to conference.

FOG HOLDS UP AERIAL MAIL.

Lieut. Bonsal Started from Here, but Was Forced to Return.

Fog vanquished the "cloudless mail" yesterday and the aerial mail pouches for Philadelphia and Washington left New York on mail trains. Lieutenant Bonsal, with 126 pounds of mail, ascended from Belmont Park at 11:46 o'clock this morning. He returned to the park at 12 o'clock with the message that he ran into fog near Sheepshead Bay so thick he could not see his way.

Philadelphia was notified by telephone. Mail officials there said fog would prevent a flier from starting for New York.

The report of the receiver of the International & Great Northern Railway Company for the calendar year 1917, issued yesterday, shows total operating revenues of $12,588,224, an increase of $1,821,279, compared with 1916; a gain of $957,334 in net revenues, and a surplus above all fixed charges of $1,697,139, an increase of $1,133,099.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Stock Exchange added to the trading list yesterday $2,250,000 voting trust certificate for common stock of the Gulf States Steel Corporation; $1,849,100 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock of the S. S. Kresge Company, and $3,350,000 cumulative 7 per cent. first preferred, $1,925,000 cumulative convertible 7 per cent. second preferred, and 65,000 shares of common stock of the Certain-teed Products Corporation.

The Spectator, the weekly insurance review, is issuing a "Golden Jubilee Number" to commemorate its fiftieth anniversary.

The $159,000 of City of Cincinnati Deficiency 5 per cent. bonds offered recently by A. E. Leach & C., Inc., at 103.18 and interest have all been sold.

Directors of the Atlas Powder Company have declared the regular quarterly common dividend of 2 per cent. and an extra dividend of 3 per cent., payable June 10 to stock of record of May 31.

Eugene V. R. Thayer, Everett B. Sweezy, and Benjamin S. Guinness have been elected Directors of the Duquesne Light Company, and Everett B. Sweezy has also been elected a Director of the Philadelphia Company.

Clement B. Newbold has been elected a Director of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, succeeding the late William H. Barnes.

The annual meeting of the National Board of Fire Underwriters will be held at the Hotel Astor today.

COMMITTEE TO PASS ON SCHOOL MANAGER

To Co-ordinate Business Departments and Bureaus, and Represent the Board.

The Board of Education yesterday referred to a special committee, consisting of Mr. Wilsey, Mr. Ryan, and Mrs. Murray, the matter of appointing an executive manager for the board. This was done after a statement by Mr. Ryan on the subject, in which he said that he had given careful consideration to the proposal, and that there was urgent need for an official who would bring together into closer co-operation all of the business departments and bureaus, who would co-operate with the Superintendent of Schools, the chief executive officer of the department, and who would be the representative of the Board of Education, acting through the President.

The executive manager, he said, should have such powers and perform such duties as the board should determine by by-law or by resolution, or as the President should deem necessary. There were a number of subjects pending before special committees that should be made the subject of investigation by such an official, acting for the board. Just as soon as the board elected an executive manager, he should be empowered to institute these inquiries with the complete co-operation of all the officials and employes of the board. One of the first matters to which his attention would be directed was to study and to report upon the organization of the departments and bureaus.

The by-laws, he said, at present prescribed the duties of the executive manager, but they should be revised to conform to the new State education law. In revising the by-laws early in January the board omitted from the list of officers the executive manager. The position has been placed in classification by the State Civil Service Commission, on Feb. 28, 1917, as in the exempt class. He recommended that the salary be fixed at $8,000 a year.

Tristram Walker Metcalfe, who has been most prominently mentioned for the position, said yesterday that he would not serve in the Department of Education. Alluring as was the position of the executive manager the opportunity for service as school editor was far more attractive. It was doubtful whether the law contemplated or permitted of the creation of a position of power for effective service within the department, such as that contemplated by members of the board. The Superintendent of Schools was under the law the chief executive officer of the school system, as well as the chief professional expert. It was his settled conviction that to establish a position of co-ordinate responsibility and power would in time result in lack of agreement and in friction that would be detrimental to the betterment of the schools. Service in a subordinate capacity would not be as attractive as the opportunities afforded by continuing the work that has now covered the period of more than fifteen years.

The special committee will report to the board next Wednesday. So far as could be learned there is at present no other candidate for the office who is assured of election.

A large number of men and women from Castleton Corners, S. I., were present at the meeting to urge on the board the necessity for a new public school building to replace School 29, which they said was old and insanitary. The new building, they said, should accommodate 1,500 pupils. Reon Barnes, Chairman of the delegation, said that they had raised $81,000 for the new school some months before consolidation, and that when consolidation had occurred he had turned this amount over to the Controller. The money, he said, had been used for other purposes.

On motion of Mr. Prall the matter was referred to the Board of Superintendents, and the delegation from Staten Island was asked to confer with them. The matter would be then reported to the Board of Education and something would probably be done to improve school conditions in that section of the city.

Union Bag and Paper Earnings.

The report of earnings of the Union Bag and Paper Corporation and subsidiaries for the quarter ended April 30, excepting the St. Maurice Paper Company, Ltd., shows balance available for dividends for the quarter of $518,945, as compared with $622,689 for the corresponding period of 1917. Gross earnings were $725,958, as compared with $863,722 the previous year.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 8,662 packages. Prices were fairly sustained during the early trading, the demand absorbing the stock reasonably well. The bulk of the arrivals reached the market after 12 o'clock, and an easier feeling has since developed, with indications of a decline. This applies to all grades of fresh creamery. Ladles are dragging and packing stock shows further slight decline. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 45½@46c; extras, (92 score,) 44½@45c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 42@44c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 37½@41½c; thirds, 35@37c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 47½c; extras, 46½@47c; firsts, 43½@46c; seconds, 40@43c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 44@44½c; good to prime, 41½@43½c; common to fair, 35@41c; renovated, extras, 38½@39c; firsts, 37@38c; lower grades, 33@35c; imitation creamery, firsts, 34@35c; ladles, current make, firsts, 32@33c; seconds, 30½@31c; lower grades, 29@30c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 31c; No. 2, 29½@30c; lower grades, 27@29c.

EGGS.—30,618 cases. The market is in an unsatisfactory condition. The great bulk of the supply arriving lacks quality to satisfy the best class of trade, and the demand for most of the stock is still sluggish, with pressure to sell at generally weak prices. Strictly fine qualities are generally rated steady, and there is demand for better goods than are generally available, for which some buyers might be willing to pay a little more than quoted. Dirties are plentiful and pressed for sale at easier prices. Checks moving slowly unless offered at attractive figures; some interior goods are selling at very low rates. Nearby white eggs of strictly fancy quality are in limited supply, and these meet a moderate demand at sustained prices, but there is still pressure to move accumulations of average good and lower grades, and a very large part of the stock is still reported in range of 37@38c. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 36@37c; storage packed, firsts, 34½@35½c; regular packed, extra firsts, 34½@35c; regular packed, firsts, 32½@34c; seconds and poorer, 28@32c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, storage packed, 29½@30½c; No. 1, regular packed, 29@29½c; No. 2 and poorer, 27@28½c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 27@28½c; under grades, 20@27c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 38@40c; ordinary to prime, 36@37c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 35@38c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 35@37c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby hennery browns, 37@38c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 34@35c. Duck eggs, 39@42c.

ENEMY COTTON SOLD TO AMERICAN MILLS

BOUGHT ON VERDUN PROMISE

Staple Accumulated on Prospect That France Would Be Beaten and Peace Come Quickly.

By order of A. Mitchell Palmer, United States Alien Property Custodian, a great supply of German-owned cotton, which was purchased for German and Austrian use before 1916 in anticipation of the conclusion of peace before the end of that year, was disposed of by public auction at the New York Cotton Exchange yesterday.

The sale aroused unusual interest on the cotton market, the disposition of enemy cotton stored in New York warehouses for two years having been eagerly awaited by cotton dealers ever since the Alien Property Bureau was established.

More than one hundred agents for cotton mills from all parts of the country were on the floor of the auction room when Joseph A. Bower, head of the business department of the Bureau of Alien Property, opened the sale. Inasmuch as the bidding started on the first lots at the high figure of 29¼ cents a pound, most of the smaller buyers quickly subsided, and the scramble for the stock, amounting to 5,391 bales, was confined to eight buyers, the companies they represented being the Southern Product Company, Rodgers & Co., Weil Brothers & Co., Sorrells & Co., E. P. Walker & Co., Samuel Neuburger & Co., Anderson Clayton & Co., and Harris, Irby, Vose & Co.

Most of the cotton sold at an average of between 27¾ cents and 28 cents a pound, with about 300 bales going at 29¼ cents a pound. These figures were considered surprisingly high in view of the fact that the current contract price for cotton to be delivered in July is 24 cents a pound. The Business Department of the Alien Property Bureau had not as yet compiled the results of the sale last night, but it was estimated that it brought about $750,000.

At the New York office of the Alien Property Custodian yesterday no information could be had concerning the history of the cotton further than that it had been held in warehouses here for shipment to Germany and Austria, for two or three years. From other authentic sources, however, it was learned that most of this cotton had been assembled along the Atlantic coast before the beginning of the Verdun assaults in 1916, with the understanding on the part of the agents here that it was to be shipped to Austria and Germany about one month after the fall of Verdun, the German and Austrian buyers being apparently assured by their Governments at the time that Verdun would fall, and that peace would inevitably follow within a month.

As Verdun did not fall in accordance with German expectations and as the seas continued to remain closed to German ships the cotton remained in the warehouses until yesterday, when it was disposed of by the Alien Property Custodian to American buyers. In accordance with the regulations in such matters, the office of the Alien Property Custodian would not reveal the names of the original purchasers of the cotton or the banking agents in this country who acted in their behalf when the cotton was assembled in 1915 and 1916.

As early as October, 1915, German and Austrian agents were busy buying cotton and other commodities in this country for shipment after the war, which they expected to end within a year in a complete German victory. The Germans looked further ahead in the matter of safeguarding supplies of this staple than most American manufacturers on the ground. According to reports at that time the diversion of sulphuric acid from the usual market in the fertilizer trade to the picric acid trade meant a lessened yield of cotton in the following year, and it appeared that the Germans, who realized that they would need large quantities of cotton to replenish their own stocks as soon as the war ended, preferred buying and storing it to risking the chance of a sharp advance in price after the sea routes were opened again.

Just how much cotton now stored in warehouses in this country is enemy owned is a matter upon which the Alien Property Custodian has as yet made public no definite information. The report some months ago that the Government was to take over 1,000,000 bales of German owned cotton was received among cotton brokers and members of the Cotton Exchange with incredulity. At that time there was a total of 83,916 bales of cotton in storage in New York, 725,199 in all of the ports of the United States, and 614,841 bales in interior towns, a total of 1,340,000 bales. That Germans owned 1,000,000 of these bales seemed unbelievable to the trade. Although Germany bought great quantities of cotton at the beginning of the war, men in the trade were inclined to believe that most of it had since been sold and that Germany had certainly not been paying high storage rates on 1,000,000 bales. The 5,391 bales of enemy-owned cotton sold yesterday included practically all of the enemy-owned cotton stored at this port.

FEDERAL LAND BANK

5% Farm Loan Bonds

Issued under the direction and control of the Federal Farm Loan Board, a bureau of the Treasury Department of the United States

Dated May 1, 1918 — Due May 1, 1938

Redeemable at par and accrued interest on any interest date after five years from the date of issue. Bonds in coupon or registered form (interchangeable) may be had in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100, $50 and $25. Coupons are payable semi-annually at any Federal Land Bank or Federal Reserve Bank.

Exempt from Federal, State, Municipal and Local Taxation

Federal Land Bank bonds are declared by Congress to be instrumentalities of the Government of the United States, and as such are exempt from Federal, State, Municipal and local taxation.

These bonds, therefore, have as complete exemption from taxation as the First Liberty Loan 3½% bonds.

The Federal Land Banks were created by the United States Government to meet the agricultural needs of the country; as the Federal Reserve Banks were designed to meet the mercantile and manufacturing needs.

These bonds are acceptable by the United States Treasury at par as security for Government deposits, including Postal Savings Funds. They are lawful investments for all fiduciary and trust funds under the jurisdiction and control of the Federal Government, and are eligible for investment by savings banks in the following states:

Arkansas, California, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming

The Federal Farm Loan Board, which administers the Federal Land Bank System, is a bureau of the Treasury Department of the United States. The Secretary of the Treasury is a member and the Chairman ex-officio of the Board. The continental United States is divided into twelve districts, each having a Federal Land Bank which issues the bonds, secured by bonds of the United States Government, or guaranteed First Mortgages approved by the Federal Farm Loan Board. The Banks have an aggregate capital of over $13,000,000, nearly $9,000,000 of which is now owned by the United States Government. All twelve Federal Land Banks are liable for the ultimate payment of all bonds issued by each and every Federal Land Bank.

The Attorney General of the United States on behalf of the Government, and the Hon. Charles E. Hughes on our behalf, have approved the constitutionality of the Act and the validity of the provisions exempting the bonds from taxation.

FRANCE HAS RIVAL TO FLYING TANK

PROVED IN TRIAL FLIGHTS

Speaking before the Society of Municipal Engineers last night at the Engineering Societies Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street, Augustus Post, Secretary of the Aerial League of America, who has just returned from the western front, where he studied air fighting methods, said that France soon would place in service a large type of machine which would be a match for the German "flying tank." He said that the French machine was heavily armored and that the plane had performed so well in trials back of the lines that he had been much surprised to learn that the German, rather than the French, flying tank had been the first to get into actual service. He said that one machine he had seen was capable of bearing the famous French "75" gun.

Brings Messages from France.

Mr. Post prefaced his scheduled paper on the development of air fighting with messages from President Poincaré, Premier Clemenceau, and General Pershing, which, he said, they had asked him to carry to America. President Poincaré's message was:

"Send us aviators like the Lafayette Escadrille and send us airplanes, and the war will end quickly and in a decisive victory."

M. Clemenceau, according to Mr. Post, spoke as follows:

"America has been known for her accomplishments in material things, but from now will be known for what she will do in raising the morale of the world. It will be the American spirit that, permeating the Allies, will bring decisive victory."

General Pershing's message, said Mr. Post, was a request that the country become a unit in support of the men on the firing lines. The General added that persons writing to soldiers should emphasize the loyalty of the nation, thereby heartening the fighters.

Liberty Motor Production.

Mr. Post told his audience that he had good authority for the statement that more than 1,000 Liberty motors thus far had passed the Government's test of fifty hours of continuous operation. Mr. Post also said that a factory, the name of which he refused to divulge, had cast, machined, assembled, and put into operation a Liberty motor within sixty days after work was begun.

Discussing the production of airplane motors, Mr. Post said that although manufacturers had been hampered at first by repeated changes in the specifications they had at last received the final design and that the factories now were turning out the motors in quantity. He said that manufacturers had informed him that the peak of motor production should be reached in July and that the facilities of the plants then would be equal to the task of maintaining peak production indefinitely.

He asserted that one pattern of the Liberty motor, as at last approved, weighed only thirty-seven pounds and supplied power capable of lifting an airplane more than 2,000 feet a minute. This capacity, credited to the Liberty motor by Mr. Post, is vastly superior to the power of foreign motors, the best of which have sent machines up 13,000 feet in about eleven minutes, the average performance being approximately 1,000 feet a minute.

Mr. Post's statements were made in response to questions from his audience. Concerning facilities for transporting the completed planes to France, Mr. Post said that airplanes of large size would require space in a ship equal that required for fifty tons of cargo. He added, however, that definite arrangements for the transportation of aircraft abroad had been left to the Shipping Board.

Describes Training Methods.

Mr. Post said that he had watched the training of American aviators at French fields, and that our airmen had become extremely proficient in "group fighting." This, he explained, was flying at the enemy in the form of a V and enveloping him in a circle of aircraft. He paid tribute to the efficiency of the air defenses of Paris, which, he said, had foiled the visits of Zeppelins and made the calls of Gothas infrequent. He said the French capital was girded by anti-aircraft stations well equipped with searchlights, special guns, and microphones, the latter for detecting from afar the hum of an approaching craft.

The speaker also informed his auditors that Allan Ryan, Deputy Police Commissioner, had told him that plans were being formulated to protect this city against hostile raiders. Mr. Post said that the plans contemplated searchlight patrols and all the other protective measures.

The speaker praised the work of the British fleet in the North Sea and the pilots of the British Air Service, particularly the "Blimps." Mr. Post said that special inventions on the Blimps permitted the pilots to make out the outlines of a lurking submarine even though the boat was sixty-five feet under water. Many of the submarines, he said, had been captured lately, and in the logs of some of them this entry had occurred frequently: "Forced to submerge because of air patrols."

Mr. Post, in closing, urged that the Air Mail Service be used by business men. He said that air men looked for the establishment of a coast-to-coast mail service after the war, the flight to San Francisco being figured as a three-day trip, allowing time for relays.

TO DISPLAY ITALIAN COLORS

Department Stores Join in Celebration of Italy-America Day.

Department stores in Manhattan, Brooklyn, and the Bronx will celebrate Italy-America Day tomorrow by displaying the Italian colors, by distributing flags and flowers, and by having special Italy-America programs in their institutions.

The last remaining box for the concert at the Metropolitan Opera House tomorrow night was sold yesterday to A. Portfolio for $1,100. The concert will close the celebration of Italy-America Day and the proceeds will go to the Italian Red Cross.

A floral automobile parade will be held tomorrow morning, and will pass down Fifth Avenue from Fifty-ninth Street to Washington Square, where there will be an outdoor festival from 1 to 10 P. M. Clarence Whitehill, Forrest Clement, Mme. Peralta, and Lillian Eubank will sing. President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia will speak, and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt has been invited to make an address.

Calls for Allegiance Pledges.

The latest bulletin issued by the National Canners Association to its members, in addition to giving some interesting facts on sources of credit for the industry, suggests that all employes of canners be made to take an oath of allegiance to the United States. The bulletin contains a form for the purpose and suggests that this action will afford an additional protection and security for goods stored in canners' warehouses. "The form," the bulletin says, "has had the approval of the office of the Quartermaster General of the Army, and it is believed that any person refusing to sign a document of this nature should not be permitted to work in any cannery in the United States during the period of the war."

The quotations are for six months' paper.

French Plumes Coming In Strong.

Small French plumes are used as trimmings on many of the "smart" hats now seen here, particularly on small shapes in rough straws with slightly rolled sides and round, broad crowns. The plume is placed either on the side or centre of the crown, with the tip hanging over the brim. Navy, sand, and black are the leading shades at present, though occasionally these colors are seen with contrasting hues. Among the new hats seen here are "Blue Devil" tans, models known as "Anzacs," and white georgette hats, in transparent effects, made on wire frames.

Drug Trade More Active.

There has been an active inquiry here of late for drugs and pharmaceutical chemicals, in spite of numerous price advances, Drug and Chemical Markets will say today. Stocks continue very limited. Export business in these commodities is expected to improve now that the private ship lines are receiving some encouragement from the Government, which has given assurances that no more vessels will be commandeered except in extreme cases. There has been an advance of $3.50 a pound in refined coumarin, while mercury, in flasks, has fallen off $2. Sodium glycerophosphate has declined 50 cents a pound for crystals. Botanical drugs have advanced again.

Speculators Getting Anxious.

Dealers and others who took "flyers" in staple woolen dress fabrics this season, especially lightweight serges, in the expectation of making tidy profits therefrom, are beginning to doubt the wisdom of their operations, according to reports current locally. The amount of these goods that has appeared on the market since the ending of the Spring wholesale season in women's suits is said to be making more than one of these men somewhat anxious about their holdings and more or less willing to unload at something less than the prices they sought originally. Without going into the question of speculation or concessions, it is a fact that in the Buyers' Wants published in yesterday's TIMES there were sixty offerings of serges, against eight requests for these cloths by buyers.

Women's Sweater Sales Fair.

While the bulk of the advance buying of women's sweaters for Fall already has been done, there is still a fair amount of business being placed in them from day to day. Neither in weave nor in color do the orders differ especially from those placed earlier in the season. Fine Cardigan and fancy "rack" stitches are still among the most actively sought goods, and dainty colors, such as Nile green, turquoise blue, &c., continue to strike the fancy of buyers. Comments differ concerning the sale of sleeveless sweaters for women, but the best indications are that they are not doing as well for Fall as it was thought they would. However, it is said that quite a few of the lighter weight sweaters of this type are being bought for country and beach wear.

Motor Capes Wanted.

Motor coat manufacturers are said to have felt the demand for capes no less than makers of coats for other purposes. Motor capes along distinctly military lines are said to be very actively sought practically everywhere and seem to have proved quite a stimulant to trade. Many of these garments are combinations of sleeveless coats and short capes and are considered very attractive. Navy blue is a popular color, though there are many of the novelty shades, both light and dark, which are having a heavy sale. Leather belts are frequently worn with the sleeveless coat, and the capes are usually held in either with cross belts or with hooks so that the wind will not blow them.

You Never Can Tell.

The story is told of a retailer in the South who, being forced to buy a certain dress which he did not want, found it to be one of his best sellers. He was offered an assortment of dresses at a job price. He liked them all with the exception of this one. But the seller stood firm on his all-or-none offer, and finally the deal was closed for all. The goods reached the buyer's store before he did, and when he finally arrived he was much astonished to learn that the "freak" dress had been sold to the social leader of the town. There subsequently developed a demand for frocks along somewhat similar lines, which proved very profitable to him.

Women's Overalls Selling.

With a constantly increasing number of women throughout the country taking up active outdoor work on the farms, the demand for womens' overalls of every description is reported to be assuming huge proportions. Department stores everywhere are said to be buying these garments in large quantities and to be almost continually sending in substantial duplicate orders. Olive drab seems to be the generally favored color, though grays and blues are also taken. The most popular type seems to be something on the order of bloomers, the trousers being drawn in around the ankle. Many are taken with detachable skirts to be worn to and from work.

Gray Goods Sales Again Small.

Business was again limited in the local gray goods market yesterday, and confined largely to sales of printcloths from first hands. Additional sales of Northern 38½-inch 64-60s, spots, were reported at 19 cents, while for June and July shipment 18½ cents was paid. The latter deliveries were also sold in 38½-inch 60-48s, for which 16 cents was paid. Sheetings and other coarse-yarn goods were again without real feature, largely because of the sold-up condition of most of the mills on these cloths for nearby months and the unwillingness of either buyers or sellers to seek long contract deliveries. Closing spot prices on printcloths were:

39-inch, 68-72s....20½c	38½-inch, 60-52s..16½c

Why Specify Early Delivery?

"Many buyers are ordering early for Fall," said a prominent coat and suit manufacturer yesterday, "and it is right that they should, but why some of them insist on delivery by June 15, or thereabouts, is beyond me. It does not make any particular difference to us, but these fellows not only are thus incurring the expense of storing the garments so ordered, but are tying up a lot of their working capital in this way for several months longer than they need to. This does not seem to me to be good financing, particularly in these times when ready cash is the greatest asset a merchant can have."

NO TRADING IN WOOL.

Uncertainties in the Market Still Exist.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 22.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say tomorrow:

"Because the Government still continues to control the distribution of wool there are no sales to report for the week past. The uncertainties which have been noted in the woolen goods market are still present, and while some believe that certain of the difficult problems will be settled in the comparatively near future, there are many who feel that they will not be settled at all.

"It is becoming more apparent that the amount of goods which will be available from any section of the producing industry will be relatively small for some time to come. Few feel that there will be any great shortage of raw material, but that the inability to operate all the machinery available and other similar conditions, taken together with the large Government requirements, practically will eliminate the production of any large amount of civilian merchandise.

"The cotton futures market for the last week continued at the lower level established on the drop of more than 9 cents a pound culminating May 4. There has been a lack of buying power, exactly as there was a lack of selling during the early Spring, when 35, 40, and even 50 cents a pound was commonly talked of.

"There has been some improvement in the cotton goods market during the last week, and this refers both to the number of sales made and to the prices asked. Unquestionably there is a shortage of goods developing, and the extent of buying will depend largely upon prices and upon the distribution which is noted at retail. Of course, a number of developments could come which would tend to upset prices, but based on a supply and demand basis, there are many styles of goods which unquestionably could be sold at prices higher than those actually noted at the present time. There is a shortage of goods, and this shortage is becoming noticeable because of the Government."

STOP FUSION CASES ON CHARGE OF ERROR

Appellate Division Intervenes and Grand Jury's Work May Be Nullified.

COURT'S STATUS ATTACKED

Election Inspectors Already Serving Sentences Imposed by Justice Goff, Whose Jurisdiction is Questioned.

All of the work of the Extraordinary Term of the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, which includes the conviction of sixty Republican primary election inspectors, now serving terms in the Tombs, and four indictments found against leaders and officers of the Fusion campaign in November, may be declared null and void on the ground that the court was not legally constituted in conformity with the proclamation of Governor Whitman.

The District Attorney and his staff were prepared yesterday to go ahead with the pleadings on the indictments against William Hamlin Childs, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Fusion Committee of 1917; ex-State Senator J. T. Newcomb of the Fusion Campaign Committee; ex-Governor William Sulzer, who was a Fusion speaker, and Timothy Healy, active as a Fusion labor leader, when counsel for Mr. Childs served a copy of an Appellate Division order upon Justice Goff and the District Attorney requiring them to show cause why all further legal proceedings should not be prohibited. Argument upon the order is to be heard by the Appellate Division on May 31.

John B. Stanchfield and Isidor J. Kresel, attorneys for Mr. Childs, raised the point that all the proceedings against their client and the others indicted were illegal and void, because the Grand Jury which acted in the matter had no legal existence and Justice Goff, who presided, had no jurisdiction. Counsel for the defense said:

"The only authority that Justice Goff had to impanel the Grand Jury which found the indictments was by virtue of a proclamation of Governor Whitman convening an extraordinary term of the Supreme Court and designating Justice Goff to preside therein. This proclamation was made by the Governor on July 31, 1917, and by that proclamation the Governor directed that notice of the convening of said extraordinary term should be given by publishing the same in The New York Sun and in The Morning Telegraph once in each two successive weeks.

"This order of the Governor was not complied with because the proclamation and notice were not published in The Morning Telegraph once in each of two successive weeks as required. This having been made to appear to the Appellate Division upon voluminous papers submitted to the court the writ of prohibition was issued."

The argument on the order on May 31 will be to determine whether the prohibition shall be made permanent. If a permanent prohibition should follow all the work of investigation of election cases by the Grand Jury and the work of the court which created the jury will be declared illegal and of no effect.

In the proceedings instituted by Judge Delehanty to contest the right of Judge John F. McIntyre to a seat on the bench in General Sessions, a similar legal question was raised and sustained by the Appellate Division. In that case the Governor issued a proclamation convening an Extraordinary Term of the Supreme Court, directing publication of notice in two newspapers, but it was published in one only. The technical point involved in the present case is that publication was made twice in one week instead of two successive weeks, in The Morning Telegraph.

Most of the sixty Election Inspectors have already served one-half the term of their sentences in the Tombs. Other cases affected include the indictments against ex-State Senator William H. Reynolds, Frank Bailey, Charles A. O'Malley, and William M. Greve, charging alleged conspiracy in the sale of Seaside and Rockaway parks to the city. The cases of three motor cycle policemen, charged with attempted extortion, and three detectives, charged with neglect of duty in connection with the search for the murderer of Ruth Cruger, will be similarly thrown out of court should the District Attorney be unable to convince the higher court of the legality of the proceedings.

"If necessary we will do the work all over again with a new court and jury," said District Attorney Swann yesterday. His office, he said, had nothing to do with the publication of the Governor's proclamation. Usually such publications were ordered direct from Albany, either through the office of the Governor's secretary or by the Secretary of State.

MUST PREVENT BRIBERY BY FOOD DISTRIBUTERS

Administrator Williams Warned by Washington to Make Sure Investigators Are Honest.

Federal Food Administrator Arthur Williams received a communication from the Division of Enforcement of the United States Food Administration at Washington yesterday directing him to take every possible step to prevent any attempt at bribery between food investigators and food distributers. Two cases of bribery or alleged bribery now under investigation in Washington prompted the warning, and the Division of Enforcement points out that "the moral of the whole thing is to use the utmost care" in the selection of representatives, to retain control of their actions, and to "see that the public understands that every decision depends on the facts ascertained by disinterested and competent and honest representatives."

The Federal Food Board announced yesterday that the Food Administration had approve the following decision in the case of Hyman Sklamberg, a wholesale grocer at 71 Ludlow Street: That beginning Tuesday, May 28, Sklamberg's business shall be suspended for thirty days, and for thirty days more he shall not be permited to sell sugar. Sklamberg, whose wholesale grocery business amounted to $1,000,000 a year, had exacted 11, and even 15, cents a pound for granulated sugar. The testimony also showed that he persistently compelled customers to purchase commodities for which they had no use. Although the rule of the Food Administration prohibited any wholesale grocer from selling more than a thousand pounds of sugar at one time, Sklamberg sold 3,500 pounds of granulated and cube sugar in one transaction to a firm in Connecticut.

The Federal Food Board made public a report yesterday showing that the United States consumed in the first year of the war, April, 1917, to April, 1918, 4,109,291 tons of sugar, or 8,218,582,000 pounds. The wholesale price of refined sugar in the United States at the present time is $7.30 per 100 pounds. The regulated wholesale price in Canada is $8.07 per 100 pounds; in the United Kingdom, $12.28, and in Italy, $26.30.

Food Administrator Herbert C. Hoover will visit the Milk and Dairy Farm Exposition in the Grand Central Palace today and will make an address at 2 P. M. at the joint meeting of delegates of the Dairymen's League and other organizations in the auditorium. Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, President of Cornell University, will also speak.

GRACE LUSK ON THE STAND.

WAUKESHA, Wis., May 22.—Grace Lusk took the witness stand late this afternoon at her trial for slaying Mrs. Mary Newman Roberts and revealed details of her life up to the time she first met Dr. David Roberts.

Miss Lusk said that she first met Dr. Roberts at a dinner party which he attended with his wife early in 1913. Later they met at church sociables which Dr. Roberts attended with his wife. She described her health during this period as poor, due largely to overwork, and declared that she was frequently unable to attend to her duties because of severe headaches.

In the early part of the day a score of character witnesses testified to the high reputation borne by the defendant. Evidence was also introduced to show that her grandmother had been the inmate of an insane asylum at one time. Court adjourned after Miss Lusk had been on the stand an hour.

WILL OF RICARDO NARGANES

The will of Ricardo Narganes, member of a well-known Cuban family, who lived here for some years and died on Oct. 3 last, disposes of an estate of more than $1,000,000, the bulk of which went to his five children. In his will he refers to his deceased wife as "model wife and mother, whose death caused me immense suffering." Concerning ex-Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith, with whom he had been associated in the sale of tobacco holdings to the American Tobacco Company, the testator said, "My great confidence in the honesty and justice of R. A. C. Smith, long my friend, has been my motive for not completing the settlement of transactions in which we were both interested."

The testator gave $10,000 for the education of his godchild, Rodolpho Ricardo Davis, and $1,000 to the boy's mother.

LEWIS IS IN FIGHT TO STAY, HE SAYS

"I Am Not the Stalking Horse for Anybody," Declares Attorney General.

WANTS TO DEFEAT WHITMAN

Denies He Is Candidate of William Barnes and Says Republicans Are Dissatisfied with Governor.

Attorney General Merton E. Lewis, who recently announced that he would be a candidate against Governor Whitman in the Republican primaries for the nomination for Governor, in an interview at the Murray Hill Hotel last night made short work of recent reports which had it that he would drop out and give way to another candidate on whom the opposition to the Governor could centre.

"There is not the slightest likelihood of my withdrawal as a candidate," said the Attorney General. "I am in this fight to stay. I am not the stalking horse for anybody. All my cards are on the table. I am in this fight to give the voters, be they few or many, in the Republican primaries a chance to vote for a man who thinks as they do upon questions which now occupy public attention."

According to reports that have been current in Republican circles for many days, even the supporters of the Attorney General's candidacy had taken exception to his statement that he would not to make a rough and tumble fight in the primaries for the Gubernatorial nomination. They wanted a man who would be willing to make an aggressive fight, the reports had it.

"I have not changed my plans in that respect," said Mr. Lewis. "I have sworn to perform certain duties in the Attorney General's office faithfully and to the limit of my ability. I cannot do that and at the same go about the State and make speeches in support of my own candidacy. I will leave that sort of campaigning to the Governor. As far as I am concerned I do not intend to parade my merits on the stump."

Mr. Lewis modified his statement by declaring that he might make one speech either in this city or in Rochester, his home, immediately before the primaries, but that would be all. Commenting on a report that he was regarded as the candidate of William Barnes, former Republican State Chairman, who is bitterly opposed politically to Governor Whitman, Mr. Lewis said:

"I am not the candidate of any individual. I did not ask the permission of any political leader, not even the leader of my own home district, before I announced my candidacy. I do not want to be understood as saying that in an offensive sense, but merely to emphasize that I am making my appeal to the Republican voters in the primaries and not to the leaders. I have up in Albany a stack of letters so high"—Mr. Lewis marked off with his hand a distance of approximately four feet from the ground—"from substantial citizens of prominence in the Republican Party urging me to become a candidate."

Mr. Lewis said there was widespread dissatisfaction among Republicans up State with Governor Whitman, a feeling that he should be defeated for renomination, and that, if nominated, he could not win.

"I am in this fight to defeat Governor Whitman," said the Attorney General.

While many of Mr. Lewis's supporters are preparing to make a fight for an unofficial State convention as the only medium through which a party platform can be promulgated, the Attorney General said that he was not particular whether one was held or not, or whether a platform was adopted or not. Republican State Chairman George A. Glynn has voiced an opinion that the "only platform needed is the record of Governor Whitman."

"I am quite willing to oppose him with no other platform than that," said Mr. Lewis with a laugh. "I certainly shall do nothing to urge the adoption of another. I know what my platform is, and in a spirit of frankness which I think should characterize the course of any candidate for public office in times as serious as these have taken the voters into my confidence, so I am sure they know where I stand."

Mr. Lewis came to the city in connection with the hearings now being conducted in the Attorney General's office in this city on the report of ammunition and fire arms secretly hoarded in this country by agents of the Central Powers. He returned to Albany last night.

KINGDON GOULD AN OFFICER

He Is Now a First Lieutenant in the Interpreters' Corps.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP DIX, WRIGHTSTOWN, N. J., May 22.—Notwithstanding the fact that he recently declined an appointment to the division officers' training camp, with its opportunity to win a commission, Kingdon Gould, son of George J. Gould, who has been on duty with the 78th Division Intelligence Department for several months, has been promoted by a War Department order to the rank of First Lieutenant in the Interpreters' Corps. From private Gould had risen to the rank of Battalion Sergeant Major of the Headquarters Troop. He speaks five languages and can read and write seven.

Continued failure of the authorities and citizens of Wrightstown to make the town sanitary induced Major Gen. Scott to issue an order today forbidding officers and enlisted men to enter the town after 6 o'clock tomorrow morning. The town has been frequented daily by thousands of soldiers and visitors, and the new stores and other business establishments which have sprung up to cater to these crowds represent investments of more than $500,000. Major Gen. Scott explained that the order had been issued only after repeated failures of sanitary officers to get Wrightstown citizens to improve the town. The need for improvements, he said, had been called to their attention in February. The ban would be lifted, he added, only when the demands of the Sanitary Corps are met.

"Wets" and "Drys" Win in Jersey.

ROSELLE, N. J., May 22.—In the local option elections at Roselle and Roselle Park yesterday both the "wets" and "drys" gained victories. In Roselle Park the "wets" won by 390 to 295, while the "drys" were victorious in Roselle by 273 to 258.

Labor Men Uphold Hutchinson.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., May 22.—The delegates to the annual convention of the New Jersey State Building Trades Council voted today to uphold the stand of President Hutchinson of the Carpenters and Joiners' Union against the agreement of the American Federation of Labor with the Government. This agreement provides that in districts dominated by union labor union shops should be maintained in plants doing war work, while in territory only partly organized the open shop should be permitted.

Fines a Justice of the Peace.

Justice of the Peace John L. Coward of Port Chester appeared yesterday in the Traffic Court and was fined $25 for speeding in Broadway. Patrolman Larkin timed Mr. Coward on Saturday from 157th to 161st Street and made a charge of traveling thirty-seven miles an hour against him. Mr. Coward admitted the truth of the charge and told Magistrate House that he was in a hurry.

Bowery Business Building in Cash Transaction—Bronx Properties Traded.

The cash sale of a Bowery business building to an investor was one of the features of a moderately active market yesterday.

Ignatz P. Fleischer purchased from the West Mercer Corporation, James MacMurray, President, the five-story structure at 209 Bowery, covering a lot 25 by 100, 50 feet south of Rivington Street. Jacob Finkelstein & Son negotiated the sale.

The property, which shows an annual rent return of $4,600, is one of twenty-four parcels acquired several months ago by the seller from the Bond and Mortgage Guaranty Company. Mr. Fleischer, who is in the restaurant business, plans extensive alterations and will occupy part of the building.

Bronx Parcels in Trade.

Gross & Herbener have resold to the I. & S. Company, Isidor Teitelbaum, President, 262 and 264 Decatur Avenue, corner of 204th Street, a one-story business building, on a plot 50 by 100.

In part payment the buyer gave 566 Courtlandt Avenue, a three-story business building, on a lot 25 by 100, between 149th and 150th Streets. Eugene J. Busher and Byrne & Baumann were the brokers in the transaction.

Will Vacate Thirty-five Railroad Offices.

By order of the United States Railroad Administration the following offices, heretofore occupied by railroads, have been or soon will be closed, and the leases of the several stores placed in the hands of a sub-committee consisting of H. A. Howarth of the Long Island Railroad Company, Chairman; H. M. Andrews of the Erie, R. D. Van Duzer of the Lehigh Valley, F. A. von Boeschsiaker of the Pennsylvania, and H. R. Wilson of the New York Central. The sub-committee has opened offices at 1,344 Broadway, in charge of Francis M. Valk, as Secretary.

The following stores on Broadway are affected by the order: 84, 94, 149, 170, 171, 172, 236, 237, 377, 387, 398, 899, 1,183, 1,182, 1,196, 1,200, 1232, 1,236, 1,242, 1,244, 1,246, 1,245, 1,270, 1,276, 1,280, 1,282, 1,354, and 1,465; also stores at 149 West Forty-second Street, 501 Fifth Avenue, 487 Fifth Avenue, 263 Fifth Avenue, and 2,094 Seventh Avenue, Manhattan, and at 24 Court Street and 365 Fulton Street, Brooklyn.

It was announced yesterday by the committee that in lieu of the thirty-five above stores joint offices would be opened at the following locations: 64 Broadway, 280 Broadway, 31 to 33 West Thirty-second Street, and 112 West Forty-second Street.

The lease at 64 Broadway was announced last week and the one on West Thirty-second Street on Tuesday. Yesterday George A. Bowman, as broker, reported the lease of the Forty-second Street store, which runs through to 107 and 109 West Forty-first Street, for the James McCreery Realty Corporation.

Buyers for Dwellings.

An investing client of A. M. Kirtland purchased from the Lawyers Mortgage Company 266 West 130th Street, a three-story dwelling, on a lot 18.6 by 99.11. Located near Eighth Avenue.

Gertrude S. Davis purchased from Catherine Gallagher 206 West 142d Street, a three-story private dwelling, on a lot 16.9 by 99.11.

Tenement Sales.

James H. Cruikshank has resold the four-story flat at 215 East 118th Street, between Second and Third avenues, on a plot 18.9 by 100, which he purchased last week from Dr. Hess.

The six-story flat, with stores, 322 East Ninety-fifth Street, on a plot 45 by 100.11, has been sold by the Albany Savings Bank to the A. & J. Realty Corporation.

Bronx Activity.

The Benneson Realty Company sold the one-story garage in course of construction on the east side of Webster Avenue, 250 feet north of 167th Street, on a plot 208 by 98 irregular, running through to Brook Avenue. Alexander Selkin and David Mintz were the brokers. The property was held at $75,000.

J. Clarence Davies sold for Sarah F. Byrnes 650 and 652 East 158th Street, southeast corner of Cauldwell Avenue, two three-story frame flats, on a plot 41 by 41.

Antonio Alvia purchased for improvement from the Dyre Avenue Realty Company a plot 50 by 100, on the northeast corner of Rambouts Avenue and Haight Street.

Brooklyn.

F. C. Sauter sold to Mrs. Margaret J. Slavin the two-story and basement dwelling, 386 Fifth Street, for Mrs. Margaret E. Norman.

J. D. Ranck & Samuel Galitzka sold, for C. Frost to a client, for occupancy, 711 East Twelfth Street, a two-story bungalow on a lot 20 by 100.

B. J. Sforza sold, for the estate of T. G. Bergen, the plot 40 by 80 by 40 by 100, at the northwest corner of Twelfth Avenue and Sixty-fifth Street; also a lot 20 by 100 on the north side of Sixty-sixth Street, 300 feet east of Eleventh Avenue. The Bergen estate was represented by Isaac Cortelyou. The same broker sold for Christina De Falco the lot 20 by 100, on the west side of East First Street, 100 feet north of Avenue X.

Queens Borough Sales.

The Decker Realty Company sold to M. C. Rosenbaum of this city its development consisting of 275 lots at Springfield Gardens North.

The Allyr Tract Realty Corporation sold to J. F. Kinder the dwelling on the northwest corner of Atlantic Avenue and Bigelow Avenue, Woodhaven.

F. J. Bang sold to C. Safranowics the dwelling on the northeast corner of Prince Street and Washington Street, Flushing.

The Bayside Homes Company sold to E. K. Laing the dwelling on the east side of Twenty-eighth Street, 100 feet south of State Street, Flushing.

The Harmen Construction Company sold to F. Fort the dwelling on the east side of Epsilon Place, 113 feet north of Cooper Avenue, Ridgewood, and the dwelling on the east side of Epsilon Place, 308 feet south of Myrtle Avenue, to A. Bauser.

The Hayford Realty Company sold to J. Mathels, Jr., the dwelling and plot, 40 by 96 feet, on the east side of Church Street, 280 feet north of Metropolis Avenue, Jamaica.

Westchester County.

Long Term Eighth Avenue Lease.

Peter Donahue, restaurateur, has leased for a term of ten years from Howard C. Warren, at a rental of about $8,500 net per annum, the four five-story tenements at the southwest corner of Eighth Avenue and Thirty-first Street, on a plot 49 by 100 feet, opposite the Pennsylvania Railroad Station and the Post Office. Extensive alterations are planned by the lessee, who will use the street floor for a restaurant. The upper floors will be remodeled to provide about 100 furnished rooms. Crosby & Biemly were the brokers in the deal.

Commercial Leases.

James A. Sheeran leased for Walter J. M. Donovan to James F. Ring the three-story garage at 255 West Eighty-seventh Street for a term of years.

Spear & Co. rented for the Sixth Avenue and Twenty-third Street Corporation the two stores at 369 and 371 Sixth Avenue to Littman & Pikelny.

The Duross Company leased the store and basement, 132-4-6 West Fourteenth Street to Ernst Bocker for a term of years.

Dunlap & Lloyd, Inc., leased for a term of five years the entire building known as 1 and 2 Sheridan Square, in Greenwich Village, to Clifford Olivette.

M. & L. Hess leased space on the eleventh floor in the Albemarle Building, at 1,107 Broadway, to the New York District, Ordnance Department Production Division, and space on the twelfth floor to the Ordnance Department. The building is now entirely rented.

Horace S. Ely & Co. rented for Catharine Dreyer the six-story building, 335-337 Washington Street, for a long term of years to Arguimbau & Ramos, Inc.

The Charles F. Noyes Company leased the store and basement at 6 Platt Street to the Manhattan Stove Company, and the store and basement at 31 Cleveland Place to D. Vaccaro.

Title Company Buys Back Old Home.

The eleven and thirteen-story office building at 37 to 39 Liberty Street, running through to 44½ to 46 Maiden Lane, formerly the home of the Lawyers Title and Trust Company, was bought back by that Company, as plaintiff, at foreclosure yesterday on a bid of $600,000. It was sold to satisfy a mortgage judgment of $845,000 and interest obtained by the Lawyers Title Company against the Liberty Street Holding Corporation, representing interests identified with the old Jarmulowsky Bank, which acquired the property in 1914. The auction was conducted by Joseph P. Day. The site was originally acquired by the Lawyers Title and Trust Company in 1890.

Realty Notes.

Lawrence McGuire was incorrectly reported yesterday as a receiver of the American Real Estate Company in the sale of the taxpayers at the southeast corner of Third Avenue and 180th Street. The receivers are Alfred E. Marling and Walter C. Noyes.

Plans were filed yesterday for the erection of a twelve-story service station, warehouse, and office building by the Detroit Cadillac Motor Car Company to cover the northwest corner of Columbus Avenue and Sixty-second Street. Fred T. Ley & Co., the architects named in the plans, place the cost at $600,000.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Pressure is generally high except from the lake region northward and in the far Northwest, but the weather was much unsettled in the central valleys, the lake region, New England, and the middle Atlantic States, with quite general showers. Over the remainder of the country, fair weather prevailed.

It is considerably cooler in eastern New England, the Missouri and Middle Mississippi Valleys, and temperatures are also moderately low in the Northwest and the extreme West, where general frosts occurred Wednesday morning.

In the Middle Atlantic States, the lower lake region, the Ohio Valley, the South and Southwest high temperatures continue.

Showers will occur Thursday in New England and the Middle Atlantic States, but with these exception generally fair weather will prevail Thursday and Friday east of the Mississippi River.

It will be cooler Thursday in the Ohio Valley and the lower lake region and warmer Friday in the upper lake region and the Ohio Valley.

Winds for Thursday and Friday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate, shifting with showers; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate, mostly southwest and west, showers Thursday; fair Friday; South Atlantic Coast, gentle to moderate east, except south of the North Carolina Coast; fair.

FORECASTS—TODAY AND FRIDAY.

New Jersey—Unsettled Thursday, probably thunder showers; Friday fair.

New England—Showers Thursday; Friday fair.

Western New York—Fair Thursday and Friday.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

Candidates must be at least 21 years of age. Vacancies occur from time to time in the recreation piers, public baths, park cottages, &c.

United States.

The commission announces for June 18 an examination for assistant editor, Division of Manuscripts, for men. A vacancy in the Division of Manuscripts, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., at a salary ranging from $1,800 to $2,750 a year, will be filled from this examination. The duties will be to assist in preparing the bulletins of the Department of Agriculture for issuance. These duties require ability to comprehend the agricultural and scientific work conducted in the department, to edit the manuscripts efficiently in accordance with their various purposes, and, when necessary, to rewrite technical manuscripts in popular form. Knowledge of both good writing and good printing is essential. It is desired to secure a person with agricultural college training and with considerable experience both as writer and as editor in handling agricultural subjects in an attractive and popular way for a newspaper, a periodical, or an agricultural college or experiment station. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on practical tests, education and experience, published papers or magazine and newspaper articles prepared by the applicant. Under the second subject competitors will be rated upon the sworn statements in their applications and upon corroborative evidence adduced by the commission. Applicants must have reached their twenty-first birthday on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the commission, Washington, D. C.

WHITMAN AFTER LOAFERS.

Announces State Law Will Be Enforced Rigidly on June 1.

ALBANY, May 22.—New York's anti-loafing law will be made effective on June 1 by proclamation of Governor Whitman. The Governor announced his proposed action today in a formal statement.

"After June 1, and during the period of the war," the statement says, "New York State will not afford a haven to idlers and loafers. It will be incumbent upon every able-bodied male person between the ages of 18 and 50 to perform some useful work. The State Industrial Commission will co-operate with the Sheriffs, the State police, and other peace officers throughout the State to find the unemployed and to assign them to jobs which they must fill.

"Owing to the necessity of getting the proper machinery organized and proper forms printed and distributed to the enforcing officers, I am advised that it will not be practicable to put the law into effect before June 1.

"It will be no defense to any one seeking to avoid work to show that he has sufficient income or means to live without work. The State has a right to the productive labor of all its citizens.

"Employers should also realize that their needs cannot be met unless they make them known. I hope, therefore, that employers of labor of all kinds will promptly communicate to the nearest office of the public employment bureau or to the Sheriff of the county their requirements for labor in order that labor may be furnished by them through the registrations of men now out of employment. The State can act merely as the agent between the employer and person seeking employment. Unless employers co-operate with the State in its efforts much of the available labor will go unused."

SPANISH VESSEL SHELLED.

PARIS, May 22.—Apparently having had a severe encounter with a submarine, the Spanish sailing vessel Joaquina, of 333 tons, has been found abandoned and drifting near the African coast by a fishing vessel.

The hull was pierced by numerous shell shots, and there was no trace of the crew, whose fate is unknown.

The Joaquina, which hailed from Barcelona, was towed into the harbor of Las Palmas, Canary Islands.

MORE IRISH ARRESTS IN PLOT ROUND-UP

M. P.'S TO END ABSTENTION

German Agents Said to be in Ireland Now—Dillon Checks Extremists —Aid Sought Here.

LONDON, May 22.—Indications that the Government has not yet completed all the Irish arrests contemplated by it are seen in the apprehension in Dublin late last night of P. F. Burke, the leading Sinn Feiner in the County of Monaghan. A number of Sinn Fein leaders in various districts, after the coup was made in Dublin, evaded the police, who are still on the lookout for them.

The authorities are directing their attention to all persons who are regarded as suspicious, and such men are being stopped in the neighborhood of Dublin and searched. All the best-known men of what is regarded as the revolutionary wing of the Sinn Fein are already in custody, but there is a general impression that many influential participators in the alleged conspiracy are persons never heard of by the Irish public.

Suggests Leaders May Be Dupes.

A leading Nationalist said today to The Associated Press:

"I believe that there are undoubtedly German agents in active operation in Ireland and that they operate at fourth or fifth hand, so that even the Sinn Fein leaders, who think they know everything, are quite possibly the dupes of knaves in the background.

"You must not forget that until the outbreak of the war Sir Roger Casement was a very inconspicuous figure in Irish life and had no prominent association with any Irish movement. There may be half a dozen Casements as little open to apparent suspicion as he then was. All Ireland knew of him was that he was an ex-official of the Foreign Office."

The order for the internment of Sinn Feiners taken in custody, according to a Times dispatch from Dublin, states that if, within seven days from the date of the serving of the internment order, any interned person makes any representation to the Chief Secretary it will be referred to the Advisory Committee which deals with the internment of aliens, and will be considered.

Widow of T. J. Clark Arrested.

DUBLIN, May 22. — Mrs. Thomas J. Clark, whose husband was put to death for the part he took in the Irish uprising in 1916, was arrested today.

A further consignment of Sinn Fein prisoners has left Dublin on the way to England. The group was not one of newly arrested persons, it was stated, but merely a small number who had been heretofore detained at local barracks. According to the local newspapers, Count Plunkett was the only prominent person in the party. There was no demonstration at the dock, as the police officials had been careful to conceal the arrangements for the prisoners' departure from the public.

The Mansion House Anti-Conscription Conference resumed its sittings today, and after a session of two hours adjourned until tomorrow, when a further statement will be issued. It was as the delegate of this conference that the Lord Mayor of Dublin was to proceed to Washington to present to President Wilson a document framed by the conference as a statement of the case of Ireland against conscription. His departure, which already has been considerably delayed, is now further deferred.

A possible hitch in the arrangements for the Mayor's visit to Washington is being discussed in political circles of Dublin. It is held to be illegal under the defense of the Realm act.

The Associated Press correspondent, upon visiting the office of Chief Secretary Shortt in Dublin Castle, found the main entrance gate of the castle closed and bolted. Entrance is now only obtainable by a side street. Inside the castle offices there was bustle and activity throughout the day. Orderlies and dispatch riders were much in evidence, and this led to rumors of further arrests. These rumors appeared to be without foundation in fact, but the correspondent learned that there remains a considerable list of "suspects" who may be taken into custody at any time.

Belfast and Cork Precautions.

Among those early at work at the castle were Viscount French and Major Gen. Shaw, the Commander in Chief, as well as representatives of the military from the Cork and Belfast commands and the heads of the Dublin police and Royal Irish Constabulary. Considerable significance was attached to the calling into conference here of the military chiefs from Belfast and Cork.

The Irish Party's policy of temporary abstention from attendance in Parliament is expected to come to an end as soon as the House of Commons resumes its sittings. Many of the experienced representatives of the party in the House were opposed even to the temporary adoption of this Sinn Fein method.

DILLON REBUKE TO SINN FEIN.

Appeal for American Support of Irish Nationalists.

DUBLIN, May 21.—An appeal to all those of Irish blood in the United States to support the Nationalist Party as "the one party in Ireland which is fighting for Irish liberty without betraying the cause of liberty in other lands" was made today by John Dillon, the Nationalist leader, in an interview with The Associated Press correspondent. [A brief summary of the interview was printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday.]

Mr. Dillon, in this interview, denounced the policy of the Sinn Fein, while arraigning the methods which the British Government had pursued in dealing with the Irish question. After calling attention to the importance of the American public being fully informed of the Irish situation at the present time, he said:

"The Irish Party, at a special meeting held on Thursday of last week, issued a statement from which the following is an extract:

'All the machinery of propaganda controlled by the British Government has been set in motion to blacken the name of Ireland in America and to prejudice the American people and the American Government against the Irish nation. We feel it our duty, as the elected representatives of the Irish nation, to appeal most earnestly to the people of America and the American Government not to be deceived by these propagandist misrepresentations, but to listen to the statement of Ireland's case coming from Irishmen in sympathy with the national aspiration of the people of Ireland and qualified to speak on behalf of the Irish nation.

"At the time the above statement was issued none of us had the slightest information of the intended coup of the Government, but justification for our warning came with dramatic rapidity.

"It is difficult to understand why the Government took action at this particular moment, and why, in Lord French's proclamation, the alleged German plot should be mixed up with conscription, unless on the assumption that the main purpose in the mind of the Government just now is to poison American opinion against the Irish nation.

"The charge made in Lord French's proclamation against the Sinn Fein prisoners is an extremely serious one, and the method adopted by the Government is, so far as I know, unprecedented in British history. They have arrested and deported these men to England without any definite charge being made in legal form against them and without any statement as to whether it is intended to bring them to trial or not. Meanwhile Ireland waits for proof of the alleged pro-German plot.

"For the last three years the British Government and Sir Edward Carson have done the work of Germany in Ireland more effectively than any other agencies that I know of. Three years ago Ireland was in the war with as much enthusiasm as any of the allied nations, and had sent to the front a full proportion of her people as compared with Great Britain or the dominions of the Crown, and Irish soldiers had been in the van of the battle and the post of danger on every one of the Allies' fronts.

"All that has been changed by what Mr. Lloyd George himself was obliged to describe, when Minister of War, as 'stupidity amounting to malignity' on the part of the War Office and the Government.

"Now, I admit that the situation in Ireland is gloomy in the extreme. My attention has been directed to statements that I and the Irish Party of which I am leader have adopted Sinn Fein methods and have joined the Sinn Fein Party. These statements are utterly unfounded and false. So far from that being the case, I am more than ever convinced that the policy of the Sinn Fein is wrong and foolish and bound to end in defeat and disaster.

"Even during the last three weeks, while in the Mansion House conference the Sinn Fein leaders co-operated with us in resisting the enforcement of conscription in Ireland by the British Parliament, they absolutely refused to agree to a party truce, and continued to denounce us because we still believed in constitutional methods; because we aim at a settlement based on full freedom and self-government for Ireland under a friendly settlement with Great Britain, and because we still adhere to the declaration of John Redmond at the outbreak of the war, and believe that the cause of the Allies is the cause of freedom throughout the world.

"The two great forces which have been the root and cause of all of Ireland's trouble in recent years have been, on the one side, the stupidity and insincerity of the British Government, which has absolutely refused under the dictation of Sir Edward Carson to apply in Ireland the principles for which the Allies are fighting in Europe, and, secondly, the unlimited financial resources supplied to the Sinn Fein from New York.

"Therefore, I feel justified in making an urgent appeal to all those of Irish blood in the United States to support the one party in Ireland which is fighting for Irish liberty without betraying the cause of liberty in other lands."

Nationalist Organs Spurn Charge That Ireland Is Pro-German.

DUBLIN, May 22.—"What does America think?" is the question which all schools of Irish opinion have been asking since the arrests of Sinn Fein leaders on Saturday morning. Every faction, in its press, claims the support of American opinion and each section quotes freely whatever American comment it can collect in support of its own particular viewpoint.

Not a single one of today's papers, whether Unionist or Nationalist, omits referring to the American attitude in long leading articles. The Freeman's Journal, the official organ of the Irish Party, heads its editorial page with the following:

"An effort to stampede American opinion has been completely foiled. There is a complete suspension of judgment in America on the charge of pro-German conspiracy against the men arrested. Warnings have been given that proof must be quickly forthcoming or America will come to the conclusion that the plot, if there is a plot, is not a pro-German one."

The Dublin Independent, in a long editorial, accuses the Government of making the arrests "with a view to turning American opinion against Ireland and preventing the Lord Mayor of Dublin, as Ireland's representative, from receiving a fair hearing at Washington. The proclamation of Field Marshal French had scarcely been cabled when there came back quotations from the American press based on the assumption that the story of a German plot was true."

The Dublin correspondent of The London Daily News writes:

"The pivot of the Irish front is in Washington. Dublin is enjoying an unexampled invasion by American newspaper men, and any one who sees the way they go about their work must admit their serious purpose and their open-mindedness to impressions. They have a voracious appetite for the opinions of people who really count and are serving humanity well by sending the facts across the water."

Denis Kilbride, member of Parliament from South Kildare and one of the oldest members of the Irish Party, in a speech to his constituents last night urged Irishmen to put their case against conscription before the American public, which, he said, would judge it justly.

"The tenor of recent comment from America," he said, "is that Americans cannot understand why Irishmen oppose conscription. In view of the fact that conscription is now a fact in the United States. The answer is obvious. If Irishmen are to be conscripted, it is the Irish themselves who should carry it out. It was the people of the United States who imposed conscription there, and Americans would rise in revolt against any other people dictating to them."

The events of the last few days have not drawn as much support to the Sinn Feiners as they expected from the more moderate Irish parties. Indeed, there are indications that the feud between the Sinn Feiners and the Nationalists has only grown more bitter. The Nationalists consider that the Sinn Feiners, by their revolutionary tactics, are spoiling Ireland's best chance of a satisfactory settlement.

If the Sinn Feiners expected that the arrests of their leaders would draw the Nationalists over to the Sinn Fein side they are evidently destined to experience serious disappointment. Indications that the Nationalist Party is preparing to repudiate in the most emphatic way the revolutionary spirit of the Sinn Fein may be found in an editorial in The Evening Telegraph, the official organ of the Nationalists.

"If the Sinn Fein leaders," says this organ, "are guilty of the crime of allowing Ireland to be made a pawn in the game of the Prussian Junkers they will be repudiated and denounced by Nationalist Ireland. If they entered into negotiations with the power which trampled Belgium in the mire, enslaved Poland, brought ruin to Russia, and now threatens to impose a militarist despotism on all the small nations of Europe, the resentment of the Irish people will make itself felt in a most emphatic way.

"Ireland is not and never has been pro-German. Irishmen believe that right and justice are on the side of the Allies. Our people do not forget that hundreds of thousands of their own kith and kin are fighting against the menace of German domination. They would regard any plot or intrigue with Germany as treason to Ireland and treachery to every Irish soldier who has joined the ranks because he believed he was helping to free Ireland. But they are not prepared to swallow vague stories of a German conspiracy without some evidence to sustain the charges."

The Nationalist newspapers in general display unusual caution in dealing with the manifesto issued by the Mansion House conference. The Cork Examiner, an influential Nationalist paper, says:

"The wholesale arrests convey the idea that Ireland has suddenly become pro-German, which clearly is not the fact, as Lord French and his advisers well know. The circumstances of the arrest look singularly like a deep-laid plot against home rule."

The Dublin Daily Express, which is regarded as the organ of the Irish landlords, comments on the Mansion House document as follows:

"Though the manifesto would imply that there is no foundation for the charge of a conspiracy in Ireland to enter into treasonable communication with the German enemy, it is significant that the charge is not repudiated in specific terms. The members of the conference no doubt realize that if such a plot exists—and no Government would say that it did if it did not, for not even the most shop-soiled of political reputations would survive such a scandal—they must carefully consider their duty and obligations."

Missing Woman's Body in Sound

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., May 22.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Mrs. Rebecca Eckstein from a sanitarium at Larchmont on Feb. 26 was cleared up tonight when her body was found floating in Long Island Sound off this place. The identification was made by a brother, Solomon Wolf, of 400 West 150th Street, Manhattan. There was a wedding ring, a gold barpin, and $14 in cash on the body when it was recovered tonight.

THROWN HIGH IN AIR WHEN MAIN BURSTS

WATER POURS INTO TUBE

Goods in Near-by Cellars Set Afloat —Old Subway Escapes Damage and Trains Are Not Delayed.

The lives of five men who were working in the new Seventh Avenue subway under Times Square, about forty feet north of The Times Building, were endangered at 2.25 o'clock this morning when a twelve-inch water main burst and tons of water poured into the cutting. The force of the water was so great that one man was thrown high into the air, but he escaped serious injury. The men working with him were not hurt.

Foremen said that the five workmen were swinging a heavy girder into the new tunnel and that the end of the piece of steel struck the water main and broke it. The man who was nearest the girder was caught in the sudden spurt of water and before those with him could save him he was forced through the wooden covering of the tunnel.

The geyser from the broken main shot through the opening in the street and formed a fountain about forty feet high that drenched persons who were passing the subway kiosk north of THE TIMES Building. Within a few minutes the water had flooded Broadway and part of Forty-third Street and had overflowed the curb at THE TIMES Building. The cellars of the Wallick's Hotel on the northeast corner of Forty-third Street and Broadway and other buildings nearby wee flooded with water, but the stream did not reach the old subway tunnel or the Times Square subway station.

All trolley traffic on the Broadway lines was tied up for about an hour and police lines were thrown around The Times Building to prevent the crowds from getting dangerously near the broken pipe. After the geyser had been playing for about fifteen minutes gangs from the Department of Water Supply got to one of the headgate chambers and shut off the main. It was said that the damage to the new subway would be slight, and that the water would be pumped out in a few hours so that work could be resumed.

Although the men who were in the tunnel escaped with a drenching, the police learned that the man who had been hurled upward with the geyser suffered slight injuries, but these were not serious enough to cause his removal to the hospital. The other men were knocked down in their efforts to escape, but all were able to resume work in the tunnel.

Gangs were sent into build dikes there to prevent the flow of water north in the tunnel, and pumps were set to work immediately.

Broken Hip Costs Church $5,000.

A jury before Supreme Court Justice Goff returned a verdict yesterday for $5,000 in a suit of Mary A. Daly against the Trinity Church Corporation. The plaintiff sued for $25,000 on the ground that she fell and broke her hip while crossing an unlighted driveway leading to Trinity Cemetery, at 155th Street and Amsterdam Avenue. The defense was that the City of New York was responsible for the darkened condition of the street, but Assistant Corporation Counsel Curtis contended that the Trinity Corporation had constructed the driveway across the sidewalk in a negligent manner and was liable.

OFFERS BIG HOSPITAL HERE.

Beth Israel Ready to Erect Institution for Army or Navy.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—On behalf of the Beth Israel Hospital in New York, Representative Siegel of New York today offered to the War and Navy Departments to erect a $1,250,000 hospital for either department, on the square block in New York City bounded by Second Avenue, Livingston Place, and Seventeenth and Eighteenth Streets.

The hospital would be equipped with 500 beds. The Government would have sole use and control of it during the war, or afterward.

Both departments took the offer under advisement.

The offer made through Representative Siegel is for the erection of a fifteen-story hospital building. Funds for the construction are available, and as soon as the offer is accepted work will begin. After the war the building will be taken over by the hospital.

"It had been the plan of the trustees for several years to build a new hospital building, and the plans and finances have been ready for several months," said Louis J. Frank, the superintendent of Beth Israel Hospital now at Jefferson and Cherry Streets. "Our plans were held up by the war, because we thought it would be a patriotic duty not to take the materials needed for the construction of ships, shipyards, and munitions. When we learned that the Government would need many new hospitals we thought it would be patriotic to offer to build this hospital now and turn over the building for the duration of the war, or for such a period as it needed it.

"This would give the Government a hospital at practically no cost to it. The building could be put up in a few months if the material could be spared. I suppose the Government would give some aid in rushing the construction if the building were needed badly. When the Government has no more use for the building the Beth Israel Association would take it back, but we would retain our building in Cherry Street as an adjunct to the new hospital."

OFFICERS' CAMPS ARE SHORT

Room for 4,500 More Men in the Various Training Centres.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Reports received at the War Department today from commanders of a fourth series of reserve officers' training camps show a total attendance materially below that expected. Fewer than 12,000 men have reported for instruction, although provision had been made for 16,500.

The fact that national army divisions are far below their proper strength is given as the reason for the failure of the camps to reach the size desired. It is probable that authority for supplemental selections will be given to division commanders.

SUBWAY STRIKE PLAN.

Men on New Tubes Will Quit on June 1 Unless Pay Is Increased.

The report that all work on the new subways would stop on June 1 unless the demands of the men for increased pay was granted was confirmed last night at a meeting held at 154 East Fifty-fourth Street by the labor unions embracing all employes of the subway contractors. A resolution was adopted that the men would quit on June 1 unless the increased wages asked for were granted from May 15.

Michael Carraher, Secretary of the International Union of Tunnel Subway Constructors, said last night that it would be impossible to keep the men at work after the first of the month unless their demands were met. He added that if the men went out they would go to better paid work, and it would be impossible to fill their places, because of the stringent labor market.

AGREE TO GRANT ARMY AS BIG AS MAY BE NEEDED

President Authorized by Amendment to Draft Constant Stream of New Troops.

APPROVED BY COMMITTEE

Baker Puts Recommendation Before Members and Vote to Adopt It Is Unanimous.

ADDED TO THE ARMY BILL

Rule Will Be Asked to Prevent Defeat in House on a Point of Order.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—On recommendation of Secretary Baker, who appeared before the House Committee on Military Affairs today, the committee agreed to give President Wilson authority to raise an army of practically unlimited size.

The committee unanimously adopted the language proposed by Secretary Baker and assured him that if a point of order should be made against its adoption by the House a special rule would be obtained to force its passage as part of the Army bill.

The text of the provision which Secretary Baker suggested, incorporated in the bill to be reported Saturday, reads:

"The President is hereby authorized to draft, subject to the provisions of the Selective Service act and all acts amendatory thereto, as many men, from year to year, as can be equipped, trained, and used during each fiscal year until the successful termination of the war."

This provision gives the President the extended power he sought, and with the wide authority conferred by the Overman act to co-ordinate and combine bureaus and departments, vastly enlarges his supervision of the conduct of the war.

Representative S. Hubert Dent, Chairman of the Military Committee, who was at first opposed to giving unlimited authority to the President, announced after the meeting of the committee that he would abandon his plan to limit the size of the army to 5,000,000.

As the unlimited power clause in the Army bill can be eliminated by a point of order on the ground that it is new legislation, the committee intends to obtain a special rule to prevent such a point being raised successfully. The point may not be raised if the matter is fully presented to the House. Those who are opposed to the theory of giving the President unlimited authority, say that Congress will not lose its power to prevent the President from going to an extreme not sanctioned by Congress. In case the President should call for an army of a size that may be too large in the opinion of Congress, they say, Congress could refuse an appropriation for the purpose, and thereby limit the President's action.

"We want to give the President everything he asks for," said Representative Fields of Kentucky, ranking Democratic member of the committee. "If he wants 15,000,000 men, he can have them. If he wants $100,000,000,000, he can have that. We do not intend to limit him in any way. There is no limit on the President's decision and no appeal from it, except that Congress may refuse to make the necessary appropriation. But Congress will not do this while the war is in progress, and therefore the President, to all intents and purposes, has the unlimited authority he seeks."

The policy of the Administration, acting under this unlimited authority, will be to keep calling into service and training the drafted men as fast as they can be transported to Europe. During the first ten days of May, 90,000 soldiers were sent abroad. At this rate the American Army will be augmented by nearly 300,000 each month. But with more ships being put into commission each day, the transportation facilities are increasing, and as they increase it is proposed to increase the size of the army. As long as the need for men exists and until Germany is decisively defeated it is the intention, if the bill in its present form becomes a law, to keep sending men over in a constantly increasing stream. Tentative plans of the War Department contemplate an immediate army of 3,000,000 men.

The bill, as it will be reported, carries appropriations and authorizations of about $12,800,000,000. The appropriations amount to something over $9,500,000,000 and the authorizations reach $2,500,000,000. In addition, about $8,000,000,000 for the War Department for heavy artillery is contained in the Fortifications bill, now being considered by the Appropriations Committee.

AMSTERDAM, May 23.—Extreme importance is attached to conferences to be held next month between Baron Burian, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, and the leaders of the Polish Party regarding the future attitude of the Poles in the Austrian Parliament.

The Polish members, it is indicated, will lay down three conditions, the first of which is a guarantee of the integrity of the Kingdom of Poland; the second, a demand for the settlement according to Polish desires of the question of the Province of Cholm, along the Polish border, which was awarded to the Ukraine in the Brest-Litovsk treaty and which Poland desires to reclaim, while the third condition is a stipulation that Galicia shall not be divided.

Whether the Poles can be induced to support the Government or will definitely join the opposition will depend upon the outcome of the conferences over these questions.

WILSON CONSENTS TO DEFER TAX BILL

RESULT OF CONFERENCE

Leaders Also Induce McAdoo to Try to Revise His Revenue Requirements.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—President Wilson has yielded to the united opposition of the House and Senate and has abandoned tentatively his plans for revenue legislation at this session of Congress, it was reported tonight, following a conference of Congressional leaders in revenue matters had with him at the White House.

Secretary McAdoo, while not agreeing definitely with the Congressional leaders, assured them in a later conference that he would inquire carefully into the conditions of the Treasury again and see whether it would be possible to get along until next year without another revenue-raising bill.

The conference at the White House was arranged for early this week as a result of the divergent views of the Congressional leaders and the Secretary of the Treasury. The latter insisted that there was need for a revenue bill before Congress adjourned for the Summer. The chairmen of the Revenue framing committees of Congress disagreed with Mr. McAdoo's conclusions and insisted that no practical purpose could be obtained by the enactment of a revenue bill at this session.

It was decided to refer the matter to the judgment of President Wilson. Secretary McAdoo presented his argument to the President yesterday. His opponents, Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Finance Committee; Senator Martin, Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations; Representative Claude Kitchin, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee; Representative Swager Sherley, Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, and Representative John Garner of Texas, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, participated in the conference with the President tonight.

In the conference of nearly two hours the financial and political situation of the country was fully presented by the Congressional leaders. They gave figures intended to show that there would be sufficient revenue at hand, or means to obtain additional money, to care for all the expenses of Government until next March. The Chairmen of the tax-levying committees and the heads of the committee providing for expenditures informed the President of the amounts of money that would be authorized by this Congress.

One of the strong arguments made was that a good revenue bill could not be written in so brief a time, and that if framed now, on the eve of election, it would be partisan and unsatisfactory both to the public and the Administration. The promise was given to the President that the Ways and Means Committee would prepare a bill during recess, hold long hearings, and have it ready for consideration by the House next December. It was pointed out that, as most of the revenue must come from excess profits and income taxes, which are made up in June, there is no reason for a bill until early next year.

These and other arguments, some of them political, it is reported, brought the President to the side of the Congressional leaders. As they left the President he was reported to have said to them that he agreed with their view if it was at all possible for Secretary McAdoo to find sufficient money to meet the mounting expenditures.

In the hope of reaching a definite conclusion on the problem, which has been perplexing Congressmen for weeks, the leaders left the White House to confer with Secretary McAdoo. They informed Mr. McAdoo of the position of the President and urged him to agree to put revenue legislation off until next December. The Secretary was told that Congress intended scaling down the estimates greatly, and he was told that his own estimates were entirely too high.

While he did not surrender his position, Mr. McAdoo promised to look carefully into the condition of the

WORK OR FIGHT, WARNING TO ALL ON DRAFT ROLLS

Crowder Issues Sweeping Order Aimed at Idlers and Those in Nonuseful Pursuits.

GOES INTO EFFECT ON JULY 1

MAY BE BLOW TO BASEBALL

New Regulation Is Based on Maryland Law and Intended to Meet Man-Power Demand.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Idlers, unemployed and those of draft age not engaged in essential or useful employment will be rounded up for military service unless they apply themselves at once to some sort of labor that will dovetail into the plans of the Administration for winning the war. All such youth of draft age will either have to serve in the army or work.

The plans of the Administration were announced today when Major Gen. Enoch Crowder, the Provost Marshall General disclosed an amendment to the Selective Service law dealing with the matter of compelling men not engaged in useful occupation immediately to apply themselves to some form of labor contributing to the general good.

The new order is aimed at idle men of draft age hanging around pool rooms and race tracks, against men of draft age affiliated with the I. W. W. movement, men serving food or drink in hotels, public places and social clubs, elevator operators, doormen, footmen, ushers and persons connected with games, sports, and amusements.

The action will be supplemented in a few days, it is understood, by a formal appeal to be made by President Wilson to the Governors of the States urging them to set up machinery, similar to the Maryland anti-loafing law, by which all persons between the ages of 18 and 50 are compelled to engage in some useful employment.

During a visit of Governor Harrington of Maryland to the White House a few days ago the matter was discussed. The President was so interested in what the Governor told him about the successful operation of the Maryland anti-loafing law that he asked the Governor to send him a copy of it and suggested a conference between Governor Harrington and General Crowder, which was held on Tuesday.

There is no federal legislation by which persons other than those of draft age can be controlled in the matter of employment, but this can be reached through State executive and other action, as it has been done in Maryland.

War Department Statement.

The sweeping character of the campaign which the Administration has initiated against the idler of draft age is disclosed in the announcement issued this afternoon, which was as follows:

War Department,
Office of the Provost Marshal General, Washington.

Provost Marshal General Crowder today announced an amendment to the Selective Service Regulations which deals with the great question of compelling men not engaged in a useful occupation immediately to apply themselves to some form of labor, contributing to the general good. The idler, too, will find himself confronted with the alternative of finding suitable employment or entering the army.

This regulation provides that after July 1, any registrant who is found by a local board to be a habitual idler or not engaged in some useful occupation shall be summoned before the board, given a chance to explain, and, in the absence of a satisfactory explanation, to be inducted into the

But Heads of Pennsylvania and B. & O. Will Remain with the Corporations.

WINCHELL GETS NEW POST

Appointed Regional Director in South—N. D. Maher Also Named—All Freight Charges on Cash Basis.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—There was much speculation today concerning the men whom William G. McAdoo, Director General of Railroads, would select as Federal Managers for the more important railroad systems under his plan for complete federalization of the carriers.

The best information here was that Mr. McAdoo would act quickly to effect permanent organizations for the principal systems in the East and that some announcement might be expected within a few days.

It was reported that neither Samuel Rea, President of the Pennsylvania Lines, nor Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio, would be named by Mr. McAdoo as a Federal Manager in charge of operation. These systems come under the jurisdiction of the Allegheny region, of which C. H. Markham, formerly President of the Illinois Central, is Director. Mr. Markham was in this city conferring with Mr. McAdoo and the members of his advisory council, and it is probable that he soon will make recommendations affecting these and other lines in the Allegheny region.

The belief was expressed that Vice Presidents in charge of operations of the Pennsylvania and of the Baltimore & Ohio would be named as the Federal Managers who will replace Mr. Rea and Mr. Willard as the executive heads of these roads. It was understood that both Mr. Rea and Mr. Willard preferred to remain as the heads of the corporations to oversee financial problems. In such capacity they would have no control over the operation of the physical properties and would receive their salaries from the railroad companies out of the rentals paid by the Government.

Crowley May Get a Place.

It is generally believed here that Patrick E. Crowley, Vice President and General Manager of the New York Central Lines, will be appointed Federal Manager of that system. Mr. Crowley has been considered "right-hand man" to A. H. Smith, who resigned as President of the New York Central recently to become Federal Director for the Eastern region. Mr. Crowley, it is understood, will be

Allies Forming Big Army of Workmen Behind the Front

PARIS, May 23. — Far-reaching plans for the organization in France of a civilian labor force to carry out engineering work behind the lines, thus releasing American soldiers for duty at the front, were announced today. Already more than 16,000 French, Italian, and other laborers free from military obligations have been engaged and put to work on some of the approximately 1,000 engineering construction and reconstruction jobs, on which Americans were being employed.

The move is the initial step in a plan long contemplated to create a civilian army behind the lines, which may eventually total a quarter of a million men, entirely, if possible, recruited from abroad. This will make it necessary to import American civilian labor. The men already procured comprise a dozen nationalities, including Chinese and Moroccans, who are being shipped to France as rapidly as the Americans need them.

Mrs. Rose P. Stokes Convicted of Disloyalty; Illegal to Impair National Morale, Says Judge

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 23.—Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes, charged with violation of the Espionage act, was convicted by a jury in the Federal Court here tonight on all three counts in the indictment against her.

After conferring with Francis M. Wilson, United States District Attorney, and Seymour Stedman of Chicago, Mrs. Stokes's counsel, Judge Valkenburg announced that he would defer sentence pending a motion for a new trial. He set June 1 as the date for hearing the motion.

Mrs. Stokes received the jury's verdict without the slightest trace of emotion. As she was leaving the courtroom she said to those about her that she intended to go on with her work regardless of the outcome of the case.

"If I keep my health," she said, "I expect to continue my work, and if I should be locked up it would make my efforts tremendously more effective."

The offense for which Mrs. Stokes was convicted carries with it a possible fine of $10,000 or imprisonment for twenty years, or both, on each count.

Pending the ruling upon the motion for a new trial, Mrs. Stokes will continue to be at liberty on bond. The specific act upon which she was indicted was the writing to The Kansas City Star of a signed communication in which she said:

"No Government which is for the profiteers can also be for the people, and I am for the people, while the Government is for the profiteers."

The first count of the indictment charged her with wilfully and knowingly attempting to cause insubordination, disloyalty, mutiny, and refusal of duty in the military and naval forces of the United States. The second count charged her with obstructing the recruiting and enlisting service of the United States, and the third accused her of making and conveying "certain false reports and false statements with the intent on her part to interfere with the operations and success of the military and naval forces of the United States, and to promote the success of the enemies of the United States."

The limit to which critics of the Government may go in time of war and the line between objectionable and unobjectionable criticism were defined by the court in instructing the jury.

"Our armies and navies," the Judge said, "can operate and succeed only so far as they are supported and maintained by the folks at home and the measure of their success depends upon the intensity of their maintenance and support. Any statement made knowingly and wilfully and with intent to promote interference with the operation and success of these forces, and to promote a corresponding success of our enemies, if false and known to be false by the one who makes it, comes within the terms of this act of Congress. Anything which lowers the morale of our forces, which serves to chill enthusiasm, extinguish confidence, and retard co-operation, may very well cause insubordination, disloyalty, or mutiny."

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Thursday, May 23.—It seems today as though there might be a break in the spell of wonderful weather which we have had during these weeks of May. The days have been rich in sun, which poured its gold over the fields of France so that leagues of flowers in the grass have burnished petals, and the nights have not been less wonderful, these nights of white moonlight and of pale sky in which the stars shine coldly.

After the heat of the day officers and men sit outside billets or tents looking up at the stars or watching how the moon fills the fields or gardens about them with a white glamor below the deep blackness of the trees and the inky shadows on the walls.

"The moon has Pierrot's face," said an officer last night. "It seems to smile down on this poor old world with an ironical sadness."

There were soft little sounds in the enchanted garden of an old French château, with moonlight full across its long façade. A bat skimmed to and fro. Some little beast or bird cheeped in the grass. There was the deep breathing of cows lying beside a stream, and in a thicket close to the house a nightingale trilled its love song with passionate experiments in changing notes and rhythm. Then through the still air came another sound, at first no louder than the deep humming of a bee, but very quickly rising in volume to a great drone. It was a drone with a kind of pulsing beat, as though taking breath, and it was the unmistakable menace of a German engine.

A Nightly Warning.

Every night of late this noise has been heard over the British lines and at the beginning of the week the moonlit night was loud with it, and for a long time engine after engine went through the sky invisible except when, once or twice, a German airplane crossed the light of a star and was seen as though a black bat were flying there.

"London bound," said an officer standing near me. And then because he has a home in London like others of us he said beneath his breath: "Curse them!"

But some of those night birds did not go as far as London that time. Heavy crashes and the noise of gunfire told one they were making trouble in France. It was Sunday night, and a very dreadful and damnable thing was done by those German airmen who took advantage of the moon. They flew over to a place which they had seen by day many times, so that they might know it. It is one of the British hospital camps. All the huts there are marked out with the sign of the Red Cross. The Red Cross flag waves above them for any flying man to see.

The enemy should be perfectly familiar with the look and purpose of this collection of buildings and the lay of the ground in which they are placed, but in order, so they say, to destroy military works their bombing squadrons followed the line of the railway and flung their biggest bombs over this area with wanton carelessness of what might happen to men already wounded, and sheltered from further harm in the only sanctuary which this war can given them—under the Red Cross flag.

It was a tragedy of the most frightful kind and by the work of those airmen, whatever their excuse, the German people stored up for themselves one more cause of hate which, after the war, will close them around like a high wall against which the spirit of

Reports Berlin Drafts Convicts to Fill Up Army; Also Strips Munitions Works and Border Garrisons

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Secretary Lansing today received from a diplomatic representative abroad a telegram crediting the correspondent of a newspaper of a neutral country with the statement that German man power had sustained so severe a blow in the recent offensive on the western front that the German Government has been forced to take drastic measures to obtain men for the army.

How trustworthy is this statement is something that cannot be known, but the information as received was made public by the Secretary tonight for what it was worth.

The neutral correspondent asserts that the German Government has found it necessary to form convict battalions; that many men have been taken from munition factories, in some of which only women, children, and old men are left; that the garrisons along the Dutch border have been stripped of men, and that troops have been sent to the western front from Rumania. The latter troops are described as unfit for fighting on the western front because of the "soft war" in which they have been engaged in the east.

The State Department has also received a report from Finland stating that there are only 20,000 German soldiers in Finland and that these were of a very inferior type, indicating that all the available soldiers which Germany had there previously have been taken away for service on the western front.

INCESSANT RAIDS ON WESTERN FRONT

Both Sides Are Active in Trench Assaults, but No Big Action Develops.

FOE'S GUNS KEEP POUNDING

Artillery Fire Especially Severe on the Lys Salient and Along the Avre.

LONDON, May 23.—Raids by both sides continue to be the only infantry activity along the western front, according to the official reports, which chronicle, however, lively artillery fire at various points.

Raids were made by the Germans in the Aveluy Wood sector (north of Albert) and near Hebuterne, (about midway between Albert and Arras.) A counter-raid by the British in Aveluy Wood destroyed a machine gun post.

The British also carried out successful raids in the area south of Arras.

The French troops on the Lys salient captured a few prisoners by a raid north of Bailleul and east of Locre.

Field Marshal Haig's report from British Headquarters in France tonight says:

Hostile raids were repulsed with loss during the night at Aveluy Wood and south of Hebuterne. A German machine gun post in Aveluy Wood was attacked by a party of our troops and the machine gun destroyed.

A few prisoners and a machine gun were captured last night by French troops in a successful raid north of Bailleul and east of Locre.

There is nothing further to report.

The day bulletin of the War Office reads:

The enemy rushed one of our posts in the Aveluy Wood sector last night. Two of our men are missing.

We carried out successful raids in the neighborhood of the Ayette and Leux St. Marc Wood, inflicting a number of casualties on the enemy and capturing a machine gun.

The enemy also attempted to raid our positions in the vicinity of Riez-du-Vinage. He was driven off by rifle and machine gun fire.

The hostile artillery was active last night in the Ancre Valley, south of Lens, east of Robecq, and east of the Forest of Nieppe.

PARIS, May 23.—There was intermittent shelling south of the River Avre, on the Amiens front, the French War Office announced today.

A German raid on French positions in the Bois Mongival failed. French detachments, patrolling in the Champagne, brought in a number of prisoners and some war material.

The War Office announcement tonight says:

The artillery activity was intermittent at various points south of the Avre, but no infantry action took place.

CANADIANS GREET OUR MEN

Fraternal Competition Begins on Northern Line—Americans There Exceed Canadians.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 23.—A Canadian officer on a hurried visit to Paris told me today that the coming of the Americans to Picardy and Flanders had put new life into everybody, and to Lieut. Gen. Currie's corps it was like bringing over a piece of home to them. Fraternal association and competition have already begun among the North Americans. There are already more United States troops than Canadians in the northern area, but the latter are trained to the razor's edge. They rank among the elite divisions of the allied army, and all the Canadians expect their fellow-Americans to acquire the same excellence with a few weeks' experience.

The Canadians have been holding a spearhead position on the British front, and the only complaint heard from them has been that the Boche is neglecting them. Although their spearhead sticks into his ribs he shows no disposition to smash at it. The Canadians have tried every way to coax or devil him into attacks, but in various collisions around Vimy in the last year the boche has acquired a strong distaste for the Canadian style of fighting. The Americans are already getting into touch with Currie's men and their methods.

The Canadian officer said that while Foch as Generalissimo commanded all the forces it was generally expected that when the German offensive opened General Pershing would be found at the head of the American Army where the fighting was hottest and that gradually all the American units would be assembled under his personal command on the northern front. He thought Pershing and Currie two commanders who are typical of America's best in leadership.

OUR PICARDY GUNNERS WRECK FOE'S ARTILLERY

Eight Out of Ten Batteries on That Sector Destroyed by American Gunfire.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 22, (Associated Press.)—Eight out of ten German batteries which have been active in bombarding the American positions on the Picardy front have been destroyed by the American artillerymen since their entry into this sector. Aerial photographs show that direct hits were obtained in most instances.

In addition to this, the American guns have been tearing up the enemy's rear lines and setting his ammunition dumps and billets on fire, while patrols from the American lines have been harassing the Germans nightly. The American resourcefulness on patrol has caused the foe considerable alarm, according to prisoners, who admit that the Americans have few equals in this style of fighting.

HAVOC BY ALLIED BOMBERS

While British, French, and Americans Cause Dismay by Incessant Trench Raids.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, May 22.—Questions as to when the enemy will attack or where the blow will fall have given place to another—why doesn't he attack?

According to all available information, from statements of prisoners, reports of airmen, and other sources, the German preparations have been terminated for some days. Picked divisions have been concentrated in the rear at various points ready to be launched by forced night marches against a given sector. "Used up" divisions have been reconstituted, artillery has been placed in position, and stores of all kinds have been accumulated.

The weather is ideal for the enterprise and the moon is at full. Yet the enemy holds back his hand. Why? Is it in the hope of affecting the nerves of the allied soldiers by continued tension? The incessant and successful activities of the French, British, and Americans in trench raids and local actions would give the lie to that delusion, if the boche were foolish enough to entertain it.

Or is the German Command awaiting more perfect "registration" of the newly brought-up batteries? Hardly—there is reason to suppose that the task has been already performed.

But there are three other reasons for the German failure to put their grandiloquently expressed plans into execution. Any one of them might be sufficient. They are disagreement between the militarist chiefs and other leaders in Germany, allied air activity in all its branches, and, not least important, the weakening morale of the German troops at the front.

Not Waiting for Austria.

A fourth suggestion, that the enemy is waiting for Austria to launch a simultaneous drive against Italy, is hardly adequate. Every hour's respite left to the defenders here augments the difficulty of the assailants' task, and the Germans know well that any advantages that the Austrians—whose army is hardly in a fit state to accomplish much unaided—might gain over the Italians would count little in comparison with success or failure on this front. The events of 1918 prove that the Germans realize the truth of the theory that Foch, Clemenceau, and the other most clear-sighted allied leaders have been preaching since the beginning—it is the French front that is of overwhelming importance, and it is only victory or defeat in France that will really be decisive.

As regards political agreements in Germany, the happenings of the last twelve months show that they certainly exist, and that more than once the militarists—headed by the Crown Prince, who, true to Prussian tradition, appears at variance with his father—have had to bring about a virtual coup d'état to maintain their authority.

There is reason to suppose that the Kaiser only consented unwillingly to the great offensive program of March, which the militarists so confidently proclaimed would end the war in three weeks. If this is true, it is reasonable to suppose that he is now opposing a second and more tremendous hazard when circumstances are infinitely less favorable. Behind him are aligned the moderate and liberal Socialist parties, and behind them is the universal cry for peace that goes up from the war-weary German population. Probably once again the forces of reaction will get the upper hand, but the difficulties they have to overcome both impair their authority and interfere with their activities as commanders of armies in the field.

Air Attacks Shake Foe's Morale.

The work of the allied airmen has sufficiently demonstrated its importance as a factor to hamper the German plans. Not only are enemy observation and scouting planes brought down literally by dozens every day, while intervention by protecting battleplanes generaly results in their sharing the same fate, but confusion and destruction are being wrought day and night by our bombardment squadrons upon every hostile depot, junction, or point of concentration of men and material. The testimony of prisoners is unanimous that the German anti-aircraft artillery is inadequate in number, batteries, and skill of gunners. That of the Allies is superb.

Moreover, if there is one thing that the air war has demonstrated, it is that an inexperienced pilot on a new machine does not stand one chance in a hundred against an expert flier on a plane he knows and has tuned up himself. Each German downed shows an increased proportion of novices, and that is why the allied successes are augmenting in steadily growing ratio.

But perhaps even more important than the material damage is the effect of these never-ceasing air attacks on the morale of the German troops. Scarcely one of the letters found recently on prisoners is without an allusion to the "horrors" of allied bomb raids. Phrases like "no sleep again tonight; three officers and sixty men were killed or wounded by air bombs," or "forced to go without food today; convoy destroyed by bombplanes," or "company bombed from cantonments last night; the men are becoming demoralised; will they never leave us in peace?" occur constantly.

Allies Heartened by Air Success.

One sas only to visit our own trenches to appreciate instantly the moral effect of the airplanes.

"Nothing gives the men such confidence as to see a number of friendly planes overhead," say the officers; and one Captain told me that his company was roused to such a pitch of enthusiasm by witnessing two French planes bring down in flames two Germans out of three that they volunteered in a body when a few hours later he asked for six men to undertake a particularly difficult and dangerous night patrol.

It is impossible to overemphasize the importance of the moral factor. As a General declared to me six weeks ago: "It is superiority of morale rather than of numbers or material that wins battles."

More than ever is that true in the fourth year of a war like this, when the moral and physical tension of nations and armies is strained to the utterfloat.

Something must break soon. It will not be France or her allies.

GERMANS' SPIRITS DEPRESSED.

Much of Their Confidence Gone as They Near New Offensive.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT, May 23. (Associated Press.)—Uncertainty still exists as to when the Germans will renew their offensive and where their blow will fall, but whenever the interrupted battle is reopened the enemy will find disadvantageous changes in the situation as compared with the first stage of the struggle begun on March 21.

For one thing, the German soldiers can hardly possess confidence equal to that which inspired them at the opening of the great drive, now that they have seen the promise of decisive results that were to bring a rapid peace fail of fulfillment.

Many of their best troops have been destroyed without the armies attaining their objectives. This has depressed the remainder, causing them to question whether further sacrifices might not also be useless. A repetition of a powerful surprise attack has been rendered almost impossible, since the complete unification of the French, British, and American troops enables the allied Generalissimo to control the whole front.

The Allies are better prepared than they were before and watchful for whatever may be coming. Thus, although the German masses may be thrown against the allied front in a smashing blow at some point, the unification of command is counted upon to make possible an efficient intervention of forces to prevent any part of the line being overwhelmed. Losses of territory may be expected in the first rush, but that is to be counted as unimportant while the armies continue intact.

General Foch has taken all precautions, so that wherever the blow falls the enemy will find the French, British, Americans, and Belgians ready.

QUIET ON OUR SECTORS.

Germans Fire Only 35 Shells on Toul Trenches in 24 Hours.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 23.—(Associated Press.)—The last twenty-four hours on all sectors held by American troops were extraordinarily quiet, according to all reports.

The inactivity on the Toul sector was marked, the Germans firing only 35 shells on the American lines along the entire front. No German airplanes were out and a falling barometer curtailed aerial activity.

BRITISH PACIFISTS FAIL.

Labor Organizations Reject Proposal to End Aid in War.

BLACKPOOL, Eng., May 23.—The Congress of the National Union of General Workers, in session here yesterday, rejected by a large majority a resolution declaring that the war was being prolonged for materialistic and capitalistic objects, and that labor should cease its support of the Government.

LONDON, May 23.—At the annual meeting of the Northumberland Miners' Council, which ended yesterday, a proposal which had been put forward by the pacifist section, urging the Government to initiate peace by negotiation was withdrawn. The movers indicated that they considered the present time inopportune to press the measure.

TRACED AND SANK U-BOAT.

Commander of British Destroyer Followed Torpedo's Wake.

LONDON, May 12. (Associated Press.)—The resourceful commander of a British destroyer recently accounted for a German submarine by following up the wake of a torpedo to its apparent point of launching and then dropping depth bombs. A bar to his Distinguished Service Order has been awarded to this officer.

The German torpedo, aimed at the destroyer, passed under it. The British vessel swung around and hurried to a point near where the wake of the torpedo was first seen. Depth charges were dropped and soon the bow of the submarine came out of the water.

The destroyer tried to ram the enemy boat, but the submersible suddenly listed and sank like a stone. Other bombs dropped by the destroyer brought up oil.

OSTEND BADLY BLOCKED

Canal to Bruges So Shallow No Vessels of Any Size Are Able to Use It.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 23.—Continued observation over Zeebrugge and Ostend, so THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learned today from a high Admiralty official, has confirmed the high hopes entertained after the two raids. Fine weather has given the British aviators admirable opportunities for photographing the two ports, and they have been able to watch every development of the situation.

The best proof of the efficiency with which the Vindictive and her consorts succeeded in bottling up the Germans is the fact that enemy craft observed at Zeebrugge three weeks ago are still there. They are "immobilized," in technical phrase, which means that they are lying at their berths in the docks off the canal, exposed to British air attacks, and that the Huns are quite powerless to get them out. They are trying hard enough.

When the Iphigenia and Intrepid forced themselves into the canal they sank between the two sea-walls, carrying the canal out into the basin of the harbor. The Germans have now been observed feverishly hacking away at one of these sea-walls.

Evidently they have found it impossible to clear away the sunken cruisers and their cargoes of concrete, and prefer to demolish part of the solid permanent work and make a new channel. Meanwhile the harbor itself shows every sign of rapidly silting up.

Another gratifying feature of the situation is the discovery that the Bruges-Ostend Canal is so shallow that no enemy craft of any size can use it, so that, though the Vindictive has not entirely blocked Ostend Harbor, no German vessel can reach it from the interior waterways.

The Admiralty has just learned of another matter to encourage it. The U-boat crews, it hears, call the Irish Sea the "Witch's Cauldron," and it takes that as an admission of the miserable life the submarines lead with the Anglo-American sea and air patrols after them.

AIR RAID ON ZEEBRUGGE.

British Bombs Hit Destroyers, Mole, and Seaplane Base.

LONDON, May 23.—During the period from May 20 to May 22 air force contingents of the British Navy carried out bombing operations against the Zeebrugge Mole, the seaplane base and shipping in the vicinity, according to an Admiralty statement issued today. The enemy airdrome at St. Denis-Westrem and enemy establishments at Thourout were bombed.

Two direct hits on enemy torpedo boat destroyers have been reported, according to the statement, and, according to the result of a photographic reconnoissance, one destroyer was sunk. Three enemy airplanes were driven down out of control. All the British machines returned.

Dutch Minister Here Resigns.

THE HAGUE, May 23.—It is officially announced that the resignation of Dr. August Philips, Minister to the United States, has been accepted.

An Amsterdam dispatch of May 22 stated that Dr. Philips had requested that he be relieved of his post at Washington. It was said the Minister's request was made on medical advice.

pulse of frequent attacks by the French on the west bank of the Avre. The bulletin reads:

In the Kemmel region the increased artillery activity continues. On the other battlefronts fighting activity was not revived yesterday until evening, and then only on some sectors.

During the night there was lively activity on the part of the French on the western bank of the Avre. Frequent attempts by the enemy to advance were repulsed, and prisoners were taken during our reconnoitring operations.

On the Lys battlefield three American airplanes, among others, were brought down yesterday.

While there have been various reports of American airmen participating with their allies in operations on the western front, this is the first admission from a German source of any activity by our aviators as far north as the Lys sector.

NO MOVE TO END AIR RAIDS.

Military Authorities Would Examine Any Such Proposal, Hertling Says.

BERLIN, May 23, (via Amsterdam.)—Replying to a question as to whether air raids on towns could not be stopped by an agreement, Chancellor von Hertling said today that no definite proposals had come from the enemy.

Should this happen, he said, the military authorities would be first charged with an examination of the proposals.

PRAISE FOR OUR SOLDIERS.

Ambassador Sharp Tells of French Appreciation.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The exploits of American aviators and the part taken by American soldiers in trench skirmishes have gained for them an enviable reputation for courage and resourcefulness, Ambassador Sharp reported to the State Department today in a dispatch from Paris.

He said that numerous references appeared in the French press attesting the fraternal relations between the French and English troops and the American soldiers who had taken up positions with them.

PHILIP GIBBS'S STORY OF RAID ON HOSPITAL

Huts Filled with Wounded.

In many of those hospital huts, in nearly all of them, were badly wounded men—men with open wounds filtered by running water, men with broken limbs suspended in slings and pulleys, men so hurt that any touch or jar makes them quiver with pain.

That night the hospital orderlies who had been tending them all day were mostly in their own sleeping places. Only the night nurses and attendants were in the wards, moving quietly about, keeping watchful eyes on the patients, listening to that sound of breathing which tells them so much about the state of each sufferer, and bending over a bed here or there to shift a man's pillow or to say a word of comfort to one who could not sleep. Then suddenly there was the noise of those German engines, as I heard them once in a hospital, like those before the crashes which followed and broke the windows.

The German flying men dropped a very great number of bombs, and each one burst in the midst of these huts. A third of the bombs were of the largest size, which made enormous explosions and left great craters in the earth. Others were smaller shrapnel bombs, which swept the wards with bullets. They did murder on a big scale.

They killed many men who had escaped from death on the battlefield and from these beds looked forward to life again. They killed many hospital orderlies who had devoted themselves to the service of their fellow-men, among whom, after each battle, there are German soldiers getting the same treatment as the British and the same kindness. They killed and maimed women whose uniforms should make them sacred in this war. The total of killed and wounded runs into some hundreds.

I am told, and I do not need to be told because I have seen the courage of these women in air raids, that the nurses were heroic and beautiful in their devotion to the wounded. Near by were bombproof shelters, but not one of them left her post to take cover. Throughout the raid, which lasted in two phases for two hours, they moved up and down the wards encouraging the patients by their words, attending to the gravest cases, lingering by the bedside of men whose nerves were agitated by this tumult and menace of death, and not showing any faintness of heart, however great their secret terror of this dreadful thing above them. There were brave hearts there in those hospitals, but no courage can cure the cruelty of this scene of blood and agony which is a part of the devilish drama of war.

Airplane Crew Captured.

One German airplane was brought down with its crew alive—three of them. Two had been wounded by our anti-aircraft fire. The Captain, who had been hit in the arm, spoke perfect English and claimed to have been in the German diplomatic service before the war. When he was asked why he bombed hospitals he disclaimed all knowledge of having done so, and with a shrug of the shoulders said:

"If you will insist on putting your hospitals near railways you will get them bombed."

He had followed the railway, flying low and machine-gunning as he flew before dropping his bombs for destruction on a big scale.

This German officer's defense can hardly be disproved. In all night raidings, the British as well as the enemy's, there can be no certainty of hitting the right target. But at least the British flying men take some care to avoid hospitals of which they know the whereabouts, and these Germans do not seem to have taken any care whatever. A night raid on hospitals is one of those tragedies with which all the history of four years is blackened.

REPORT HUNDREDS KILLED OR WOUNDED

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 23, (Associated Press.)—Some hundreds of the personnel and patients of British hospitals behind the battlelines have been killed and wounded by a heavy attack by German airmen on the hospitals with bombs.

Among those on the casualty list are several sisters who, with other women nurses, stood bravely by their posts throughout a terrific deluge of explosives.

One sister was killed outright, while administering to the soldiers' wants, and another was so seriously hurt that she died soon afterward. Still another was dying today. Several more sisters were among the wounded.

Many other workers were wounded, including several medical officers.

In the neighborhood is one large American hospital and another in which there are American workers, but neither of these appears to have suffered. Last Summer several American doctors and nurses were killed and wounded when these same hospitals were raided by the Germans.

This latest horror was perpetrated Sunday night, apparently by four squadrons of German planes, which appear to have comprised more than a score of machines.

A great number of bombs were dropped, about 30 per cent. of them huge affairs which dug vast craters in the hospital grounds and the rest high-explosive shrapnel which sent their death-dealing bullets tearing in every direction through the crowded hospital tents and buildings.

The raid was divided into two phases, the first of which began soon after 10 o'clock and lasted until 11. Not satisfied with this, the enemy returned at 11:40 o'clock and heavily bombed hospitals filled with wounded men.

In one building, which was damaged most seriously, all the patients were suffering from compound fractures that made it necessary that their limbs should be strapped in the air.

Not a woman deserted her ward, but throughout the terrible bombing each one kept going her rounds and quieting the unfortunate men, who might easily have done themselves lasting harm by springing from their beds.

A three-seated airplane was brought down by gunfire while flying at a low altitude, and the occupants were made prisoners. The German Captain and the pilot sustained comparatively light shrapnel wounds, while the observer was not hurt.

When questioned why he had directed his men against hospitals, the Captain explained in a matter-of-fact way that he did not see the Red Cross signs. He said that he was seeking military objectives and had no desire to molest hospitals.

With a shrug of his shoulders, the Captain added that if the British chose to build their hospitals near railways, they must expect to get them bombed.

The Captain spoke excellent English. When asked where he had learned it, he replied that he was in the diplomatic service before the war.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 23.—Red Cross officials today stated that Unit No. 12, under the command of Major Desley, which includes about 250 Chicago doctors and nurses, is stationed with the British Army in the sector that was bombed by the Germans.

BERLIN, May 23, (via London.)—The official report from General Headquarters today contains the following:

"The enemy's aerial attacks against Belgian territory, which have increased in frequency recently, have inflicted heavy damages and losses on the civilian population, but no military damage has been caused.

"Bombs have been dropped successfully on large enemy munition depots northwest of Abbéville, which were destroyed.

"Bombs were also dropped on Paris."

BRITISH AIR RAIDERS BOMB GERMAN STATIONS

Hit Railway Centres in Lorraine and Belgium, Drop Missiles on Rhine Factory.

LONDON, May 23.—Railway stations in German Lorraine, a chloride factory at Mannheim, on the Rhine, and the railway near Liège, were bombed Tuesday night and Wednesday by British aviators. Three fires were caused at Mannheim and large conflagrations near Liège.

The official statement, telling of aerial operations, says:

Reconnoissances and bombing by our airplanes continued uninterruptedly Tuesday. Some 1,200 bombs were dropped on various targets, including four of the enemy's large airdromes near Ghent and Tournai and billets in the neighborhood of Armentières, Bapaume, and Bray.

A good deal of fighting again took place around our bombing machines. Sixteen German airplanes were destroyed and two driven down out of control. Two observation balloons also were destroyed. Three of our airplanes are missing.

During the night both our and the enemy's bombing airplanes were active. Over twelve tons of bombs were dropped on airdromes used by the enemy's night-flying machines and on billets at Bray and Bapaume. All our machines returned. Two German machines were brought down by gunfire behind our lines.

Two tons of bombs were dropped on a chloride factory at Mannheim, causing three large fires, and another two tons on railway stations at Thionville and Karthaus. One of our machines failed to return.

At dawn Wednesday two formations set out on a long distance raid to bombard the important railway triangle at Liège. All the machines reached their objectives and dropped twenty-two heavy bombs. Those dropped by the first formation caused three very large fires which were burning fiercely three-quarters of an hour later when the second formation flew over Liège.

Other machines dropped twelve heavy bombs on the railway stations at Metz. All the machines returned.

A statement on aerial operations, issued tonight, says:

Our airplanes continued on Wednesday their artillery work, photography, and bombing. Airdromes used by the enemy's night-flying machines were reattacked, eighteen tons of bombs being dropped on these and on hostile billets.

Thirteen German machines were brought down in fighting. Two were brought down out of control and another by gunfire. Three British airplanes are missing.

Four tons of bombs were dropped on the very important electric power station at Kreusewald, east of Saarbrucken. One bomb struck the boiler-house and another caused a large cloud of steam to arise from one building. All the British machines returned.

The Metz-Sablon Railway Station was heavily bombed at 11 o'clock in the morning of Thursday. Bombs were seen to burst in the engine sheds and on the railway. The hostile gunfire was considerable, but all the machines returned safely.

After dark eleven tons of bombs were dropped on hostile airdromes, docks at Bruges and billets in the Somme area. Several direct hits were made upon a train, causing it to burst into flames.

Mannheim was again attacked. Twenty-four heavy bombs were dropped on a chlorine factory there causing two large fires. The blackened girders of buildings gutted by the fires, caused by the bombing on the preceding night, were clearly visible in the moonlight.

Commenting on the series of raids carried out by British airmen in the last week, The Daily Mail says that they show that the air service is best in cultivating the offensive spirit. It continues:

"As the British air forces develop we shall be able to reach every city of Western and Central Germany and compel the enemy to weaken his front greatly by detaching large air forces for defense at home. The German staff is well aware of this risk, which will increase greatly when the American air forces have arrived in strength later this year.

"Hence, the enemy is certain to attempt to paralyze us by negotiations. He could accomplish no more brilliant stroke than to get us to abandon raids for a promise that he would do the same, which promise would be repudiated at the first convenient moment. But the fast-growing strength of the Allies in the air will be used with increasing vigor and will play a very large part in bringing the war home to the German nation."

French and Italians Very Busy.

PARIS, May 23.—Tonight's report of the War Office contains the following on aerial operations:

On May 20 an enemy machine was brought down in an aerial engagement. It is confirmed that eight German machines were destroyed by our pilots, one on the 15th, another on the 16th, and six on the 19th, in addition to two machines brought down by our special guns on the 20th and 21st.

On May 20 and the night following our bombing escadrilles dropped 17,000 kilos of projectiles in the region of St. Quentin, Noyon, and Tergnier; on the stations at Peronne, Rosières, and Nesle, and on the aviation ground at Villeselve. Two big fires, caused by explosions, broke out at St. Quentin and Nesle.

On May 21 and the night of May 21-22 our airplanes dropped 30,000 kilos in the same regions, causing new fires. Cantonments and stations in the region of Ville-au-Bois, Hirson, Le Cateau, and Aul Noye received in the same period 11,000 kilos of explosives. Italian machines took part in these expeditions.

FOE'S AIRMEN BUSY IN PICARDY

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 23, (Associated Press.)—The marked increase in German aerial activity along the Picardy front of late has raised the question whether it may not be a prelude to new action by the enemy infantry. Whether or not this be the case, the American troops on the line are becoming eager for a chance to get at the foe.

The German aircraft have been especially active since the advent of the new moon. Villages and roads behind the American lines in Picardy have been bombed, and some of the villages visited by the hostile aviators present pitiful scenes of destruction. The military damage done has been negligible, but some civilians have been killed, most of them women and children.

The American soldiers and nurses in touch with the French population in the areas that have received visitations are offering aid and comfort to the distressed. That some American hospitals have not been damaged is no fault of the enemy, but is due to good fortune, as the Germans are apparently dropping their bombs without consideration of military objectives.

The area under bombardment from the air is that between the American front and Paris, and every night the air over this district is humming with enemy motors, while American and French anti-aircraft guns keep up an almost continuous barrage.

There was great aerial activity northwest of Toul today. American aviators participated in more than half a dozen combats, but up to an early hour tonight they had not been able to bring down an enemy machine.

One American aviator engaged three different machines, one after the other, within twenty minutes.

Two other American pilots fought half an hour with two German machines at an altitude of 5,500 meters, but failed to get telling shots home.

DROP BOMBS IN PARIS AND AROUND CITY

Only One Raider Out of 30 in Two Attacks Succeeds in Reaching Capital.

ONE VICTIM DEAD, 12 HURT

Americans in Paris Chagrined by Accounts of Aviation Investigation in This Country.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 23.—Detailed reports that have just arrived in a batch of New York papers, concerning the aviation investigation by the United States Senate and Department of Justice make unpleasant reading to Americans in France. They do not refrain from comparing this Washington news with the recent records of French and British aviators. The latter have destroyed a thousand German planes in two months. The latest report shows that the French and British airmen destroyed 274 enemy planes in one week. There is no reference to Americans in this report.

The comparison with the Washington Senate proceedings is particularly keen this morning because of Paris' realization of the success of French aerial protection of the city. Two nights in succession enemy fliers have made vigorous efforts to bombard Paris, coming twice each night, yet none succeeded in reaching the capital until the fourth attempt, when a few bombs were dropped. From midnight until 3 o'clock in the morning the Paris anti-aircraft guns kept up a continuous shellfire.

French censors approve an article in the Echo de Paris intimating that the French may soon follow England's example in bombing German open towns from airplanes. It explains such a course on the ground that destruction of German industrial plants justifies the risk of killing noncombatants. This hint is possibly to prepare French opinion.

PARIS, May 23.—German aviators made another attack on Paris last night, and this time one of them succeeded in reaching the city. Bombs were dropped at various places, an official statement reports.

The explosion of one of them killed a woman and injured a dozen people. A shell from a 75-millimeter defense gun fell through a roof and landed beside a cradle in which there was a sleeping infant. The missile failed to explode, and the baby was not harmed.

In addition to the aerial attack on Paris, another raid was carried out last night. It seems to have been directed against the railroad tracks north and northeast of Paris. The raiders dropped a large number of bombs, but did not cause any serious damage.

Several bodies of enemy aircraft successively made for Paris. Our lookout posts opened a very violent curtain of fire. Our airplanes took the air.

A certain number of bombs were thrown on Paris and in the Paris district. The "All clear" signal was given at 3:30 o'clock.

The German airplanes taking part in the raid numbered about thirty. They were met by a powerful barrage fire from our artillery posts acting in conjunction with our defense squadrons, fifty-four of our machines taking the air. Only one enemy machine reached the capital, where it threw down some bombs. One death and twelve injured persons have been reported.

A number of bombs were thrown on the suburbs, causing some victims.

The two raids taken together kept Paris awake virtually all night. The first alarm was sounded at 11:40 P. M., and it sent the population to their underground places of refuge, whence they were released by the "all clear" signal forty minutes later with the comfortable feeling that the ordeal for the night was over. Barely an hour later, however, the wailing of the sirens again sent the populace underground, and a curtain of fire of such intensity as the city had never before experienced was kept up without pause until nearly 4 A. M.

FOUGHT EVERY GOTHA IN RAID ON LONDON

British Elated by Germans' High Rate of Loss and by Results of Cologne Attack.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 23.—British airmen at present have their heads very much up. This applies equally to those on duty in France and to those on home defense.

In regard to the latter, details of last Sunday's raid on London are particularly encouraging. Not one enemy machine that succeeded in crossing the coast managed to escape being engaged by British airmen, and in addition to the five Gothas brought down on land and the two destroyed at sea other raiding machines suffered damage serious enough to put them out of commission for some time.

The percentage of loss and damage suffered by the Germans is gratifyingly high, being placed by some calculations at a point over 33 per cent.

Comparisons made by experts between the Germans' Whitsuntide raid on London and the British daylight raid on Cologne, are distinctly to the advantage of the British. There are certain characteristics of the raid on Cologne which THE NEW YORK TIMES is requested not to make public yet, which go far to justify the use of the much abused term "supremacy in the air."

In the view of experts, supremacy in the air should only be really claimed when the stage is reached where it becomes practically impossible for an enemy airplane to show itself. It is hoped that such a stage will be attainable when America's actual contribution to the allied air forces becomes commensurate with its program.

Meanwhile the British royal air force is well satisfied to have established the present measure of relative superiority. Incidentally, it may be mentioned that while examination of the Gotha engines elicits a meed of praise, there are other points in the construction of the German planes which suggest to experts here that the enemy's supply of first-class material is not inexhaustible.

AMSTERDAM, May 23. — Sunday night's air raid on London was the largest yet executed, according to a German semi-official statement, as regards the number of airplanes engaged. It was observed, says the statement, that the bombs that were dropped had good results in the city between the Admiralty Building and the West India docks.

ZEPPELINS AGAIN OUT.

Reported Over North Sea—War Traffic There Livelier.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, May 23.—The Ribe Stiften-Tidende reports that war traffic in the North Sea lately is livelier. Zeppelins, long absent, have again been observed. Last night two were seen going north and northwest from Malmoe, and several flying machines were heard.

In the last ten days strong cannonading has shaken houses in Ribe, but very few warships have been observed.

DREW'S NEPHEW SHOT DOWN

But Aviator May Be Only Wounded and a Prisoner.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 23.—A cablegram to The Chicago Daily News from Paul Ayres Rockwell, correspondent, with the American Army in France, says:

"Corporal R. Sidney Drew of New York, who enlisted in the French Aviation Corps in 1917, and recently went to the front to fly a chassing airplane, has been shot down in an aerial combat. Drew's machine fell after a battle fought well inside the German lines. His comrades hope that he was only wounded and is a prisoner, as his airplane was seen to right itself in the air and appeared to land normally. Drew is a nephew of John Drew, the actor."

4 U-BOATS BETRAYED BY GERMAN CAPTAIN

CAUGHT FIRST BY SURPRISE

Took Commander Aboard British Boat, and, Fearing Attack, He Told Location of Others.

Some months ago Premier Lloyd George announced in the course of a speech that five German submarines had been sunk in a single day. The first detailed account of this episode, which laid the fate of four of the German U-boats to the cowardice of the Captain of the other, was given yesterday by Louis Tracy, the novelist, who is now attached to the British War Mission in this country. Mr. Tracy was speaking at the American Artists' Exhibit at the Anderson Galleries in aid of the American, British, French, Belgian Permanent Blind War Relief Fund.

"A British submarine," he said, "was lying off the coast of Ireland and had come to the surface. As she lay quietly with her officers and crew, assembled on the deck for relaxation, there suddenly appeared, not more than forty feet away, the periscope of a German U-boat, which apparently had been oblivious of the presence of the British submarine. The British craft immediately fired and disabled the U-boat, so that the British were able to capture her with her commanding officer and men. The men were kept on the German boat, but the commander was taken aboard the British submarine, where he was accorded a chaffing, but not altogether unpleasant reception. The British commander handed him some cigarettes and he was taken below and given a glass of wine. Despite these hospitalities, he seemed very much ill at ease and kept taking out his watch.

Told Location of Other U-Boats.

"Finally he informed the British commander that there were four other German U-boats in the vicinity. He knew that if one of these should first observe the British submarine that he, together with the British sailors, would be sent to the bottom. The British commander on securing this information immediately communicated with his home station by wireless, and British destroyers were rushed in all directions toward the spots where the German commander indicated the German U-boats were apt to be. As a result every one of the four remaining U-boats were destroyed during the afternoon, marking the largest single bag of German submarines during the war."

Among other speakers at the meeting were Eleanor Gates, who declared that only by the methods of permanent relief the fund extended could many thousands of American soldiers and the soldiers of our allies be prevented from earning such a livelihood as might be gained from selling lead pencils, and Top Sergt. Sam Barre, a Pershing veteran, who has just returned from France and who also served in Mexico and in the Spanish-American War.

There will be speakers every afternoon and evening until the exhibit, which has been extended through next week, ends on Saturday night, June 1.

WOMEN ENROLL TOMORROW.

Women who wish to vote in the primaries next September must enroll tomorrow. Enrollment places will be open from 8 A. M. to 10 P. M. A list of all these places was printed in The Times last Sunday.

The War Situation

The British situation between the front about Mont Kemmel and La Bassée has certain elements which correspond closely to their position at Cambrai after the offensive last Fall. The scale of the thing is, of course, much larger now than it was at that time, but the military positions are generally very similar.

In General Byng's attack at Cambrai he thrust forward a wedge directly at Cambrai itself, extending his positions both north and south at the same time until he crossed the St. Quentin Canal on the south and had taken Bourlon Wood on the north. Here the German lines held so that the close of the battle saw the German lines all but punctured by this wedge, the apex of which was near Cambrai.

On the present front the British line gave way south of Arras toward Amiens, while to the north the Armentières defense almost snapped. The result was that as the Arras positions held fast, there was left projecting into the German lines a blunt salient, one flank of which extends from St. Venant to La Bassée and the other from La Bassée to Bucquoy.

This salient is the key to the situation. As long as it remains intact, the march to Amiens cannot be pushed to conclusion. It is not improbable that the next German effort will be made there, the fighting at Amiens taking on for the time being at least a subsidiary character. In reality, however, any attempt to break through the Arras defense will be an integral part of the battle of Picardy, since it will open up a wider front for succeeding operations.

The method of attack on such a position then can be seen by following the history of preceding German attacks under similar conditions. When the Germans finally reacted at Cambrai they made their attacks at three points. Simultaneously they drove forward from the north, the east and the south. The plan was, of course, to hold the British in the centre and then crush in the sides, pinching off the troops which held the body of the salient. If either side gave way the damage was done as far as the elimination of the awkward position was concerned. If both sides should give way the British forces were taken. As we know, the north and the eastern sides held fast, and the southern yielded to the pressure. There was, then, nothing for the British to do but rectify their line and give up much of the ground which they had taken.

In the attack now pending, if the Germans adopt the same general policy, they will drive from before Arras, from Bucquoy, and along La Bassée Canal, which now stands before the British lines on the southern side of the wedge.

It is possible, however, that in this fight the Arras front would be left alone because of its known strength. The Germans have tested this once and found it solid. They used up seven divisions of troops to ascertain this, but it was proved to them beyond question. It is doubtful if they will care to repeat the experiment.

There remain the two fronts of Bucquoy and the canal. In both cases, they are certain to find the going hard. The British still hold behind Bucquoy a wealth of high ground that gives them good observation and excellent artillery positions. The ground in fact continues high for some distance behind their lines.

Beyond the canal the situation is somewhat different. The plain of French Flanders extends southward for three miles beyond the present battle lines, being limited by the important railroad line from Hazebrouck to La Bassee. This line parallels the salient almost exactly, curve for curve, and skirts the foothills of the heights which extend northwestward from Arras. These heights are really the key to the situation, since the Heights of Notre Dame de Lorette and Vimy Ridge itself are merely extensions of the main ridge.

The British, therefore, have every advantage of position. The terrain favors them in every way. They can retire a little before the German offensive with the knowledge that behind them still is ground that will give them advantageous positions. At the same time the retirement will have to be limited in order that disaster may not threaten. Once the Germans got behind the line of heights, the Arras defenses would be flanked and rendered untenable. This would affect the fighting all the way to the line near Montdidier, as the positions along the Ancre, which the British have clung to so tenaciously, would be turned.

There have been numerous indications from time to time that the Germans were about to begin operations, but each time the fighting has come to a standstill without the infantry attack developing. It is at present largely a feeling out process, each testing out the other's strength at various points.

CALLS WORK EDUCATIONAL

Bethlehem Steel, Anaconda Copper, American Telephone Give $250,000 Each.

FIND PEOPLE ENTHUSIASTIC

Walter Stabler, Chairman of House-to-House Canvass Committee, Reports Ready Response.

New York City is within less than $9,000,000 of its quota, $25,000,000, of the Second National Red Cross War Fund of $100,000,000. The official announcement made last night showed that at noon yesterday the city had contributed a grand total of $16,294,536, which shows an average for the first three days of the drive of $5,431,512 for each day of the campaign. With three working days still to go, this means that New York City, if this average is maintained, will go "over the top" with something like $5,000,000 in excess of its allotted quota. The total announced yesterday, it was pointed out, included only partial returns from Brooklyn, Queens, Richmond, and the Bronx.

The Carnegie Corporation led all contributions yesterday with a donation of $1,000,000, and in presenting this munificent gift Henry S. Pritchett, President of the foundation, voiced the deep regret of the venerable founder of the organization at his inability to be present and deliver in person the message to the Red Cross. Other large gifts yesterday included four of $250,000 from the Bethlehem Steel Company, the Anaconda Copper Company, the Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation, and the American Telegraph and Telephone Company. Gifts of $100,000 were made by Mrs. Edward H. Harriman, the Consolidated Gas Company, the American Locomotive Company, and the Inspiration Copper Company.

Carnegie Donation a Surprise.

The gift of $1,000,000 by the Carnegie Corporation was announced at the Chamber of Commerce noon meeting, at which the daily reports from the various teams, committees, and from individuals were announced. William C. Breed presided, and the announcement of the subscription by President Pritchett came as a complete surprise to everybody present except Mr. Breed who had, as it turned out, been told in advance that the corporation was going to do something very big.

The roll call of the teams, showing a total collected by them, since the beginning of the drive of $8,478,116, had just been completed when Mr. Breed addressed himself to Dr. Pritchett.

"I wonder if Dr. Pritchett has anything to say to us," Mr. Breed remarked, as he turned to the head of the foundation.

Dr. Pritchett responded by saying that he had no message from the Carnegie Foundation, but that he might be able to say a word or two for the Carnegie Corporation, which, he added, was an entirely different institution.

"This corporation," Mr. Prichett continued, "is by its charter compelled to devote the income of its large endowment to the increase and diffusion of knowledge and understanding among the people of the United States. Its trustees are today of the conviction that there is no knowledge and understanding among the people of the United States of such supreme importance as the knowledge and understanding of what this war means, and what the victory of the Allies means to liberty and civilization.

Red Cross Second Line of Defense.

"To promote that understanding means to promote all other understanding of right-minded and right-thinking people. We have one other conviction—that is, that, of the forces which are to bring victory, the Red Cross stands for mercy and sympathy and help to those who suffer; and it stands also as the second line of defense to succor the wounded and exhausted. And now, with these two conclusions, we feel ourselves honored to offer to the second Red Cross War Fund $1,000,000.

"I should like to say one word of a personal sort. Mr. Carnegie is in his eighty-third year, but he would have liked to come here and bring you this message himself. His health does not permit him to do it, but he feels grateful to have founded an institution that can do it, and he asks that you accept his unbounded faith and confidence in the outcome of this war which the Allies are waging for the civilization of the world."

On motion of Cleveland H. Dodge, the thanks of the entire committee and of the teams were sent to Mr. Carnegie through Mr. Pritchett.

Of equal interest was the announcement of another gift because of the identity of the donor. This came when Morgan J. O'Brien made his report as Chairman of Team 16. Judge O'Brien said he had a check for $1,500 from Cardinal Farley, and when the applause that followed subsided Judge O'Brien read the following letter from the Cardinal:

Cardinal Farley Sends Check.

Dear Judge O'Brien: That wonderful demonstration on Saturday last, which the President inaugurated in such an excellent and gracious manner, forecasted the success of the Second War Fund for the Red Cross. I have appealed to the clergy and Catholic people in New York to assist and I am sure my appeal will result in collections next Sunday.

I inclose herewith my check for as much as I can give. You are responsible for the fact that it is not a larger amount, having persuaded me to subscribe to other charities. However, it is all for the same cause. We must win, no matter how it hurts. May God bless all the good men and women engaged with you in this work.

JOHN CARDINAL FARLEY.

Another demonstration followed when Daniel Guggenheim of Committee 10 reported contributions from the great copper companies amounting to $425,000.

Darwin P. Kingsley, Chairman of Committee 19, after reporting a $100,000 gift from the Consolidated Gas Company, told how a gift of $1 was directly responsible for another one of $5,000.

"We have one contribution to announce," he said, "and that is a gift of $1 from a wealthy lady on the west side who gives it in memory of a half hour's talk with Gilbert Colgate. Mr. Colgate desires to keep that particular dollar as a souvenir, but in its place he himself has subscribed $5,000."

There was more cheering when Lewis E. Pierson told the story of the "keg of nails." The particular keg of nails, he added, was full to the top with nails.

"The nails," he explained, "are intended for the Kaiser's coffin and with this purpose in view they were auctioned off by the committee and I take pleasure in announcing that the sale averaged $1 per nail."

$1,000 for Bunch of Bananas.

This same committee also auctioned off a bunch of bananas, a box of cherries, a box of oranges, and another of grapefruit. The bananas brought $1,000, the grapefruit $300, and the oranges $250. "The cherries," Mr. Pierson continued, "were purchased by an Italian, who to my personal knowledge is a day laborer with a very small reserve fund, yet this patriotic Italian paid $100 for that box of cherries and seemed to think that he had a bargain."

This same committee announced a personal gift of $50,000 from F. W. Woolworth and another of $75,000 from the Woolworth Corporation.

"I am obliged to report," said Mr. Rockefeller, "that our team is running far ahead of the standard which it set for itself on Monday. We are no longer working in high, but in first speed. This so as not to discourage our close competitor, Mr. Fox's team. Therefore we beg to report $85,358.

Charles E. Coffin, Chairman of the Industrial Division, declared that the employes of 503 corporations had been canvassed up to reporting time yesterday, and of those corporations 404 had turned in a 100 per cent. report.

"The amounts given," he added, "are not large, but they have been given cheerfully and gladly from a profound sense of patriotism. These corporations have 24,582 employes, and the sum subscribed is $266,058."

Finds People Enthusiastic.

Walter Stabler, Chairman of the House-to-House Committee, stated that the most gratifying feature of the work of this committee was the enthusiasm of people of all classes to do their "bit" for the Red Cross. Working girls, he said, beg permission to work during their lunch hour, while men as well as women in all walks of life vie with one another in helping the canvassers. The committee reported a total collected of $127,539.

When Colonel William B. Thompson, Chairman of the Corporations Division, was called on, he asked permission to correct his statement made the day previous.

"It was said that the railroads are not contributing to the Red Cross fund," Mr. Thompson said. "That is a mistake. Many of the railroads are now giving liberally. Our work is being made easy for us by the efforts of the teams which are reporting here today. As a result, we are able to turn in $3,556,881 as the day's total. This includes the $1,000,000 from the Carnegie Corporation. Our net total, including today, is $8,478,116."

Teams Report $1,335,948.

1. Mrs. C. B. Alexander	$14,962
2. Mrs. Horace E. Andrews	27,325

50,000 in House Canvass.

The number of house-to-house workers is now more than 50,000, and the supply of official badges has become exhausted. Authorized solicitors working without badges carry official documents signed by Mr. Stabler, Chairman of the House-to-House Committee, which appealed for 25,000 workers and got twice that number. Yesterday the committee inaugurated the use of official Red Cross collection boxes, and up to 6 o'clock last night more than 40,000 of these had been delivered to the canvassers. They are covering every nook and corner of the city, and the motto is "Let no one escape."

Members of the Stock Exchange took enough time off from their work yesterday to bid actively for an orchid of rare coloring containing six flowers, which was offered by Clarence E. Chapman for the benefit of the Red Cross. The price was run up rapidly from $25, and finally was knocked down to S. C. Mabon for $682. Mr. Mabon returned the flower to do further service for the Red Cross fund. The orchid was raised in Mr. Chapman's greenhouses at his country place at Oakland, N. J.

Hundreds kicked and punched a dummy of the Kaiser at a noon-day meeting at the Liberty Tower yesterday. For the privilege of mauling the figure coins were tossed into a big American flag which was spread on Liberty Street, just outside the Chamber of Commerce Building. T. B. Duyckinck presided, and speeches were made by Chaplain Vincent O'Toole and Ensign Swinnerton of the United States Navy. Music was furnished by the Interborough Band.

City Departments Win Emblems.

Robert G. Newbegin, Chairman of the Conference Committee of City Employes, which is in charge of the soliciting of city and county employes for the Red Cross War Fund, announced yesterday that thus far sixteen city departments had made complete returns. In all of these every employe had subscribed. Thus, each of the sixteen departments is entitled to display the 100 per cent. victory emblem of the Red Cross. Mr. Newbegin and his associates are working now to the end that every city and county department in New York City shall make a 100 per cent. return.

Oscar S. Straus, Chairman of the Public Service Commission, has been named by the Governor as Chairman of a committee organized by the local officers of State Departments to co-operate with other organizations to raise money for the Red Cross. Yesterday the committee organized and subcommittees were named to carry on the work at high speed. Among the members of these committees are officials connected with the offices of the Attorney General, the State Controller, the Excise Department, and the State Industrial Commission.

An east side girl who has two brothers under General Pershing in France sent a dollar, and with it this note:

"I have two brothers over there fighting for America, and if I had more money I would send it."

Patsy Corizzo, a shoeblack at Far Rockaway, gave his entire receipts for last Wednesday to the Red Cross fund. He averages $3 a day, but when he announced that he was "shining for the Red Cross" his business took a big jump and his receipts for Wednesday were $9.37.

Lambs' Day at Public Library.

Today will be Lambs' Day at the American Red Cross booth of the State Woman's War Relief in front of the Public Library. Many prominent Lambs, led by Edwin Mordaunt, will go to the booth to help in the appeal for subscriptions from the crowd. The entertainments will begin at noon, and will last till 6 o'clock. Harrison Brockbank, Mme. Claybourgh, and Frederick Gunster will sing; Miss Mabel Adams will play the violin. The Police Glee Club will appear at 1:30. Colonel Preston, Mrs. Edith Ellis Furness, Howard Kyle, Lieutenant Skeyhill, Channing Pollock, and Elsie Ferguson will speak. Miss Grace George will be at the booth through the afternoon to take Red Cross subscriptions.

There were placed on exhibition yesterday in the ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel twenty paintings and works of art that are to be auctioned off at the Waldorf-Astoria Monday night for the benefit of the Second War Fund of the American Red Cross. Joseph P. Day, the Chairman of the Special Features Committee of the New York Red Cross organization, will be the auctioneer. The paintings and works of art are the donation of the galleries which own them, and no matter what sum they may bring under the hammer the entire amount will be contributed toward the drive in Greater New York. Many of the paintings are valued in the thousands, and connoisseurs have pronounced them worthy of high praise.

The more valuable paintings include: "Views on Grand Canal" and "St. Mark's Square," by Guardi, contributed by the Kleinberger Gallery; "Portrait of Sir Thomas Taysden," by Michael Doll, contributed by Reinhardt Galleries; "Changing Maples," by J. Francis Murphy, contributed by Knoedler & Co.; "Rocks of Cap Martin," by Louis Granner, contributed by Louis Ralston, and a painting by Martin Rico from the Judge Henry Hilton Collection.

The galleries donating paintings and works of art, supplementary to those already mentioned, are: De Mott Galleries, Reinhardt & Son, Bourgeois Galleries, French & Co., Seligman, Rey & Co., MacBeth Galleries, Kraushaar Galleries, Mr. Rasko, who gives fifty etchings of President Wilson as one parcel for auction; Kelekian Galleries, Ehrich's Galleries, Gimpel & Wildenstein, Canesa Galleries, Lewis & Simmons, Ralston Galleries, and Henry Symons.

8:30 P. M.—677 Fifth Avenue, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt; exhibition of posters and musical entertainment; admission free.

Governor Walter E. Edge of New Jersey and Supreme Court Justice Clarence J. Shearn will be the speakers at St. Paul's Chapel tomorrow, and on Monday Almet F. Jenks, Presiding Justice of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, and James M. Beck will make addresses.

$33,500 Raised at Hippodrome.

The assistance of Governor Whitman made it possible to raise about $33,500 for the Red Cross at last night's theatrical performance at the Hippodrome, the sum being the second largest which has been raised at a single theatrical performance in New York since the beginning of the drive.

Announcement has been made that the Kaiser's Cup, a gold trophy, given by the Kaiser to Wilson Marshall, a yachtsman, in 1905, would be auctioned off, with the understanding that the trophy was to be melted down. The cup, which is said to be valued at $5,000, was purchased for this sum last night by William Fox, who turned it back to the Red Cross. The cup, United States Marshal McCarthy said, would be sold again at Madison Square Garden tonight.

A complete performance of "Cheer Up" was given last night, the company having been called together for the purpose ten days after the close of the season. The performance was the first of the series of five events which are being given for the Red Cross under the auspices of the Allied Theatrical and Motion Picture Team.

A new plan to help the Red Cross will be put into force at the Waldorf-Astoria at noon today, when a dozen or more theatrical celebrities, headed by Weber and Fields, will turn waiters for two hours. All tips will go to the Red Cross. In addition to Weber and Fields, Raymond Hitchcock, Clifton Crawford, Barney Bernard, Thomas A. Wise, Will Rogers, William Hodge, Frank Craven, Grant Mitchell, William Courtenay, Leo Carrillo, Harry Fox, and Leon Errol will assist. On Monday, the same players will serve during the lunch hour at the Café Savarin, in the Wall Street district.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Approximately $20,000,000 was subscribed today to the American Red Cross' second $100,000,000 War Mercy Fund, bringing the subscriptions reported up to tonight to a total of $63,949,611. Three more working days of the campaign remain, and officials were confident tonight there would be a large oversubscription.

Three hundred and forty-three national banks reported to the Controller of the Currency during the day that they had made donations to the fund, their subscriptions totaling $531,000. Other banks were expected to be heard from before the end of the campaign, the total contributions from this source being reckoned at several millions.

Memphis, Tenn., was the only city reporting today to go over its quota, its subscriptions being $137,973 and its quota $125,000. Many other large cities are near the top.

Subscriptions by divisions as announced tonight follow:

Central	6,980,000
Lake	5,464,673
Gulf	1,478,979
Mountain	1,122,886
New England	2,734,000
Northern	2,362,000
Northwestern	1,869,923
Pacific	2,108,392
Pennsylvania	2,821,248
Potomac	1,609,525
Southern	2,379,871
Southwestern	7,447,253
Foreign	728,040

Ty Cobb, Walter Johnson, and other members of the Detroit and Washington American League teams solicited downtown Washington for Red Cross funds tonight as part of the local campaign. Great preparations are being made for the Red Cross benefit game tomorrow between Washington and Detroit. President Wilson, who has not attended a game since 1916, has signified his intention of being present.

Co-operate with the Red Cross.

Announcement was made last night that the organization of "family units" to provide comforts for members of the 307th Infantry on overseas service, as described in a recent article in THE TIMES, will work in co-operation with the Red Cross, as under a recent arrangement all articles sent to soldiers and sailors abroad go through Red Cross channels.

LOAN FLAGS FOR CHILDREN.

Liberty Committee to Honor Pupils Who Helped in Drive.

Delegates from the New York public schools to the number of 2,320 who assisted in putting their schools "over the top" in the Liberty Loan campaign will meet in Carnegie Hall tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock to receive the honor flags and certificates. The meeting is to be known as the Schools' Liberty Loan jubilee. The delegates were elected by 640 schools. A. B. Leach, Chairman of the Metropolitan Canvass Committee of the Liberty Loan Committee will preside.

The announcement of the rally by the Publicity Committee of the Liberty Loan Committee last night said that addresses would be made either by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo or Assistant Secretary Crosby; Arthur Somers, President of the Board of Education, and William L. Ettinger, Superintendent of Schools. Three choirs of seventy-five voices each will present a patriotic musical program. The soloists includes Mmes. Alma Gluck and Lina Cavalieri, and Lucien Muratore.

GERMAN PEACE PLEA SHOWS NEW TONE

Vorwaerts, Which Recently Saw Hope Only in Victory, Now Asks Conciliation.

MAKES APPEAL TO LABOR

Asks Allied Peoples to "Link Their Efforts with Ours" to End War.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

AMSTERDAM, May 23.—Not long ago the Vorwärts of Berlin proclaimed that the only possible way to peace was by a German victory in the west. Having waited longer than it expected for this particular solution, it now evidently is persuaded that it would be well to qualify considerably its former utterance. It merely adopted that attitude, it says, because "decision by force of arms appeared to be more probable at the earlier date than peace by understanding."

From this it may be gathered that the Vorwärts now has considerable doubts as to the stability of the basis on which it achieved its recent change of front. Now we are given to understand that the German Social Democracy is ready at any moment to abandon its faith in a peace by victory, although it often doubted the probability of it.

The journal, therefore, appeals to the workers of the various countries whom it wishes, while doing nothing against their own countries, to decide on a common policy; and it points out what terrible things will come about if they do not.

The lengthening of the war, it declares, "will do more harm than good to democracy and socialism. A long war will make people accustomed to reaction. It means the impoverishing of the world, and destroys a rapprochement. It is insanity to believe that democratic or socialistic aims can be achieved by war. The sooner the war ends, the better will be the prospects for the building up of State and social order."

Being convinced that such arguments will appeal to the people of the Entente, it concludes by calling on them again to "link their efforts with ours," and it warns them of the evil consequences of despising the German work for peace. The article, unfortunately, does not say a word about the highly unattractive "German work for peace" in the east.

NEW CZECH DISORDER; GERMANS, TOO, PROTEST

AMSTERDAM, May 23.—Further reports of disorders in Bohemia are published in the Lokal-Anzeiger of Berlin. It appears that recently there were renewed demonstrations in Prague, which the police found difficulty in quelling. Thirty arrests were made.

The first demonstration in the new outbreak occurred on Wensel Square in Prague on Monday. The demonstration was a big one and reached such pitch that in the evening the police had to interfere. The Czechs sang their patriotic hymn with its additional anti-German verses and raised cheers for President Wilson and Professor Masaryk, the Bohemian delegate now in the United States.

Although Wensel Square was thereafter barred to the demonstrators by the police, the demonstrations were repeated at 10 o'clock at night, and not until midnight did the mounted and foot police succeed in restoring order.

Another feature in the turmoil between the nationalities of Austria-Hungary, which recent occurrences in Bohemia have brought to the fore, is the situation in Austrian Silesia, which lies between Moravia and Galicia. An anti-Government meeting, news of which was suppressed by the local authorities, took place a few days ago at Troppau. The malcontents in this case, among whom Count Larisch was prominent, were Germans, who raged as fiercely against the Austrian Government as do the Czechs.

Their chief grievances, as alleged, are that the Government favors the anti-German party at the expense of Germans, whom it purposely neglects, and that Polish agitators are appointed to important positions, especially in Eastern Silesia. It is alleged that the aim of these agitators is to join Silesia and Galicia with the ultimate object of joining both to Poland. The malcontents demand countermeasures, and threaten to go to the extreme length of opposition.

ITALY THANKS RED CROSS.

ROME, Wednesday, May 22.—King Victor 7mmanuel has sent the following telegram to Robert P. Perkins, head of the Red Cross Commission in Italy:

"The humanitarian work carried out among us by the American Red Cross and so worthily directed by you has earned the acclaim of the entire Italian nation. In succoring the wounded at our front and in mitigating the sufferings of citizens driven from their homes by the enemy's invasion, the American Red Cross has earned everlasting gratitude and has strengthened still more the solid basis of the trusting and cordial friendship between the two countries. It gives me pleasure to express to you these sincere sentiments of the Italian army and people and of myself. I send you also by cordial greetings."

As an additional tribute to the Red Cross Mr. Perkins was received in audience by Dowager Queen Magerita, who expressed the deepest appreciation of the work of the American organization. The splendid results that have been obtained in a material way, she told the commissioner, had only been surpassed by the moral effect in still more closely uniting the two countries and coupling all their energies for the triumph of their common ideals.

SINKINGS AROUSE NORWAY.

Renewal of Submarine Outrages Discussed in Parliament.

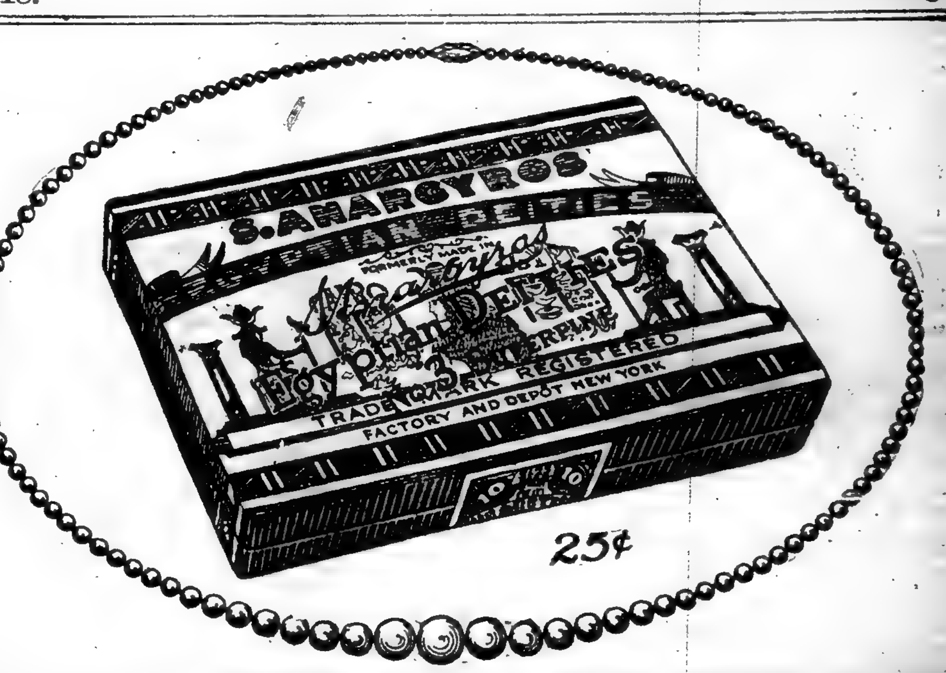
CHRISTIANIA, May 23.—The renewal of operations by German submarines against Norwegian fishing vessels, a number of which have been sunk recently was brought up for discussion in Parliament today. Foreign Minister Ihlen said in reply to a question that he had asked the German Minister why these vessels were sunk. The German Minister replied that the danger zone in the Arctic still existed.

When it was pointed out that the submarines had even fired on lifeboats the German representative said he knew nothing about it, and promised to telegraph to Berlin a request that this practice be stopped. He asked for official reports regarding these cases. Maritime tribunals will make an investigation, and their findings will be sent to Berlin.

Several members of Parliament expressed indignation at the sinkings. They asked how long Norway would continue to sell fish to the Germans while they were sinking fishing vessels.

American Mission to Aid Serbians.

CORFU, Wednesday, May 22.—An American mission which has been sent to assist the Serbians arrived here today on the way to Saloniki. It is headed by Major Francis Jager of the Red Cross.



MINOTTO ADJUDGED AN ENEMY ALIEN

Swift's Titled Son-in-Law Loses Fight and Will Be Interned Unless He Appeals.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 23.—Count James Minotto, son-in-law of Louis F. Swift, the packer, is an enemy alien within the purview of the law; his claim that he is a subject of Italy is not founded on fact, it being clearly proved that he is a native of Germany; therefore, he is a fit subject for internment in an enemy alien camp, as directed in President Wilson's warrant.

This is the substance of a decision rendered this afternoon by Federal Judge Carpenter following argument on a writ of habeas corpus sworn out by Count Minotto's attorneys at the time the Presidential warrant was issued. After listening to arguments by counsel for Minotto, who sought to show that, although he was born in Berlin, he was in reality a citizen of Venice, Judge Carpenter declared it was unnecessary to hear counsel for the Government.

Pending the formal entering of the court's decision tomorrow morning Count Minotto was permitted his liberty on his previous bail bond for $50,000. In the morning, however, he will be bound over to the United States Marshal without bail. The Judge gave as one reason for postponing the order that the Court of Appeals was in session and Minotto could take his case there without delay if he wished to appeal.

WOMEN HELP MORE IN WAR.

1,000,000 Now Making Munitions for the British Forces.

LONDON, May 23.—Speaking today at the London Exhibition of Women's Work in Munition Production, Frederick George Kellaway, Secretary to the Minister of Munitions, said that in every one of the defensive measures taken when a raid is carried out the women have had their part, except in the actual flying of aircraft.

The development which had taken place in women's work during the last fourteen months, continued the Secretary, was quite as remarkable as its development at an earlier period of the war. In July, 1010, he stated, there were 220,000 women engaged in munition industries, while in January, 1917, that number had been increased to 691,000, and today the number was 1,000,000.

A steady stream of trained women, the Secretary said, was being sent into the munition factories from training schools at the rate of 500 a week. Since the Ministry of Munitions had started the schools between 40,000 and 50,000 trained women had been placed in munitions industries.

ROOSEVELT ON WAR MISSION

Starts West Tonight to Preach Loyalty and Americanization.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt will depart tonight for a speechmaking tour in the Middle West, which is expected to include Ohio, Michigan, Iowa, and Wisconsin. His trip will take two or more weeks and is under the auspices of the National Security League as part of its campaign of patriotism through education for combating certain misapprehensions on the war and explaining the danger of a premature peace. The Colonel was scheduled to make his first address at Wittenberg College, at Springfield, Ohio, tomorrow.

In giving an outline of the message he will carry to the West, Colonel Roosevelt emphasized these points yesterday: First—Win the war, and win it now. Second—Preparedness after war, including universal military training and other thorough measures for adequate defense.

LEWIS FOR GIVE AND TAKE.

Asks Whitman to Let Employes Express Choice for Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 23.—Attorney General Lewis tonight sent the following letter to Governor Whitman:

"My Dear Governor: Several days ago I announced my candidacy for the Republican nomination for Governor. Immediately thereafter I gave notice to all of my deputies and employes that they are at liberty to support you for the nomination for Governor if they chose without fear of retaliation on my part. Some of them doubtless will vote for you in the primaries.

"There are employes in some of the State departments who would like to support me for the nomination. They are reluctant to announce their preference publicly and fear that by doing so they may give offense to you. Will you not make public a statement similar to mine? Such a statement would result in freedom of action on the part of Republican electors who now feel themselves hampered in the expression of their political views. Sincerely yours,

WETS WIN IN LOUISIANA.

State Senate Kills Resolution to Ratify Prohibition Amendment.

BATON ROUGE, La., May 23.—Louisiana is the first State to refuse to ratify the Federal prohibition Constitutional amendment. The State Senate, by a vote of 20 to 20, tonight defeated a resolution of ratification adopted a few hours previously by the House by a vote of 70 to 44.

Legislatures of ten States have ratified the amendment.

Prince of Wales in Rome.

ROME, May 23.—The Prince of Wales arrived here this morning. He was met at the station by representatives of the King and Premier, as well as by members of the Diplomatic Corps and some of the civil officials.

ACCUSE FELLOW-POLICEMAN

Marxhausen, Associates Testify, Assailed War Policies—He Makes Denial.

Remarks alleged to have been made concerning President Wilson and the war by Sergeant George H. Marxhausen, in the presence of his fellow-policemen of the West Forty-seventh Street Station, led to Marxhausen's arraignment yesterday before Deputy Police Commissioner John W. Goff, Jr., on charges of conduct prejudicial to the Police Department. One of the seven specifications in the complaint accused Marxhausen of asserting that the United States would never have entered the war except for the President. Sergeant James Dolan, now of the Charles Street Station, one of the witnesses, said:

"On the evening of Feb. 6, in the presence of Policeman Morris and myself, and during our discussion of the war, Marxhausen remarked that President Wilson favored war between Germany and the United States. Marxhausen then added that if his brother was drafted and went to France he would shoot into the air.'"

Detective Morris, another witness, testified that on one occasion Marxhausen had assailed the President.

Sergeant Thomas McAuley testified that when he had commented on German cruelty toward Belgian women, Marxhausen had replied that what the Germans were doing was too good for the Belgians, because they had tried to prevent the Germans getting through Belgium. Patrolman William T. Gatewood added that Marxhausen had told him he did not think the United States had any right to send soldiers to France.

Marxhausen denied the charges and said he had been "framed." He had subscribed, he said, to the Liberty Loan, to the Knights of Columbus war fund, and had made complaints against two patrolmen who had neglected their duty in guarding Government piers. Frank Moss appeared as his counsel. Commissioner Goff reserved decision.

It was said that Marxhausen's brother was drafted, but for some reason not made public at the police trial was taken to Fort Jay on Governors Island.

PURCHASES SHADOW LAWN.

H. T. Parson Pays $1,000,000 for the President's Former Summer Home.

Hubert T. Parson, Treasurer and General Manager of the F. W. Woolworth Company, it was learned yesterday, has bought Shadow Lawn, the former Summer home of President Wilson, near West Long Branch, N. J. The property, which includes sixty-five acres, has been sold by the Harson-Langham Corporation for nearly $1,000,000. Shadow Lawn was occupied by the President in the Summer of 1916 and was the scene of many of his campaign speeches for re-election.

Originally built by the late John A. McCall of the New York Life Insurance Company at an estimated cost of $1,000,000, it passed into the hands of several owners and finally was purchased by Colonel J. B. Greenhut. After its occupation by the President there was a movement afoot to present it to the Government for the President's Summer residence, but the matter met with opposition and was dropped.

Denies Attacks on German Chiefs.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 23.—A dispatch to The Morning Post from Amsterdam says that rumors that have been current about a recent attempt on the lives of Hindenburg and Ludendorff are denied in a Berlin dispatch to the Cologne Volkszeitung.

WOMEN ENROLL TOMORROW.

Women who wish to vote in the primaries next September must enroll tomorrow. Enrollment places will be open from 8 A. M. to 10 P. M. A list of all these places was printed in The Times last Sunday.

CHARGES ATTEMPT TO BRIBE IN MOTOR SUIT

Prosecutor Accuses Emerson Company of Trying to Influence Bay State Official.

The Emerson Motors Company, Inc., three concerns which had sold the company's stock, and ten individuals, indicted for having used the mails to defraud investors, were yesterday placed on trial before Judge Manton of the Federal District Court. Federal Prosecutor Osborne, in opening the case for the Government, said that he would show that $20,500 of the million-odd dollars which it is alleged was obtained for the company's worthless stock, had been used to bribe a District Attorney in Massachusetts who had threatened to proceed against the defendants.

Besides the Emerson Company the defendants are C. R. Berry & Co., Robert P. Matches & Co., and H. B. Humphrey Company, Inc.; Theodore A. Campbell and George N. Campbell, President and Treasurer of the Emerson Company; Nicholas Field Wilson, Henry B. Humphrey, George B. Gifford, William Loomis, Robert P. Matches, William H. Stetson, Osborne E. Chaney, and William A. Cody. All of the individual defendants, except the two Campbells, are members of stock-selling concerns.

Treasury again tomorrow and to let the Congressional Committee know of his conclusions immediately. The leaders left both conferences believing that there would be no revenue legislation recommended by President Wilson at this session. They said that if the decision rested entirely with the President the matter was settled, but they are not certain that despite the present attitude of the President he will not finally agree with Secretary McAdoo if the latter is able to marshal new and convincing figures.

It was agreed that a bill providing for $6,000,000,000 in taxes should be passed by the next Congress. This bill would raise about $2,000,000,000 more than was levied by the present revenue law. If Secretary McAdoo can find sufficient revenue to run the Government until next year, Congress will adjourn in six weeks or two months.

ALLIED FLEETS BUSY KEEPING SEA SAFE

Ralph D. Paine Tells Morgan Guests Naval Men Still Hope for Real Fight with Germans.

THE SUBMARINE A PARIAH

Guns of Every Navy Turned Upon Any Periscope Without Waiting to Learn Nationality.

Stories of American, British, and French sea fighters in action were told in the Morgan library last night to a company of guests of J. P. Morgan, including a large number of officers in the three navies, by Ralph D. Paine, the novelist, who has visited the warships under Government authorization to prepare a book called "The Fighting Fleet."

"People talk of the inactivity of the grand fleet," he said, "but the grand fleet is continually active. It is not afraid of submarines; it has gone to sea again and again to answer alarms that the German high seas fleet was coming out, and in every officer and man in the fleet there is confidence that some day they will actually catch the Germans. I asked Admiral Beatty what would happen if the Germans did come out, and he answered cheerfully, 'We're here—what, what?'"

Mr. Paine told of one of these occasions when the fleet left its base in the north of Scotland between midnight and dawn in response to a report that the Germans were abroad. "They came through a channel," he said, "which navigators had said before the war could not be traversed at night; but in the war all the fleets have learned to do the impossible. On this occasion the newly arrived American battleships had received the place of honor in the van just behind the British flagship. The fleets cruised twenty hours in a high gale, but found no Germans.

"One of the British battleships had sent up an observer in a kite balloon just before the fleet sailed, and had no time to bring him down. So for twenty hours he was towed by the battleship at the end of his long cable in a wind so high that his observation car was usually sticking out horizontally behind the balloon.

"I visited also the submarine base where American submarines are undergoing intensive training for stalking German U-boats, under the direction of Captain Nasmith, who commanded a British submarine that performed remarkable exploits in the Dardanelles and the Sea of Marmora, sinking a Turkish battleship and several transports. He is now training Americans in the very difficult work of submarine stalking.

"The submarine has no friends; other vessels shoot whenever they see a periscope without stopping to find out whether it belongs to friend or enemy, so the work is somewhat hazardous. The submarine men are resigned to a good deal of it. I met one officer who said that he didn't mind it when two destroyers of his own fleet had attacked his boat, one ramming it and the other dropping a death bomb; but he did think it was a little too much when the Admiral commended them for their energy. Among the crews of the larger ships there is a feeling that the submarine has spoiled this war."

Mr. Paine told of a German mine-laying submarine which had settled on the bottom of a British harbor to discharge its mines, when on the shell of the boat there was heard a tapping which presently assumed the form of a message in the international Morse code.

"Unless you come to the surface and surrender at once," said the message, "we shall drop a depth bomb." Unable to see how the message could have been sent to him, the commander hesitated, but there came another tapping. "The bomb is being put into position." Then the German came to the surface almost under a British trawler, which, though taken by surprise, opened fire and forced the submarine to surrender; after which there came up from the depths of the harbor a diver who had been at work on a sunken wreck, had discovered the submarine, and tapped the message on her hull with his hammer, on the chance that there would be some sort of British ship at hand to take care of her when she reached the surface.

Of the American sailors in Ireland, he said that while a very larger percentage of them were of Irish blood and had gone over with a sentimental sympathy for Ireland, this had vanished because of the treatment accorded them by the population. "From the pulpit of the Cork Cathedral," he said, "the American sailors were denounced as vultures who had come to corrupt the young men and debauch the young women.

Mr. Paine saw the crew of a German submarine, whose commander destroyed her after surrendering, brought into port by the American destroyer Fanning.

"They came swarming out of an open hatch," he said, "as if violently propelled from below, like so many jacks-in-the-box. Never was a larger, populous German submarine emptied so rapidly. And as they madly erupted on deck, every Hun flung his hands above his head with the most passionate sincerity and held them upraised while he bawled: 'Kamerad! Kamerad! Kamerad!'

"A gunner's mate on the forward deck of the Fanning grinned and exclaimed with pardonable emphasis: 'Kamerad, hell! What kind of a word is that to use in war? Somebody ought to tip these poor boobs off. We are sure-enough enemies.' 'They behave as if they expected us to shoot 'em in cold blood,' growled another petty officer. 'What do they think we are? Germans?'"

Among Mr Morgan's guests were Vice Admiral Purefoy of the British Navy, Admiral Grasset and staff of the French Navy, and Rear Admirals Fiske, Gleaves, Johnston, Usher, and Burd of the United States Navy.

CAIROLA WORE WAR MEDAL.

Fort Lee Man Who Died in France Decorated for Gallantry.

Sergeant Raymond J. Cairola, reported in yesterday's casualty list from General Pershing as having died of wounds, was the holder of a French medal of honor, and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Cairola of Fort Lee, N. J. He was 27 years old and a well known amateur baseball player. He won the French Croix de Guerre while serving in the French Army before this country entered the war. When Congress declared war he returned to the United States and entered the American service.

Private John Nacieukowicz, reported killed in action, was a Brooklyn boy and a veteran of the old Fourteenth Infantry. He went to France in January.

Edward Harold La Mont, also reported killed, was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph La Mont of Yonkers. He was 22 years old, and was a former member of the 22d Regiment of Manhattan. His mother is seriously ill and has not been informed of his death.

Private George J. Brown, another of those reported killed in action, was a son of Mrs. William Brown of 6,420 Eighteenth Avenue, Brooklyn. He was in the Signal Corps and was 22 years old. He was a graduate of St. Peter's Parochial School of Brooklyn.

"If he had to die," said his mother yesterday, "I am glad that he died for his country."

John W. Lafferty, reported seriously wounded, is a Brooklyn boy. His brother Vincent, his nearest of kin, lives at 418 Bleecker Street, this city. He went to France with the regular engineers in June of last year. He is 41 years old.

Sergeant David Silverman, reported seriously wounded, has been in the regular army for eight years, and is in the Twenty-eighth U. S. Infantry. His parents live at 2,001 Bergen Street, Brooklyn. Silverman went to France with the first of the Pershing divisions.

COHOES, N. Y., May 23.—Corporal James G. B. Lighthall, whose name appears among the killed in action in today's casualties list, was named for the late James Gordon Bennett, one of whose yachts won a race on the day Lighthall was born twenty-two years ago.

The last letter his relatives received from him was written several weeks ago from an American camp. It read in part:

"I hope I will soon be placed on the list of men to go over the top, as I wish to assist in making the world safe for democracy. If I don't return you will know that I died fighting for America and the Stars and Stripes, the greatest country and flag in the world."

Lighthall's wife and two-year-old son reside in Brattleboro, Vt.

86 Casualties Reported from Overseas; 14 Killed in Action, 12 Dead from Wounds

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The War Department today gave out a list of 86 casualties in the American army abroad, bringing the total to 6,194. The list included the names of 14 killed in action, 12 died of wounds, 1 missing in action, 39 wounded severely, 9 wounded slightly, and 11 died of disease.

Three commissioned officers are included. Lieutenant James Palache died of wounds. Lieutenants John T. Maguire and Hugh L. Sutherland were severely wounded. This is the second time that Lieutenant Maguire has been reported wounded. On Feb. 15 last the War Department announced that Lieutenant Maguire had been slightly wounded in action on Feb. 6. He is now reported as having been severely wounded.

LIEUT. KURTZ KILLED BY FALL.

Death of Pilot Probably Due to Accident, Pershing Says.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—General Pershing's communiqué, transmitted today to the War Department, reported that Lieutenant Kurtz, an American pilot, had been killed accidentally within the American lines.

His bulletin, dated at 9 o'clock last night, reads:

Section A—The artillery activity has decreased. There are no new developments to report.

Section B—This morning Lieutenant Kurtz, pilot in our air service, fell within our lines and was killed. His fall, apparently, was due to accident.

THREE AMERICANS CAPTURED.

All Are Privates and Their Homes Are in New England.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Information that the following American soldiers are prisoners of war has been received by the War Department:

Doherty, Edward J., private; Mrs. J. Doherty, mother, 1,253 Center St., Newton Center, Mass.

Muldoon, James N., private; Mrs. M. J. Muldoon, 17 Upland Road, Brighton, Mass.

This information was forwarded by the American Military Attaché at London, who received it from the British Postal Censorship. All three men are reported to be unwounded. The location of the prison camps at which they are held has not been made known.

BANK FACILITIES FOR ARMY.

Equitable, Guaranty, and Farmers' Loan and Trust Cos. Perfect Plans.

A joint arrangement has been entered into by the Equitable Trust Company, the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, and the Guaranty Trust Company to perfect safe and economical banking facilities for the American forces in France. These organizations have been officially designated as depositories for United States Government funds in France and England, according to a statement issued yesterday, and the "service checks" to be issued by them are the only checks of this nature authorized and approved by the Government.

The agreement provides for the sale at the concentration camps in the United States of checks which may be cashed at the London and Paris offices of the companies. They will be honored also at the London office of the International Banking Corporation, which is also a Government depository, and at the numerous branches of the Bank of France, the Credit Lyonnais, the Comptoir National d'Escompte de Paris, and the Société Generale. The stamp tax imposed by France will be paid by the trust companies, so that the checks will command their full face value.

The checks will be sold on the basis of the official exchange rate agreed upon between the United States and French Governments, no commission being charged. The present cost of the checks is as follows: 50 francs, $8.85; 100 francs, $17.60; 200 francs, $35.15. They are self-identifying, which will make it practically impossible for any except the authorized holders to cash them.

The Columbia Trust Company, which is the American correspondent of the London County Westminster and Parr's Bank, Limited, of London, announced yesterday the receipt of advices that the British institution, with its 700 offices in the United Kingdom, would cash United States Army pay drafts. The same facilities will be offered at the Paris branch. The bank has also opened a forwarding mail department in London and Paris for the accommodation of the American forces, the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., &c., which will forward mail to any address, after arrival in England and France.

D. S. O. FOR AN AMERICAN.

Col. J. N. Hodges of the Engineers Honored by British.

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS ON THE BRITISH FRONT, May 22, (Associated Press.)—Colonel J. N. Hodges of the American Engineer Corps has received an award of the British Distinguished Service Order in recognition of his services during the period from March 27 to April 3.

Colonel Hodges is one of the first American officers to receive the D. S. O. From March 27 to April 3 was the period during which the British were stemming the tide of the German offensive begun on March 21.

The latest published United States Army list gives John N. Hodges as a Captain in the First Engineers.

WOMEN ENROLL TOMORROW.

Women who wish to vote in the primaries next September must enroll tomorrow. Enrollment places will be open from 8 A. M. to 10 P. M. A list of all these places was printed in The Times last Sunday.

BRITISH AID TO OUR TROOPS

Furnishing Clothing and Arms, Says London Paper—Convoy Success.

LONDON, May 23.—"The many-sidedness of Great Britain's contribution to the war might well be kept more than it is before the eyes of the world," says The Daily Chronicle in commenting on the statement yesterday of Sir Robert Kindersley, Chairman of the National War Savings Committee, respecting the great increase since last Fall in the assistance given by small investors toward financing the war.

"How many people, for instance," the paper continues, "realize that Great Britain is clothing American troops in France and providing nearly all their armament, except artillery?

"How many people realize that down to Jan. 12, 1917, Great Britain had advanced no less than £1,186,000,000 to her allies and £175,000,000 to her dominions; that she transports a daily average of over 7,000 personnel and more than 30,000 tons of military supplies to France; that to the end of August, 1917, her navy and mercantile marine had transported and protected across the sea some 13,000,000 of personnel with the loss of only 3,500 altogether?

"The scale of the navys' work in particular is far too little appreciated. Its burdens extend much beyond the 420,000 who now man our ships. For instance, the Royal dock yards since the beginning of the war have repaired 31,470 war vessels, exclusive of the great amount of repair work done on allied ships.

"These branches of British war effort represent a strain for which there is practically no German equivalent, and are too often left out of account in comparing the other branches of activity which affect Great Britain and Germany alike, such as the provision of man power for the army, the supply of munitions, or the manufacture of aircraft."

WILSON SPARES DESERTER.

Orders Death Sentence Commuted to Twenty Years in Prison.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP McCLELLAN, Anniston, Ala., May 23.—The sentence of death imposed by a general court-martial here, Feb. 11, on Private George Abendachein of Company L, 115th Infantry, has been commuted to twenty years in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta by President Wilson upon the recommendation of Major General Morton, commander of the 29th Division. Private Abendachein, whose home is in Maryland, was tried on charges of absenting himself from his command without proper authority and escaping from confinement three times before being set at liberty by proper authority.

He deserted twice, at Laurel and again at Camp McClellan in November, 1917, and was apprehended at Parkersburg, W. Va., a few days later.

In forwarding the case for the attention of the President General Morton made the following note:

"In the foregoing case of Private George Abendachein, Company L, 115th Infantry, the sentence is approved, but the execution thereof is suspended until the pleasure of the President is known and the record of trial is forwarded. It is recommended that this sentence be mitigated to confinement at hard labor for twenty years in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., and forfeiture of all pay and allowances due or to become due."

Publication of the court's finding, General Morton's recommendation, and the orders of the President bearing on the case were published at the division headquarters this morning.

RUSSIANS HERE PLAN TO RAISE AN ARMY

WILL SEEK OUR SANCTION

Report That Kerensky Is Already Here Denied—His Lieutenants at the Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—A group of influential Russians came to Washington today with the suggestion that a movement be initiated for the overthrow of the Bolshevist régime and the restoration of Russia to a position of importance in the war. The delegation, which spent some time in conference with Boris Bakhmetieff, the Russian Ambassador, and which was later accompanied to the State Department by Baron Ginsberg, an attaché of the Russian Embassy, was headed by Apollinarius Dimitrovitch Semenovsky, who was Minister of Ways and Communications under Premier Kerensky.

Other members of the delegation who took part in the conference at the Russian Embassy were reported to be Colonel Lrkoch, a member of the Russian Commission sent to the United States by Kerensky, Whitney Wishnevietsky, a representative of the Russian labor party, of which Premier Kerensky is himself a member, and Elias Rosenthal, an attorney.

The conferences today were preliminary to the formulation of a definite plan for aiding in bringing about the restoration of Russia to a position of power and influence, as well as of law and order. It is expected that when the plan has been definitely formulated it will be submitted to the United States Government for consideration and approval. The plan, so far as it has been developed, is understood to include the raising in this country of a volunteer force of Russians to be dispatched to Siberia. It is not yet known whether the movement will be an independent one or associated with the activities of General Semenoff.

The movement, to succeed, it is believed, would have to enjoy the support of the United States Government and depend on it or the Allies for supplies of guns, munitions, rolling stock for the Siberian Railroad and food supplies for the expedition. There are also many Russians outside of the United States who might be depended upon. It was asserted today, to join any substantial movement for the restoration of Russia.

A report was current that Secretary Baker would confer with Ambassador Bakhmetieff and Semenovsky at the Embassy today. This was officially denied at the Embassy, although it was intimated that there might be conferences with the American Government when the plans under consideration reach the point where they can be definitely submitted.

PEKING, May 23.—General Semenoff has established an autonomous Government in the Trans-Baikal region.

HARBIN, May 19, (Associated Press.)—Serious differences have arisen between General Semenoff, the anti-Bolshevist military leader, and Admiral Kolchak, former commander of the Russian Black Sea fleet, and recently elected Director of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Last week the Admiral, who commands the Russian forces in Manchuria, went to the town where Semenoff has his headquarters. The General refused to call, and the Admiral took the initiative.

General Semenoff, it is declared, declined to acknowledge that the Admiral possessed any authority outside Manchuria or any control over his forces. General Semenoff is wholly dependent upon the railway administration, while Admiral Kolchak can exercise no authority outside Manchuria without the support of Semenoff's soldiers.

FIGHTING IN PETROGRAD.

Great Stores of Anarchist Munitions Destroyed by Bolsheviki.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 23.—The Morning Post's Stockholm correspondent says that, according to reliable information received from French and American men of business in Russia, violent battles were fought on April 21 at Petrograd and Moscow between the Bolsheviki and anarchists.

Great stores of ammunition and arms belonging to anarchist clubs were blown up, and many people were killed.

MANNERHEIM RESIGNS AS FINN MILITARY CHIEF

LONDON, May 23.—General Mannerheim, Commander in Chief of the Finnish White Guard, has resigned because of the plan of the Finnish Conservatives to invade the Russian province of Karelia, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen today.

PUT 1,752 TO DEATH.

LONDON, May 23.—Under the White Guard and German régime in Finland, 1,752 persons were executed up to May 1, according to a Finnish Socialist, who has escaped to Sweden and whose interview with the Folkets Dagblad is transmitted from Copenhagen by the Exchange Telegraph Company.

According to the exile, 516 were executed in Tammerfors, 148 in Tournea, 389 in Varkom, and 380 in Vasa. Prisoners taken by the German and Finnish Government forces, he says, were treated so badly that many were starved to death.

KORNILOFF BOBS UP AGAIN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 23.—General Korniloff is reported to be south of Moscow with his army, and by many is regarded as destined to deliver Russia from the Bolshevist tyranny. There is no foundation whatever for the rumor that he and Lenine have been assassinated.

"WALKING DEAD MEN."

Condition of Prisoners Exchanged by Germany Enrages Russians.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Arrival at Petrograd of the first contingent of 1,500 Russian prisoners to be exchanged under the recent Russo-German agreement was reported to the State Department today. The men, the dispatch said, were "veritable walking dead men."

Recent dispatches said that the Germans had demanded an agreement for the exchange of prisoners under which only Russians not fit for work would be returned to Russia, and only able-bodied Germans would be returned to Germany.

Today's dispatches to the State Department said the condition of the soldiers returning to Petrograd aroused great indignation.

PRUSSIANS TO AWE UKRAINE.

Berlin Orders Eichhorn to Back Skoropadsky with Bayonets.

LONDON, May 23.—General Eichhorn, German commander in Ukrainia, has received a message from Berlin, a Reuter dispatch from Moscow reports, saying that immediately a call for assistance is made by General Skoropadsky, Prussian regiments will be sent to crush any insurrection.

EMERY STILL IN GERMANY.

Finnish Government Again Asks for American's Release.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The State Department today received a belated telegram from Stockholm stating that Major Henry C. Emery, who was captured by the Germans on the Aland Islands while attempting to reach Sweden from "Red" territory in Finland, after leaving Petrograd when that city was menaced by the Germans, is at Lauenburg, Pomerania, where he is permitted by the Germans to move about freely.

American Minister Morris at Stockholm in another cable to the department reports that he had received word from the "White" Finnish diplomatic agent at Stockholm that his Government has again asked Germany to release Major Emery, and that there was a hope that this soon might be accomplished.

JAPAN AND CHINA SIGN NAVAL TREATY

Military Agreement Between the Two Countries Explained by Peking Government.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, May 23.—The Enemy Trading act, which has been promulgated, consists of eight clauses. The Chino-Japanese Naval Convention has been signed.

PEKING, May 19—(Associated Press.)—The Government, through the Chinese News Agency, has authorized the following statement regarding the military agreement between China and Japan:

In view of the circulation of false reports, it is necessary to inform the Chinese people of the facts of the negotiations. Since the conclusion of peace between the Russian Maximalists and the enemy the fear has existed in Japan and China of an eastward intrusion of German influence. On account of the propinquity of their territory, the Government recognized the necessity of a definite arrangement for joint defense. This joint defense concerns military movements in Siberia and Manchuria, and has no reference to other matters. The scheme will become null and void with the termination of the war.

On the other hand, the convention will not be enforced unless the influence of the enemy actually penetrates Siberia. It is not a treaty, but an entente, which will become a scrap of paper if there is no enemy menace. The sole reason for the non-publication of the contents is the preservation of the secret from the enemy. The convention does not involve the loss of sovereign territorial rights and Japan gains no privileges.

TOKIO, May 17—(Associated Press.)—The military agreement between Japan and China has caused increased attention to be given the question of intervention in Siberia. It is understood that both Great Britain and France are actively favoring intervention, the former because of the dangers of the spread of German influence, and both Great Britain and France because they are convinced that it would hasten the winning of the war. The General Staff is ready for any action that may be ordered, but the Government has not announced any decision in the matter.

The best opinion here is that intervention is not likely until it is favored by the United States.

LONDON, May 23.—The British Government, Reuter's Limited says it learns, has now received the main terms of the agreement between China and Japan, and they are regarded with satisfaction by the British Government. The convention, it is declared, is a purely military one, with the object of the effective co-ordination of the military forces of the Allies, when such may become necessary to combat the German menace in the Far East.

The Red Cross is for those who suffer

War has not brought new sufferings, but it has enormously multiplied suffering and has caused misery to fall in new places and in horrible combinations.

The old who were protected, the children who were sheltered, the women who were cherished, have been called upon to endure to the uttermost. Upon those countries exhausted in death grips the blows have fallen hardest; upon those least able to meet them calamities have piled upon calamities. It happens that this full load of tragedy has not fallen upon us, but it happens by the same token we may help to meet it.

The Red Cross aims to be where human needs are, and to act as its individual members would, could they be present and endowed with the same means.

The Red Cross is helping our soldiers and sailors in a practical way. It is helping the comfort and the spirit of our Allies, and in both these things it is helping to shorten the war by rendering more effective the service of the armed forces of all the Allies.

But beyond its practical help it is dedicated to the alleviation of human suffering, and this war has given splendid evidence, through the Red Cross, of the spirit of the American people, the spirit of simple human kindness, toward suffering wherever encountered. The daily record of incidents which the widespread Red Cross organization meets suggests how universal is the need for help. The need is so vast that only a universal answer can cope with it.

Children

"I remember I was at one time outside Popering. I went there to a little home which was maintained for refugees. It was a hospital and a home. I saw soldiers — a mutilated soldier was walking across the lawn, and he was leading by the hand a little boy about eight years old who had a bandage over his eyes. That child had been blinded by a German shell, and they had to take out both of his eyes.

"He did not know he was blind. He thought it was the bandage; and even when they took the bandage off he still thought there was something tied over his eyes. He was very happy, and had no idea of the seriousness of the situation. While standing there talking to this soldier, the little fellow put his bandaged head down on the ground and turned a somersault. There is so much of that spirit over there."

"There arrived last week at Evian, where the repatriates from France and Belgium are received back into France, a train loaded with Belgian children.

"There were 680 of them — thin, sickly, from four to twelve years of age — children of men who refused to work for the Germans and of mothers who let their children go rather than have them starve. They poured off the train, little ones clinging to the older ones, girls all crying, boys trying to cheer. They had come all the long way alone.

"On the platform were the Red Cross workers to meet them. The children who could walk at all marched along crying, 'Meat, meat; we are going to have meat.' Their little clawlike hands were significant, but a doctor said, 'We have them in time; a few weeks of proper feeding and they will pull up.' Thirty per cent. of the older repatries die the first month from exhaustion. The children can and must be saved."

THESE trains that pull into Evian are laden with the too-young and the too-old for German purposes. On their arrival the repatriates are registered, washed, given fit clothing and food, and put to sleep in clean beds. Thousands and thousands of these repatriates have known the blessing of Red Cross help. The story of Gaston is typical.

Gaston is a little boy aged seven, who walks with a crutch. His father had gone to fight the Boche; his mother managed to keep the home until a certain day when the siren blew. That day Gaston and his sister were playing in the yard and ran to the cellar when they heard the first blast. They had been told to do so. When the siren ceased they went back to play in the yard.

Then something happened, and for days after he came out of the hospital Gaston couldn't for the life of him remember what it was.

The thing that dropped in the yard tore away one leg and mangled his sister.

While he was in the hospital his mother disappeared. So they put Gaston on a train for Evian.

The Red Cross nurse was helping Gaston along the road — he handled his crutch awkwardly as yet — when a woman shrieked and gathered the cripple to her bosom.

Few mothers and children among the repatriates are so blessed with fortune. Tens of thousands of them will never know the bliss of such reunions.

THE school children of France have learned to slip on their gas masks as handily as their fathers in the trenches. The regions under gas fire are growing with the increasing range of the big guns, for more and more of the shells are gas shells.

No matter how constant this menace is, or how near to the lines a town may be, the future of the French boys and girls is not neglected, and the schools go on. But the day's routine is varied by the drills, when, at a given signal, gas masks are slipped on, just as at other signals, which mean bombardment, the children run to the cellars or fall flat on the floor to protect themselves.

When the Red Cross began to help these children, it was found that many of them were mere infants, some less than one year old. The tinier children could not manage the gas masks, and for these and for the children who had been herded together in old barracks, dirty and practically unfurnished, and with no sanitary appliances, the Red Cross established a home at Toul, where hundreds of tots are brought from the dangerous districts and saved from the death which would almost certainly overtake them were they left in their homes.

THE American Red Cross is caring to-day, in one way or another, for 50,000 French children. It is the hope of the Red Cross, in co-operation with the French Government, to save the lives of 40,000 infants a year.

Serbia

CRUSHED by the combined Austrian-German advance, the nation of Serbia was overrun; its population forced into exile or left in the hands of the invader. Serbia was no longer a vital military factor in the war. The contribution of the American Red Cross to the people of Serbia is an expression of human kindness on the part of the American people to a suffering nation.

When the Red Cross Mission went to Serbia, the Austrian atrocities had reached their zenith. The Austrians had set themselves to annihilate that nation. In some places the people were driven by soldiers with fixed bayonets into courtyards of the schools and there shot down. In others, they were tied in groups to hayricks which were then set on fire. Victims were left hanging by scores to village trees.

There is a little strip of Serbia in the neighborhood of Monastir that has been saved from the invader, and it is here the Red Cross is helping what is left of Serbia. There are 21,000 acres of fertile plain in this district, and to this district the Red Cross is sending enough seeds and farm machinery to assure the production of thousands of bushels of barley, rye, potatoes and other food produce this year.

The 50,000 Serbians huddled into this district will become self-supporting. The medical assistance, the sanitary help necessary to these women children and old men, is being provided. There is hope for at least this little remnant of a brave people.

Roumania

COMPARABLE with Serbia is the case of Roumania. Rendered helpless by the enemy advance, Roumania, too, gave the Red Cross an opportunity not for making a nation more effective for war, but rather a chance to help a stricken people without hope of gain.

The Red Cross Mission to Roumania found conditions impossible to describe; found inhabitants picking wild grass for food. In the little village of Seltiu, a squalid shack of wood and mud was occupied by three little children. Their mother had succumbed to typhus. Their father was a soldier at the front. The eldest, a girl of ten, was acting as mother to a boy of four and a little sister of seven. The boy was lying helpless on a bag on the stone floor, his face eaten partly away by a malignant skin disease. The bones stuck out all over his tiny body. The girl was little better off. There were neither relatives, friends, nor any Government agency to give relief to these unfortunate children.

While it could, the Red Cross strove with all its might to bring relief to this stricken land. But the determination of Roumania and the help of the Red Cross was not sufficient proof against the trying conditions which Roumania faced, and the last chapter of American Red Cross help for Roumania was written when the Queen of Roumania recently cabled the Red Cross:

"At this hour in the midst of tragic events my thoughts turn with gratitude towards those who in anxious days, but when there was still hope, came to my aid. I wish once more to thank the American Red Cross for the splendid way in which it answered my appeal of a few months ago. A terrible fate has obliged Colonel Anderson, who was ready to remain in spite of adverse circumstances, to leave with all his unit. The work the American Red Cross Mission did amongst our wounded and amongst the suffering population is unforgetable to me and my people. Now that my country has to remain alone and forsaken, I wish once more to raise my voice and to thank all those who helped me, and to ask that we and our nation should not be forgotten. I ask of the great heart of America to remember Roumania, if even for a while. Strangulated, her cries will not reach it, and her tears will have to be wept in secret."

These are the situations that, multiplied almost without limit, challenge the American Red Cross. The story of Red Cross help must necessarily be told in totals, but for each unit there is a terrible and pathetic story. Where the symbol of the American Red Cross goes there is the reminder to bruised souls that the long miles between cannot separate suffering from American sympathy.

Then there is the great faith that America, rich with a wealth greater than any, with her territory undisturbed, can and will move with the spirit of devotion of which the Red Cross is a symbol and to which it is a servant.

L COMPANY OF 69TH GAME IN FIRST FIGHT

STOOD FAST IN HAIL OF FIRE

Several Won Crosses, and All Acted Like Veterans, He Informs Their Women Folk.

Captain Van Santvoord Merle-Smith, commanding Company L of the old 69th Regiment, has sent a letter to the relatives of the men of his company describing the conduct of the soldiers the first time they were under German shellfire. He details graphically their coolness under the attack and mentions the names of many who distinguished themselves by gallant behavior. Four of his Sergeants he reports, have been taken from the ranks to be commissioned as officers.

The letter is addressed to the mothers, wives, and friends of the men of the company who meet as a unit each week to exchange bits of news from the front and work for the regiment.

The letter follows:

To the Women of Company L, 165th Infantry

Probably you have heard by this time from those you are interested in details of the first experience of actual warfare we have had, but it is due that I should share with you my pride in the magnificent showing your boys, brothers, and husbands made when up against the boche, and the steadiness and courage and loyalty which meant so much to me and to all in their confidence in each other.

I have not time to relate the preparation work under heartrending conditions of hardship and lack of facilities, where the loyal and efficient work of the non-commissioned officers pulled us through everything with a smile and a company pride which became at first the secret envy of men and officers of other companies, and then the outspoken admiration. All the men deserved credit, but I can only mention here Sergeants Gannon, Larkin, Collins, Mahon, Heffernon, Donahue, Dunn, Landsert, Wittlinger, and Redmond among the many who helped to develop the present company.

The first experience of the men under fire came while digging a reserve trench behind the lines. Picture the long, long line of men digging like beavers except when called to stand immovable when German airplanes passed overhead. Then in the stillness the sharp crack of a shell bursting about sixty feet in the air directly over the centre of the line, and a shower of small splinters from the back blast. It was so sudden and unexpected, this first shell, that the men gave me the impression of metaphorically feeling themselves all over to see whether they were killed. They looked a bit dazed, but nobody was hit. It was a ranging shot from a German battery on our flank; the dangerous splinters passed well over us, so the men were ordered to work, and they did it with a laugh. After three more shells the Huns began to better their range, so I withdrew the men and, well spread out in the woods, we had our lunch, watching from a safe distance the Hun shower with about 130 shrapnel and high explosive shells the position where we had been working. When the bombardment let up, back we went, the men well separated, and, although about ten shells burst over them, there was hardly a movement in the line except to bend the head toward the burst to get the fullest protection from the steel helmet. In a short three hours they had gone a long way on the road toward being veterans.

Hail of 1,700 Shells.

It was clear from the rate of fire that the Germans thought they had scared us off and were putting these shells over slowly to keep us away, so I kept careful watch for the German plane which undoubtedly would come over to see if we had fooled them and come back. Over it came, just as we finished the work. Quick orders, and with the smoothness of veterans equipment was hurriedly slung and we moved rapidly off. When we were about 250 yards down the road in safety, the heavens opened and about 1,700 shells of all calibres were thrown on the spot where we had been digging, covering the immediate vicinity with shell holes all along the trench. We had done our work, fooled the boche, with no casualties but a rifle stock broken by a shell splinter, and each man was secretly proud because all knew that the company had been put in the most dangerous part of the trench after the first bombardment because they could be relied upon.

The same night news came from the front line of a number of casualties in our company sector, and of the dangerous condition in which the sector had been put by heavy enemy bombardment. The orders were changed and Company L was designated to take over that sector instead of another one.

When we marched out at 1 A. M. to relieve this other company all knew that we would have serious work ahead of us. The relief was made, and we had no more than the usual shelling for a day. The next day the boche started in with 10-inch mortar shells on the outposts and trenches. There was much danger, but report after report came to me from the officers referring to the coolness of the men, their prompt obedience to orders involving risk of death. Men in the outposts stuck to their posts, though their shelters were laid flat by shells which made craters 15 feet in diameter and 8 feet deep. Lieutenant Booth was wounded, not seriously, withdrawing men from the outposts under this fire, and has been decorated with the French Croix de Guerre. I cannot give you the detail of the work of your men, but for about seven hours each day the Huns hammered our outposts and trenches. Sections of trench were reduced to masses of craters, huge gaps were torn in our wire entanglements, and each night under machine-gun and rifle fire your men worked out in No Man's Land, repairing wire, or in the trenches, digging them anew, while the covering parties patrolled out toward the German wire to prevent attack.

The men worked there many nights until the next dawn began to show on the eastern horizon. You may well suppose that working all night and suffering heavy bombardment all day could be a considerable strain, but never once under fire or during dangerous and delicate work did I fail to receive an easy confident smile from your boys as they stood at their posts or did their work. Here showed the results of the hard, grinding training, and their confidence in the non-commissioned officers and platoon leaders. One can never realize unless one has been through it how much of the natural strain is taken off every one's mind by the knowledge that the man on post next you is surely on the job and ready to do more than his duty; that the non-commissioned officers and officers are keen and cool and know what they are talking about when they tell you such and such a place is the best for you, or when ordered to do a dangerous thing that every possible precaution is taken for your safety. And the confidence was well taken, because with all the hammering we got there were only three wounded in the company sector, and those so slightly that they were annoyed at having to go to the rear.

Corporal Spencer Wins Cross.

I cannot give you the details of raids from and on our sectors, though I wish I could, nor of the many little deeds of devotion to duty and bravery. Private Sandy, after having a large splinter up the side of his overcoat, calmly called his men, put them in safety, and then continued his observations of the enemy fire. Corporal Spencer, in an unprotected observation post, amid showers of splinters, noted and reported on the position of the enemy guns shelling us and the effect of our own counter-artillery fire. He was given the Croix de Guerre for his coolness and bravery, and for the result of his careful work, insuring the safety of the command. Corporal Bexaid did excellent work directing wiring parties at work under machine gun fire. There was the cool resourcefulness of Sergeants Collins, Heffernon, and Donahue, and of Acting Sergeants Convey and Redmond in various dangerous situations; the work of Sergeant Kerr and Private Barlin (or Balin) in repairing the telephone wires under bombardment when the wire they were repairing was cut by splinters between them.

These are only a few instances among the number I know about, and there are undoubtedly many more of which I am ignorant. For instance, it does not include the men sent under shellfire daily to carry food and supplies to the front-line trenches, or the messengers who must go whatever the conditions. These are the things which in other wars would have earned citation of bravery; in this war they are merely one's duty.

Such is the stuff of which your men are made, and the above is a poor picture of experiences that have put a new look into their eyes. They are veterans, and they show it in looks and in behavior. They have gained new confidence and comradeship and many other things, and they are proud of it, for they know it is pure gold.

I only wish to report that I write this so that you may share in the intense pride I have in them, one and every man, and to share also with you my joy in seeing them all in magnificent health and spirits after my return from the hospital, where I was forced to go after we left the trenches because of a slight wound.

Please let my wife know if there is anything we can do for you over here.

VAN SANTVOORD MERLE-SMITH,
Captain N. G., 165th Infantry,
Commanding Company L.

P. S.—Sergeants Mahon, Larkin, Donahue, Collins, and Dunn have been taken from us to make officers of them, and Sergeant Sheahan has been promoted to Regimental Color Sergeant.

GERMANS RAIL AT WILSON

But Vorwaerts Says Red Cross Speech Points Berlin Mistakes.

AMSTERDAM, May 23.—Commenting on President Wilson's recent speech in New York in opening the Red Cross campaign, the Berlin newspaper Vorwärts says that it is easy to pick out many parts of the address as mere German-baiting and exaggeration, but that on the whole it accurately reflects the psychological impression which the peace of Brest-Litovsk and that of Bucharest were bound to produce on the other side of the Atlantic. The Socialist organ rails at what it calls the "alleged unselfishness" of the Entente's aims, but says that doubtless President Wilson's people will believe him.

The peace made by the Central Powers in the East, the newspaper thinks, has greatly strengthened President Wilson's position. Germany is propagating the idea, says Vorwärts, that the speech was meant to offset "the British peace offensive," but it declares the trick will not work.

Other German newspapers, none of which prints the speech in full, comment in the usual abusive style on the alleged "impurity" of the President's motives. "His is a pathological case," the Kreuz-Zeitung says.

52 ENEMY ALIENS LEAVE FOR GEORGIA

O'LEARY IS STILL MISSING

Women in Bronxville Unite in Crusade Against Attacks on Allies.

Fifty-two enemy aliens started for the internment prison at Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, yesterday morning. One of the enemy subjects was "William L. Dunbar," the young German who was arrested several months ago when in command of a United States naval patrol vessel. Until his name—the name he uses is said to be assumed—appeared on the list of enemy subjects ordered interned, not a word had been given out concerning "Dunbar" since his arrest by agents of the Naval Intelligence Service last year. The man posed as an American citizen of English extraction in order to get into the navy. He held the rank of ensign in the Naval Reserve force when taken into custody.

It transpires that Dunbar has been for months a prisoner in the Mercer County, N. J., jail. The fact that he made an unsuccessful effort to get into the aviation section of the army, and failing in that got into the navy, has caused a great deal of speculation as to the action the Department of Justice would take in his case. The matter has now been settled and he will reside in the Georgia interment camp until the war ends.

Eugen Schwerdt, the German wool expert, who was one of Hugo Schmidt's chief assistants in the effort that was made to get wool from the United States, South America, South Africa, and Australia into Germany, was also of the party. Schwerdt is the man who went to Belgium more than a score of years ago, became a subject of the Belgian crown, and even permitted his son to enter the Belgian army. He won the friendship of King Albert, and as a result of that friendship was able to get his son out of the army and bring him to this country. Subsequently he sent the boy to South America to gain information needed by the Germans.

Karl Schubert, said to be a friend of Bernstorff's, and whose wife was the first German women to be arrested after Congress passed a law putting German women on the same status as men, is also among those on the way to Georgia. Josef Stulz, the Poughkeepsie chemist who married into one of the best-known and wealthiest families of that city, is another member of the southbound delegation.

Others in the party are Charles Lang, Josef Ballsnec, Franz August Wildgrube, Louis Glanz, Gothilf Wenzel, Ernst Müller, Wilhelm Suhring, Georg Adolf Schmidt, Edward W. C. Muller, Edmund Fischer, Paul Degenhardt, Josef Stochlin, Hans Donecker, Johann Yeager, Ernst Brunette, Zarle Alesmann, Karl Gessert, Johann Heinrich, Johann Beckmann, Fritz Berlitz, A. E. Jacob, Fritz Schaly, Georg P. Scholl, Johann Wittenberg, Adolf Schönberg, Ernesto Perez, Hans Fleiss, Georg Kuhlmann, Josef Feoderer, Emil Ellermann, Bernhardt Mowbers, Friedrich Liebeck, Wilhelm Lübbers, Anton Yacubin, Karl Braun, Heinrich Zenter, and Karl J. Vogel.

Jeremiah A. O'Leary, the Sinn Fein agitator, was reported absent when, for a second time this week, he was called for trial in the Federal District Court yesterday. O'Leary has been missing since May 8, the day he left his home on what was supposed to be a trip to the Adirondacks. The case will be called for trial a third time on May 31. In the meantime the Secret Service is searching the country for the fugitive.

While details have not been made public, it is known that the Government is now making a thorough investigation of the Sinn Fein situation in this country, particularly in New York, where the agitators are said to have their headquarters.

Prominent women of Bronxville, who met at a luncheon given by Mrs. Casper Whitney at the Hotel Gramatan yesterday, adopted a resolution declaring that, "Since it is generally known that there is a group of persons in this village, who, while not openly antagonistic to our Government, still give evidence of a disposition to thwart the efforts of our Government by voicing utterances tending to create suspicion in American minds as to the good faith of some of our allies, it becomes the duty of every person here present to assist in creating such public opinion that these persons will cease their insidious endeavors or that they be dealt with in such a manner that they can do no more mischief."

Newburg Garage Owner Says Car Was Left by Fugitive's Brother.

NEWBURG, N. Y., May 23.—The seventy horse power Mercer car belonging to Jeremiah O'Leary, the Irish agitator, was found in a garage here early today by James Williamson, County Detective, and Lieutenant Dickey of the Newburg police. The owner of the garage, William P. Donahue, said the car had been left with him on May 11 by Dr. Daniel O'Leary, a brother of the fugitive. The instructions, he said, were to remove the tires and jack up the car, as it would not be placed in commission again this year. The license number plates had been taken off, but were in the car. Dr. O'Leary is a practicing physician here. He said today that the car had been brought to Newburg by John O'Leary, another brother.

On all of these points, however, Director General McAdoo remained silent today and refused to discuss the reports which were heard on every side.

Mr. McAdoo today announced the selection of two more Regional Directors. After June 1 the Southern region will be in charge of B. L. Winchell, who has resigned as Director of Traffic of the Union Pacific and severed all of his connections with other corporate interests. Mr. Winchell will have offices at Atlanta. He was a former President and General Manager of the Kansas City, Fort Worth & Memphis system; President of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad, and President of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad and the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad.

N. D. Maher, President of the Norfolk & Western Railway, was appointed Director of the Pocahontas region, with offices at Roanoke, Va. He will have supervision over the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway east of Louisville, Ky., Columbus, and Cincinnati; the Chesapeake & Ohio Northern, the Norfolk & Western Railway, and the Virginian Railway. In addition, the Pocahontas region will include the terminals and harbor operations of all lines reaching Hampton Roads.

The selection of Federal Managers who will be in charge of the operation of the individual lines and report to the regional Directors is being studied with the greatest care by Mr. McAdoo, his regional Directors, and the members of his Advisory Council. It will be the purpose of the Railroad Administration in this way to obtain the services of the men who have been active in the operating end of the systems and men who have exhibited the spirit of co-operation with the Government officials since the railroads came under their control.

It is understood that a number of the railroad Presidents who have not been in direct charge of operations have expressed the desire to remain at the head of their corporations rather than be named as Federal Managers, as they consider that they will have work of the most vital importance to the stockholders, to perform in the former capacity. All of these questions will be taken into consideration.

All Freight Charges in Cash.

Another sweeping order, which will have a far-reaching effect, was issued today by Mr. McAdoo placing all transportation charges strictly upon a cash basis. It was stated frankly that this was done to make it impossible for railroads to demand cash of some shippers and extend credit to others, a practice which Mr. McAdoo believes permitted much unfair discrimination.

The new regulations will go into effect on July 1. The first intimation that such an order would be promulgated was given on May 20, and there have been protests lodged by a number of shippers, some of them affiliated with the National Shippers' Association of Chicago and other organizations. To all such protests Mr. McAdoo, however, has turned a deaf ear. As a warning to the railroads and shippers Mr. McAdoo authorised this statement by C. A. Prouty, Director of the Division of Public Service and Accounting of the Railroad Administration:

"The Director General is about issuing an order putting the payment of all transportation charges upon a cash basis, and is especially desirous that this shall result in as little inconvenience as possible to the public. The rule should be interpreted in a practical, business way. If, for example, the consignee who is financially responsible is accustomed to send for his freight in the morning, and the collection of the freight charge is effected in the afternoon, that should be treated as a cash transaction, so long as the consignee continues to pay his freight charge promptly upon presentation of the freight bill. Similar application of the rule should be made in the collection of a prepaid charge from a shipper. That is to say, payment of such a charge, if made on the day the shipment is forwarded, will be treated as a cash transaction.

"The enforcement of the cash rule will require payment by the shipper and consignee, for the most part, without opportunity for the correction of errors in the freight bill, but in all cases where a mistake is obvious or where it is plainly indicated upon the face of the bill, the agent should make the correction before exacting payment.

"The Director General is also anxious that the public shall understand that the reason for the promulgation of this order is to prevent discrimination between shippers and consignees. The extending of credit in the payment of transportation charges to one person while it is denied to another results in a preference in favor of the person to whom credit is given. While repeated attempts have been made in the past to check this evil, competitive conditions have rendered it impossible to do so. At the present time many shippers and consignees, especially large ones, enjoy with respect to many of their freight bills a credit not only of days but of weeks and sometimes of months. There seems to be no way of dealing with this except to enforce the cash rule.

"The Director General is further instructs me to say that he has under consideration rules, which will be promulgated in the near future, touching upon the settlement of overcharges and claims for loss and damage, which he believes will result in the prompt and fair disposition of such matters with a minimum of inconvenience to the public."

Rea and Willard Out.

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—Samuel Rea, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, has been deposed of any connection with the operation of the line under the Government. Mr. Rea was called to Washington last Monday and told that his services as operating head of the Pennsylvania System were no longer desired. The same notice was given to Daniel Willard to step out of the operating affairs of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, of which he is President.

So far as can be learned, Director General McAdoo advanced no reason for his action. The order was conveyed through Walker D. Hines, Assistant Director General. The two Presidents will give up the operating reins when Charles H. Markham, newly appointed Director of the Allegheny Region, embracing this district, assumes control about June 1.

It was generally believed Mr. Rea would be named Federal Manager of the Pennsylvania to co-operate with Mr. Markham. The fact of Mr. Rea's long association with the operation of the Pennsylvania inspired the belief that his services would be invaluable to the Government at this time.

Mr. Rea will continue to act as the corporation's President. In this capacity he will have charge of protecting the interests of the stockholders. This includes the management of the income from property owned by the system. Control of the railroads by the Government has split the conduct of the business into two parts—operating and corporate. The Government's control extends only to the physical operation. It has no authority to dispose of property owned by the corporation, such as income from securities, rentals from buildings, &c.

It is to care for this corporate end of the business that Mr. Rea will be retained. Whereas actual appointment to this office has not taken place, it is a foregone conclusion among interests in a position to know that the Directors will ratify this program at their next meeting, June 12.

A week ago last Wednesday Mr. Rea started on an inspection trip over the lines of the system. He received word in Pittsburgh on Sunday to report to Director General McAdoo on Monday morning. Mr. Rea was thereon time, and in the ante-room he found Daniel Willard. A request for Mr. McAdoo elicited the information that the Director General was ill and could not see them. However, Mr. Hines appeared and explained that the services of neither executive were required under the Government program. At that time also it was explained that the Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio systems were to be cut in half at Pittsburgh, with Charles H. Markham as Regional Director for this territory.

Much speculation has arisen as to the actual reason for the discharge of Mr. Rea, and conclusions have been drawn as to a possible similarity of some clash of authority as occurred in the case of C. W. Huntington, President of the Virginian Railway, who was relieved from duty for a supposed failure to co-operate with the national railroad program.

For years the Pennsylvania has not been on good terms with the Interstate Commerce Commission, on account of the fact that it took the lead in fighting for increases in freight rates. Mr. Rea usually opened the case for the lines and some of his comments were understood to have irritated members of the commission.

Titus Left More Than $25,000.

The will of ex-Police Inspector George F. Titus, who died on May 7, disposes of an estate of more than $25,000. Mrs. Julia T. Titus, the widow, receives $20,000 cash and all personal effects, and the remainder of the estate goes to Anna W. Titus, their child. They are the only heirs-at-law.

SHORT LINES WORRY McADOO

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—In a letter to Senator Overman of North Carolina today, John Barton Payne, General Counsel of the Division of Law of the Railroad Administration, dwelt upon the difficulty confronting the Administration in taking over the short-line railroads, authority for which was granted to the Railroad Administration under the law passed last Winter. The problem of increased rates and wages, Mr. Payne pointed out, has been perplexing, owners of the short-line railroads feeling that they ought to be allowed increases proportionate to those made in the trunk lines.

Owing to the difficulties of adjustment, Mr. Payne said, the Administration had not as yet taken over the short-line roads. In his letter Mr. Payne outlined a scheme evolved by the Railroad Administration for taking them over, and asked that Congress express its opinion of it. Mr. Payne wrote:

"I call your attention to the very great difficulties which the Railroad Administration confronts with reference to the short-line roads. You know that many people believe that the Government should take these roads and operate them. Many of them are not necessary for any Government purpose, but it is a matter of profound interest that they be continued in operation, because they serve the highest need of many local communities. What is best has been given the Director General and his staff great anxiety. I submit the following suggestions as a solution of the problem:

"(a) If the roads are taken over by the Government there will be an immediate raise in wages or all employes in keeping with the wage adjustment which has just been made with the trunk lines, and there will be a demand for an improvement in service and an improvement in general conditions on the line so as to bring the roads up to the standard of the trunk lines. This will be due to the fact that they are under Government control and that the Government should treat everybody alike.

"(B) It seems to me that the roads themselves, the communities, and the Government will be benefited if the following happens:

"(1) That the Government see that the short-line roads have a fair division of the joint rates; in many cases heretofore they have not enjoyed a fair division.

"(2) Also an increase in rates—this must be by the State Commissions—so as to keep them on a parity with the rates on the trunk lines which must be raised to meet existing conditions; also the Government will see that the roads are furnished so far as is possible with an adequate supply of cars, so that they may serve the public, and that the freight shall not be so routed as to discriminate against these lines.

"Please advise me whether, in your opinion, if the Administration adopts such a policy as is here outlined, it will not best serve the public and the Government."

Senator Overman has submitted the letter to the Committee on Railroads which will consider a reply.

Senator Cummins of the Interstate Commerce Committee offered a resolution in the Senate today calling upon the Railroad Administration to furnish the Senate a copy of the agreement between the Government and each railroad as to compensation under Government operation of roads, also the names of carriers if any, that have failed to enter into the agreement.

POLA RAIDERS PRISONERS.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Definite announcement that Commander Pellegrini and his men, who torpedoed an Austrian battleship in the harbor of Pola May 14, were taken prisoners was contained in a cable dispatch to the Italian Embassy today from Rome.

Press dispatches have said that it was not known definitely what became of the Italian commander and his men, who entered the harbor in a small craft which they sank after torpedoing the battleship.

MISS STINSON MAKES NEW FLYING RECORD

LANDS AT BINGHAMTON

Lack of Gas Forces Her to Make Descent, Which Damages Machine —Will Complete Trip Today.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 23.—Katherine Stinson, who left Chicago this morning with Government mail for New York, landed two miles north of this city at 6:30 this evening. She met with an accident while attempting a landing, the machine turning turtle just as it reached the ground. The propeller was smashed and one of the wings damaged. Miss Stinson was uninjured.

Having covered the 783 miles from Chicago to this city in ten hours, Miss Stinson bettered the distance made by Ruth Law in her record-breaking flight in the Fall of 1916 by about nine miles. She circled the city in search of a suitable landing place, and finally picked out a small plateau on a high hill north of the city. A strong wind added to the difficulties of the landing.

Hundreds of automobiles raced to the landing place and help was at hand soon after the plane came to a stop. Miss Stinson directed the work of righting the machine, apparently none the worse for her mishap.

Although keenly disappointed because of her failure to reach the metropolis, Miss Stinson was elated at having smashed two American records, one for distance and another, held by herself, for endurance.

Will Complete Trip Today.

After being brought by automobilists to a hotel here, she stated that repairs to her plane will be made during the night, and that she will be ready to resume her journey to New York at 8 o'clock in the morning. A new propeller will be forwarded from Elmira, and the slight damage to the machine will be repaired by local machinists.

The previous distance record, Miss Stinson stated, was held by Bounds, an American aviator. This was for 700 miles without a stop. She bettered this record by eighty-three miles today. The endurance record established by Miss Stinson in her flight from San Diego to San Francisco, on Dec. 11 of last year, was bettered by her performance of today by one hour and five minutes.

Miss Ruth Law's flight over the same route two years ago to Binghamton, Miss Stinson pointed out, was not a non-stop flight. Miss Law having landed before reaching this city.

Lack of gas forced her to land here, Miss Stinson explained. She decided to land on the side hill because it had a level appearance and she thought that the drainage would be sufficient to remove any danger of mud. In this she miscalculated, for the muddy soil proved her undoing. The wheels of the plane became imbedded and this caused it to topple over.

"You may tell the mothers of any young man in the flying service for me that there is no necessity for them to worry about their boys," Miss Stinson stated. "My flight today proves that long distances may be covered with little danger."

Interviewers were forced to shout their question to the aviatrix because the roar of the motor during her long period in the air had rendered her almost deaf.

Left Chicago at 7:37 A. M.

CHICAGO, May 23.—Katherine Stinson left from Grant Park at 7:37 this morning unannounced. In addition to sixty-one letters she carried a message from Frank O. Wetmore, Chairman of the Red Cross campaign here, to Secretary McAdoo, telling of the success of the drive in this city. Miss Stinson said she expected to arrive at Garden City, Long Island, about 8:30 in the evening.

Her rations for the flight consisted of three handfuls of malted milk tablets. In waving farewell to Captains Richard Pollion and L. A. Donahue of aviation headquarters, she remarked, "One handful is my breakfast, one is my luncheon, and the third is my dinner."

Miss Stinson's start was made after more than a week's delay. First, she was required to obtain a special permit from the War Department, and then she had to be sworn in as a special Post Office messenger. These commissions were received yesterday.

The morning was perfect for the flight. Miss Stinson was swathed in woolens and leather when she took the air. The only persons to see her leave were Postmaster Carlisle and a few invited guests.

When on Nov. 20, 1916, Miss Ruth Law glided her obsolete 100-horse power "pusher" airplane to a landing on Governors Island after a flight from Chicago, it was announced that she had established an American non-stop cross country record, the world's record for women, and the second best world cross country non-stop record. Miss Law left Chicago at 8:25 A. M. (Eastern time) and reached Hornell, N. Y., at 2:10 P. M., a distance of 590 miles from Chicago. She remained in Hornell just one hour and fourteen minutes and took to the air again, making Binghamton, ninety miles further, at 4:20 P. M. She spent the night there and the next morning started away again at 7:23 7:23, and at 9:37 landed on Governors Island.

In making the non-stop trip to Hornell Miss Law broke the non-stop cross-country record that had just been made in the first Chicago-New York flight for The New York Times by the late Victor Carlstrom., who flew from Chicago to Erie, Penn., a distance of 452 miles.

Carlstrom was forced to interrupt what was a record trip because of a leak in a gasoline pipe.

The only aviator said to have flown further than Miss Law was Sub-Lieutenant A. Marchal of the French Army, who on June 20 and 21 last flew from Nancy, France, to Chelm, Poland, a distance of 812.5 miles.

Miss Law had mapped out her course carefully. She was forced to alight at Hornell because of lack of fuel and as soon as her tanks were refilled she took to the air again. In describing the flight from Binghamton to Governors Island Miss Law said that she was coming down the Hudson, opposite the city, when her engine began to miss fire, warning her that her gasoline supply was becoming exhausted. Instead of coming down she used what fuel she had to go higher and, when at a sufficient height she shut off the power and slid down the air to a safe landing on the island.

There was considerable disappointment at the aviation field here when it was learned that Miss Stinson had met with an accident near Binghamton. About 5 o'clock a few of the aviators were flying about the field, waiting for the expected arrival of the young aviatrix. They remained aloft for an hour or more, when word was received of her delay and they returned to the field.

Postmaster McDermott of Hempstead was at the field to receive the mail which Miss Stinston is carrying, and will return tomorrow if the trip is to be continued.

HOOVER SAYS WORLD MUST GET FOOD HERE

Declares the United States Will Be Last Source of Supply When the War Ends.

The world duty of the United States is to build up its food resources so as to stand ready for any demand made by the Allies on this country, said Food Administrator Herbert C. Hoover yesterday in addressing a large gathering of farmers and dairymen at the National Milk and Dairy Farm Exposition held at the Grand Central Palace.

"It is of no purpose to send millions of our best men to France if we fail to maintain the strength of their men, women, and children on our lines of communication," he said. "After the war the time will come when we will need to replenish their herds from our own cattle, and we will need to supply the whole world. The United States is the last reservoir of men, the last reservoir of ships, the last reservoir of munitions, and the last reservoir of food upon which the allied world must depend if Germany is to be defeated and if we are to be free men."

Therefore it devolved on America, Mr. Hoover said, to maintain its present great potential strength in herds, which, if once lost, could not be re-established. He declared that not only must our herds be maintained as a guarantee to our allies, but they will be vital in the world's regeneration.

Mr. Hoover, addressing yesterday more than 200 of the 1,000 east side bakers who are on strike, appealed to them to end their strike by accepting an award of mediation which in part meets their wage demands.

WOMEN ENROLL TOMORROW.

Women who wish to vote in the primaries next September must enroll tomorrow. Enrollment places will be open from 9 A. M. to 10 P. M. A list of all these places was printed in The Times last Sunday.

LAND ARMY INCORPORATES.

Will Aim to Supply Woman Farm Workers for New York State.

With the view of organizing units of women for farm work in Westchester County, the New York State Woman's Land Army has filed a certificate of incorporation at White Plains, with principal office in the White Plains Court House. Its objects are to respond to the appeal of the Government for increased food production through self-sustaining groups or units of women for farm work, to distribute and assist in distributing such units or individual workers to such farming districts in New York State as may most need their services; to co-operate with the national organization doing similar work, and with any other public or private organizations or agencies.

MAYOR NAMES MAGISTRATE.

Francis Mancuso Will Fill Vacancy Caused by Resignation.

Francis X. Mancuso, for the last thirty days a temporary Magistrate, and former Assistant District Attorney under District Attorney Swann, was appointed yesterday a permanent Magistrate by Mayor Hylan.

Magistrate Mancuso, who lives at 246 East 115th Street, and has a law office at 95 Liberty Street, will probably preside today at the Jefferson Market Court.

He was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Magistrate Edward Boyle, who resigned as a Magistrate when he was appointed a Municipal Court Justice more than a month ago.

Georgia Negro Lynched by Mob.

CORDELE, Ga., May 23.—James Cobb, the negro taken from the jail here by a mob shortly after midnight, was carried to the scene where he attacked and killed Mrs. Roy Simmons, seven miles east of Cordele, and hanged to a tree.

IN FLANDER S FIELDS

By Lieut.-Colonel JOHN McRAE
(Died while on duty in Flanders)

IN FLANDERS fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our places; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amidst the guns below.
We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch. Be yours to hold it high!
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

—From London Punch.

No single agency in the world is doing more to keep up the spirit of the fighters at the front, to bring cheer to the stricken, to heal the millions of broken hearts and torn limbs, to keep alive the spirit of brotherly love, than the American Red Cross.

The American Red Cross is maintained by popular subscription only. It's your dollar and our dollar that makes this work possible.

First contribute all the cash that you can in the form of subscriptions to the American Red Cross. Then take advantage of this offer which certain druggists in New York City who have pledged 10% of their receipts tomorrow have been authorized to make.

There must be a lot of things sold in the drug store that you need in your home, drugs, remedies, toilet needs, soaps, tooth brushes, hair brushes, toilet powders, stationery, rubber goods or nursery supplies. Take advantage of our regular Week-end Food Specials, tea, coffee, cocoa sold at reduced prices.

YOU MIGHT JUST AS WELL buy and thus contribute 10c of every dollar that you spend just as surely as though you had sent it to the Red Cross yourself.

This same plan of giving ten cents of every dollar received is not alone in effect in the Liggett Stores, but in every drug store in New York City that signifies its intention to donate 10% of its receipts by displaying the official sign which we reproduce at the heading of this announcement.

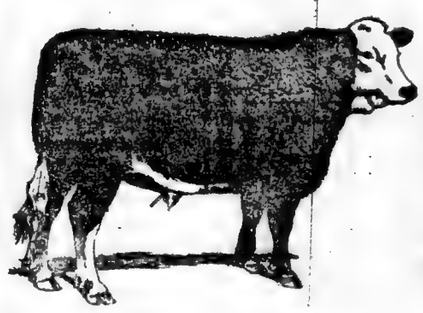
Only About Half the Steer is Beef



Live Weight 1200 pounds
100%

Dressed Weight 672 pounds of Beef
56%

When Swift & Company buys a steer weighing 1200 pounds, only about 672 pounds goes to market as beef; the other 528 pounds consists of hide, fats, other by-products, and waste.

When the packer pays 15 cents a pound for a steer, he sells the meat to the retailer for about 24 cents. But the packer gets only about 6 cents a pound for the other 528 pounds.

This means that the packer gets about 16 cents a pound for all the products from a steer for which he pays 15 cents.

The difference of 1 cent per pound covers the cost of dressing, preparation of by-products, freight on beef to all parts of the United States, operation of distributing houses, and leaves a net profit of only about ¼ of a cent per pound on all dressed beef sold.

Large volume of business and utilization of parts that were formerly wasted, make this achievement possible.

GIANTS TRIUMPH IN FOURTEENTH INNING

Doubles by Zimmerman and Fletcher and Holke's Single End Long Contest.

CARDS USE THREE PITCHERS

Tesreau and Anderson, However, Prove Equal to Task of Winning for New York.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, May 23.—It took the Giants fourteen innings to wrest a victory from the Cardinals by a score of 6 to 4 in the final game of the series today. The Cardinals expended three pitchers in a vain attempt to check the Giants, using Jakie May, Bill Doak, and Bill Sherdell, while Jeff Tesreau and Fred Anderson worked for the Giants.

McGraw's men put the winning runs over on doubles by Zimmerman and Fletcher and Holke's single.

Hendrick's men got away to a two-run lead in the first inning on a single by Smith and Walton Cruise's smash into the right field stand.

The Giants collected their first run in the second inning. Holke drew a pass. McCarty fouled to Snyder, after which the attention of the umpire was called to the fact that McCarty had batted out of turn. Rodriguez, whose place the catcher had usurped, was declared out and McCarty, ordered to bat again, singled to centre. Tesreau followed with a single to right, scoring Holke.

In the following inning McGraw's men forged ahead. Burns was hit by a pitched ball and Zimmerman singled to left, after which George and Heinie put on a double steal. Fletcher slammed a single to right, scoring both men. At this juncture May was relieved by Doak.

The Giants scored again in the sixth. Holke doubled to right and reached third when Paulette, fielding Rodriguez's bunt, threw to Baird too late to head off the runner. Rodriguez stole second, and when Snyder's throw went into centre field Holke scored. Rodriguez raced for third on the error, but Smith, who retrieved the ball, threw him out.

The Mound City crew pulled up one notch in the seventh, tallying on Paulette's double to right, Wallace's out, and Snyder's single through the box. They knotted the count in the eighth, errors by Fletcher and Rodriguez figuring in the scoring of the tying run.

Hornsby was sent up as a pinch hitter for Doak and singled to centre, and Packard was sent in to run for him. Fletcher fielded Smyth's grounder and stepped on second to force Packard, but the runner was declared safe when the ball dropped from Fletcher's hand. Smith's sacrifice advanced the runners, after which Baird hit to Fletcher and Packard was thrown out at the plate. Rodriguez booted Cruise's grounder and Smyth dashed over the plate with the run that put the teams on an even basis.

PIRATES BOW TO PHILLIES.

Mayer's Wildness Troublesome, but Pittsburgh Fails to Hit.

PITTSBURGH, May 23.—Philadelphia and Pittsburgh closed a three-game series today, the visitors winning 3 to 2. Mayer, who pitched for Philadelphia, was wild, passing eight men and hitting two, but he was effective with men on the bases.

Bancroft's error in the second gave the home team its two runs and, but for this fact, Pittsburgh would have been shut out.

Hit Eller Hard in Two Innings, Downing Matty's Men, 4 to 3.

CINCINNATI, May 23.—Boston evened up the four-game series today by hitting Eller hard in two innings. Hearn was hit safely thirteen times, but kept the blows well scattered, and his control was perfect.

His double in the eighth started the inning rally. J. Smith's two errors each cost a run, but his single in the eighth sent in the tying and winning tallies.

WEAVER BAFFLES BROOKLYN

CHICAGO, May 23.—The Robins were completely mystified by the pitching of Chicago's young pitcher, Weaver, here this afternoon, the recruit holding Brooklyn to four hits in a 5 to 0 shutout. Dan Griner pitched seven innings for Brooklyn, and the Cubs had no trouble in bunching hits when they needed runs. The Dodgers played perfect ball in the field, but were helpless before Weaver's twirling, Olson, Myers, Johnston and Griner getting the only hits.

The Cubs greeted Griner with a brace of hits in the first inning. Flack singled to left and Olson threw Hollocher out at first, Flack going to second. Merkle smashed a two-bagger to right, sending Flack home. In the third inning the Dodgers had a chance but failed to get a run across. Krueger walked, and went to second on Griner's single. Both runners advanced on Olson's out. O'Mara rolled to Hollocher, who threw Krueger out at the plate, Griner going to third. On an attempted double steal Griner was nipped sliding home.

In the fourth, with one out, Paskert singled to centre. Deal was out at first, Paskert going to second and scoring on Zeider's single to centre. Hollocher walked in the sixth and Mann singled to left. Merkle sent the runners along with a sacrifice. Paskert grounded to O'Mara and Hollocher was out at the plate, Mann then counted on a double steal.

The Cubs were busy again in the seventh. After Zeider walked, O'Farrell sacrificed and Weaver fanned. Flack singled to left, scoring Zeider, and went to second on the throw in. Flack went to third on Griner's wild pitch and scored on Hollocher's single.

M'NAMARA, PAIRED WITH HAGEN, WINS

Even though he had never seen the course before, Walter Hagen was low man in a professional four-ball golf match at the Apawamis Club yesterday afternoon. The North and South champion, with Tom McNamara as partner, defeated the English pair, Jim Barnes and Gil Nicholls, 3 up and 1 to play. Hagen was credited with a round in 73; Nicholls, 75; Barnes, 76, and McNamara, 78.

As far as being unfamiliar with the course goes, yesterday's play at Apawamis was also Barnes's first experience. Incidentally the Western open title holder had hard luck in that his three longest drives got him into trouble. From the seventh tee he "stung" the ball so viciously that it never stopped going until it reached the rough well into the gorge. The drive was close to 300 yards. A little later from the tenth tee his ball rolled into the pond, a hazard that in days gone by has caught hundreds of pulled second shots.

It was from the seventeenth tee, however, that the tall Briton hit a ball that made the gallery gasp. Straight down the course the sphere flew, finally stopping within a yard of the old cross bunker. The hole is 537 yards, and had Barnes's ball been a few feet shorter he probably would have been able to get home with a cleek. As it was in trying to get distance he failed to get the ball up sharply enough to clear the hazard. This drive, too, was close to the 300-yard mark.

Throughout the match Hagen and Nicholls were never far behind Barnes, and at the seventeenth hole the two first named were over the green on their second shots. Even if he was on the losing side, Nicholls flashed brilliantly on several occasions. A fifteen-foot curling putt enabled him to win the fourth hole in 3, a stroke under par, and he supplemented that with another birdie at the short fifth, holing a chip shot from off the green's edge for a 2.

At the turn the sides stood all square, but Hagen soon changed this aspect by laying an approach shot close up at the tenth and winning with a 3 there, while at the twelfth, after failing to drive the green, he chipped in with his mashie for a 2. That made the homebreds 2 up, and they always looked like winners thereafter, even though Nicholls did win the thirteenth in 3. With threes at the 217-yard sixteenth, where their opponents overdrove the green, Hagen and McNamara became dormie. The latter pair completed the job by winning the seventeenth, McNamara getting a 4.

Before the match had gone far the gallery increased to fair proportions and a fair sum was raised for the Red Cross. The best ball cards follow:

FORDHAM SHUT OUT AGAIN.

Mt. St. Joseph's College Gets Lone Tally in First Inning.

Fordham was blanked yesterday afternoon on Fordham Field by a 1 to 0 score for the second time in two days. The nine from Mt. St. Joseph's College of Baltimore applied the whitewash, and, as happened in the Fort Slocum game, the lone but potential tally secured in the first inning was enough to win the game.

In this frame McGuire was hit by Martin, stole second and third, and scored when Lefevre let Galligan's high peg get by him. Abbott was nailed at home in the eighth when he tried to score from second on a single, Ganon making a perfect throw. Brooks was too effective in the pinches to allow scoring, although Fordham filled the bases in the fourth.

Martin retired in favor of Halloran in the fourth with the bases filled, and Halloran allowed four hits for the rest of the game.

CITY COLLEGE VICTORIOUS.

Lavender Nine Finds Cathedral College Easy and Wins by 8 to 2.

City College took the measure of the Cathedral College nine yesterday in the City College stadium by the score of 8 to 2. The Washington Heights team downed the conquerors of Columbia in easy fashion. Errors by the visitors contributed largely to their defeat, seven blunders being chalked up against them. Thomas, who was on the mound for the Lavender, held his opponents to five scattered hits.

YALE CREWS OFF FOR RACE.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 23.—The Yale second 'Varsity and freshman crews left here this afternoon for their races Saturday on the Charles with Harvard. As usual, Yale has arranged races for both 'Varsity and freshman crews with its ancient rival, but the first 'Varsity event will take place on the Housatonic River a week later.

Practically no change has been made in the freshman eight since its losing race on the Schuylkill two weeks ago. Coxswain Carson has been elected Captain and Stroke Heminway, a 148-pound oarsman, is relied upon by Coach Mather Abbott to give the shell drive enough to get over the finish line first. The freshmen showed great possibilities in their race with Pennsylvania, but rowed that contest like an inexperienced eight and lost.

The freshmen's chances for victory at Boston are stronger than those of the second 'Varsity, which has lost Stroke Austin, who was promoted to the first eight. Price, however, of the first shell, has been sent back to 5 in the second eight. S. B. Dexeter, who has been a substitute, has been placed at stroke, although he has had little experience. Another substitute, Campbell, has been placed at 6. In his preparatory school rowing at Duluth he received the coaching of Ten Eyck. Patterson has gone into the shell at 4, displacing Borders, who has gone to 3, and another substitute, Du Pont, has displaced Rostand.

CORNELL HAS TRIAL SPIN.

'Varsity and Cub Crews Prepare on Carnegie Lake for Tiger Race.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 23.—The Cornell 'Varsity and freshman crews held a trial spin over the Carnegie Lake course this afternoon, in preparation for their dual regatta with the Tigers on Saturday. They arrived here about noon, and their shells having arrived the day previous, everything was in readiness for them to commence applying the finishing touches to their development. Following the practice the oarsmen declared they found the conditions on Carnegie Lake very similar to those to which they are accustomed.

The Princeton oarsmen held their last hard workout of the season this evening, and will complete their season's work tomorrow with a very brief practice. The Ithacans will probably hold two practices tomorrow.

Coach Fitzpatrick expressed himself as satisfied with the new combination which he has had to piece out during the last two weeks. Gardner, No. 2, left college a little over a week ago to enter the fourth officers' training camp, Camp Grant, Illinois, and he has been replaced by Campbell, who rowed in the freshman eight last Spring. Duncan, who rowed at No. 5 in the Harvard and Childs Cup races, has been obliged to stop rowing, due to an injured knee. His place has been taken by Gregor, also a member of the freshman eight of last Spring.

Saturday's regatta will be the only one of Cornell's season, and the final one for the Tigers. The season has been a rather disappointing one for both universities, as nearly all of the experienced oarsmen are in service. None of the Cornell oarsmen have had any experience, and seven of them have never been out for the crew before this season. The Tigers are a little better off as regards material, but their eight is essentially a wartime crew, too.

GILMOUR VICTOR AT GOLF.

Leads Eastern Trade Players with Net 76 in Tourney.

Members of the Eastern Trade Golf Association took part in their Spring tournament on the links of the Upper Montclair Country Club yesterday. W. G. Gilmour won the Red Cross medal for the lowest net score. His card of 100, 24—76 led a field of about fifty contestants, and was 3 strokes better than his nearest rival, F. W. Broatch, who had 95, 16—79. Broatch, George H. Chasmar, a Washington golfer, with 84, 0—84, and E. J. Hughes, with 104, 20—84, were all awarded certificates.

Because of his modesty in only taking a 28-stroke handicap in the blind kickers' handicap event, W. H. Staples gained the prize. He was in a triple tie with C. A. Miller, who handicapped himself at 60, and G. G. Schmidt, who took 45. In the best-ball foursomes competition C. A. Geoghegan and C. A. Miller, with 103, 36—69, were the winners. The scores:

W. G. Gilmour, 100, 24—76; F. W. Broatch, 95, 16—79; George H. Chasmar, 84, 0—84; E. J. Hughes, 104, 20—84; J. B. Garfield, 86, 0—86; E. Chester, 121, 34—87; W. W. Hubbard, 102, 15—87; A. F. Armagnac, 97, 9—88; W. H. Staples, 107, 18—89; M. E. Conran, 115, 24—91; F. J. Oliver, 107, 14—93; C. A. Geoghegan, 133, 34—99; E. W. Wood, 120, 20—100; S. J. Cutting, 121, 20—101; J. Barnum, 141, 34—107; C. A. Miller, 139, 36—103.

LARGE CROWD AT BOUTS.

Amateur Contests Attract an Audience of 2,000 for Preliminaries.

A crowd of more than 2,000, probably the biggest that has ever witnessed an opening night's competition in a local amateur boxing tournament, last night saw Charles Pilkington of the Union Settlement A. C., New York State's amateur boxing champion at 125 pounds, defeat Frank Dispensa, a clubmate, in the ring of the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory. The boxers were opponents in one of the preliminary bouts of the 130-pound class, and, although Dispensa furnished an interesting brand of boxing, he was outclassed by the titleholder.

Another interesting bout came in this class when J. Sullivan, Trinity Club, won a three rounds decision over W. Levy, unattached. About fifteen other contests were held at 110, 120, and 140 pounds, and all were more than ordinarily interesting.

The tournament was held for the benefit of the 69th Regiment, New York Guard, and while no admission was charged the large crowd, a collection was taken up for funds with which to purchase athletic paraphernalia for the soldiers. More than $200 was realized. The finals will be held tomorrow night.

ELEVEN STAR BOUTS AT GARDEN TONIGHT

Madison Square Garden this evening will be the scene of the greatest boxing carnival in the history of pugilism when a series of bouts will be held by the Allied Theatrical and Motion Picture Team of the American Red Cross, for the purpose of increasing contributions to the second Red Cross war fund. Eleven bouts have been arranged, and all of them, it is particularly stated by the officials of the show, will be strictly on their merits. It is expected that the total returns from the show will reach nearer to $100,000 than the $50,000 originally stated as the probable financial goal. This prediction is made on the strength of the advance sale, which has far surpassed even what was hoped for by those behind the carnival. William Fox, Charles J. Harvey, Joseph Humphreys, and Charles Dosserick are the prime factors in the promotion of the bouts, and they reported yesterday that everything was in readiness for tonight.

One of the important contests will bring together Ted (Kid) Lewis of England, welterweight champion, and Jack Britton of Chicago, former holder of the title. In another Lew Tendler, Philadelphia's rising lightweight boxer, will face Mel Coogan of Brooklyn. Other leading lightweights, including Johnny Dundee, Willie Jackson, and Frankie Callahan, have been paired with formidable opponents, and the same is true of the middleweight, heavyweight, and bantamweight classes, all of which will be represented by some of their cracks.

Two of the heavyweight bouts will be between Jim Coffey, now a member of Uncle Sam's naval forces, and Battling Levinsky, instructor of boxing at Camp Devens, Ayer, Mass., and Bill Brennan, recently enlisted in the navy, and Frank Moran, boxing instructor at Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C. In another Gunboat Smith, the California veteran, will oppose Harry Greb of Pittsburgh, who also recently enlisted in the navy.

The advance sale of tickets has been for reserved seats, but the admission tickets will be placed on sale tonight when the Garden opens, at 6 o'clock. There are about 2,000 of these, and they will go at $2 apiece. At 6:30 the band of the land battleship U. S. S. Recruit will give a concert, and at 7 a song concert will commence, in which many Broadway favorites will appear.

The bouts arranged are:

STAR HAMPTON HAS A LENGTH TO SPARE

Jeffords's Colt Outfoots Sanford's Yurucari in Colorado Stakes at Jamaica.

LARGE FIELDS PREVAIL

Kilmer and Wilson Colors Are Carried to Front for First Time in Present Season.

Walter M. Jeffords had the honor of capturing the first important stake for two-year-olds of the season yesterday when his colt, Star Hampton, by Star Shoot—Dorothy Hampton, reached the finish line a length ahead of John Sanford's Yurucari in the race for the Colorado Stakes, which carried a guaranteed value of $3,000.

The event, which was won last year by August Belmont's Luculite, brought out the best field of youngsters that have gone to the post this season, and several of the contenders already had gained winning brackets. Star Hampton's performance in running second to John Sanford's Ute recommended him to many of the spectators, but the fact that Ute had been scratched and the bearing of the Sanford colors left to Yurucari caused the latter to be installed favorite, with Star Hampton a strong second choice. P. A. Clark's Lion d'Or and the Greentree Stable's Lad's Love, both winners at the meeting, were also supported.

Robinson, on Lad's Love, was wide awake at the start and shot into the lead, of which he was deprived after the first quarter when Star Hampton took command. Yurucari had a slice of ill luck and was knocked back so that he was almost in last position as the field swept around the bend. Star Hampton, meantime, raced Lad's Love into submission and entered the home stretch with a lead of three lengths. Kelsay had Yurucari in his stride by that time, and the Sanford colt ran over most of the contenders as soon as he found a straight path for home.

The lead of Star Hampton was too great to be overcome, however, and the son of Star Shoot maintained his vantage to the finish, where he had a length to spare. Yurucari beat the Casco Stable's Different Eyes by a length and a half for the place. Lad's Love was so used up from racing with the winner that he finished absolutely last.

Large fields in three of the events provided excellent sport, and, though only two favorites won, all the winners except one were well supported. Willis Sharpe Kilmer and R. T. Wilson, Jr., each had the pleasure of seeing his colors carried to the front for the first time this season. Mr. Kilmer captured the first event at five and a half furlongs with Neisweep, which was admirably handled by Jockey Knapp.

Fairy Prince was the medium of the success of Mr. Wilson. This son of Olambala had the credit of defeating the largest field of the meeting, sixteen maiden two-year-olds going to the post under selling conditions. Johnny McTaggart showed a glimpse of his old form when he guided Fairy Prince through a narrow opening on the rail and got up just in time to win from J. O. Talbott's Milda. This was the second winner for McTaggart, as he had previously captured the second race in a big field with M. F. Bronner's Election.

SIR HENRY J. WOOD TO SUCCEED DR. MUCK

Noted British Conductor Accepts Offer of Boston Symphony Orchestra.

LONDON, May 24.—Sir Henry Joseph Wood has accepted an offer to become conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, according to this morning's Daily Telegraph, which says that he "may be relied upon to introduce to his new American public many works of the British composers."

Sir Henry will succeed Dr. Karl Muck, whose resignation as director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra was accepted on March 31, following his arrest at Boston as an enemy alien. Dr. Muck, the agitation against whom started at Providence, R. I., on Oct. 30, last, when he was accused of refusing a request to play "The Star Spangled Banner" at a concert, is now interned for the duration of the war.

Sir Henry was born in London on March 3, 1869, and when 10 years old became deputy organist at St. Mary's, Aldermanbury. He became a conductor in 1889, after giving organ recitals for several years. Since that time he has been constantly before the English public and in charge of some of the greatest orchestras of England. In addition, he has directed the presentation of notable concerts and superintended many musical festivals, the last of which was the Parsifal Tableux, given at the London Coliseum in 1913.

Sir Henry has been twice married. The first wife was Princess Olga Ourousoff of Podolia, Russia. She died in 1909. In 1911 Sir Henry was married to Miss Muriel, the daughter of Major Greatrex. He has two daughters.

ACTORS AND AUTHORS NOW HAVE A THEATRE

A Co-operative Organization at the Fulton Opens with a Double Bill.

One of the last deeds of the Authors' and Actors' Theatre, Inc., before their opening yesterday evening at the Fulton Theatre, was to release Edwin Milton Royle as director and take in his place Otis Skinner. The result, it may be assumed, was to increase the influence of the histrionic side of the new household. The event seems to have been somehow connected with the production of the chief item in the bill. "Her Honor, the Mayor," a comedy by Arline Van Ness Hines, is distinctly of the actor type of play. It abounds in "parts," with something doing on the stage all the time, and is conspicuously lacking in drama—which is the only means, in the theatre, of getting anything effectively done.

The things doing, moreover, are of no great novelty to the public, nor of any real credibility. Her Honor is a nice young thing who succeeds in getting herself elected as Mayor of a city in the Middle West. The women of the play, a full dozen of them, adore her and vote for her, but the men are a very bad lot, even for the males of feministic drama, and are bitterly opposed to her. There are, as a matter of fact, only five of them, not counting the butler; but these include an idiotically narrow-minded clergyman, a transparently villainous political boss, a jailbird relative, and a bloodthirsty district attorney, out for convictions. Her Honor spends the three acts of the "comedy" in dealing with these in a manner as high-handed and effective as it is unconvincing. They have only to make a stand before her to be knocked down. It is a form of sport in which the poor quarry hasn't the ghost of a show—a sort of game, hog pot hunting.

For some forty years before the winning of suffrage for women this kind of propaganda was familiar. But even a brief experience of the working of the real thing has brought a saddening conviction that men in politics are only too willing to make political eyes at the newly enfranchised, while it is their sisters, if anybody, who persist in voicing the cry that woman's sphere is the home. When we have a genuine "comedy" of the woman in politics we shall see the male politicians forming a flying wedge to prostrate themselves at her feet, while her dangerous enemies are of her own sex.

The leading rôle is what the French call a false good part. Laura Nelson Hall is one of the most personable and charming of our actresses and a thorough mistress of her art. But, though occupying the centre of the stage for the major part of three acts, and always triumphant, the final impression was curiously unimpressive. There are few things more fatal to an actor than to be always doing things without ever giving the impression of anything really done. In her support were many excellent artists, including Amelia Summerville, Ada Gilman, Etienne Girardot, C. H. Meredith, J. Irving Southard, Auriol Lee, and Zola Talma; but they shared in the prevailing effect of unreality.

The main piece was preceded by "The Good Men Do," which the program called "an indecorous epilogue." The scene is the hall of Shakespeare's house on the day of his death, and the action shows the bickerings of his puritanical family, who are represented as ashamed of his life as a dramatist and mainly interested in the disposition of his will.

The facts presented are faithful to the records collected in Lee's biography, and the intended effect of grim irony is successfully achieved; but the essential verity of the whole is very seriously open to question. Whatever else Shakespeare may have been, he was the leading citizen of Stratford, and a man with an uncommon faculty for making himself respected and loved.

The play is by Hubert Osborne, who wrote the romance "April," which lately departed this life at The Punch and Judy; and, like that piece, it is a product of the Harvard workshop theatre.

ELEVATOR RUNNERS STRIKE.

Hudson Terminal Employes Return to Work Soon After Quitting.

There was a short-lived strike of elevator operators and starters in the Hudson Terminal Buildings, 30 and 50 Church Street, yesterday. The men left their posts because of a misunderstanding. They believed they were not being considered in the readjustment of wages.

After a conference with President W. C. Fisk of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad, the men returned to work. He explained to them that not all the questions have been settled in Washington and that in due course their affairs would be taken up.

'Doll's House' Matinee for Red Cross

A special matinee of "A Doll's House" will be given by Mme. Nazimova and her company at the Plymouth Theatre today for the benefit of the Red Cross. Various players will appear between the acts, including Mme. Andree Barlette of the Theatre Femina, Paris, who will read a note to the Kaiser in French.

Not a Pulmotor That Exploded.

A dispatch from Newport News, published in THE NEW YORK TIMES of May 9, stated that the explosion of a pulmotor oxygen tank injured two naval surgeons and four enlisted men at the Naval Torpedo Station. It was not a pulmotor oxygen tank that exploded, but another device, not manufactured by the company making the pulmotor.

Acknowledgment.

THE NEW YORK TIMES received a check for $2 on Wednesday, May 22, from Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Sawyer, 101 Sawkill Avenue, Milford, Penn., for Alma Gluck's Red Cross fund. The check has been forwarded to the American Red Cross.

EXPECTS FOUR SHIPS A DAY FROM YARDS

ORDERS 100 MORE VESSELS

Director General Starts to Carry Out His Pledge to Increase Production by 60 Per Cent.

Charles M. Schwab, Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, expects the shipyards of the country to turn over to the Government four ships, averaging 4,000 tons each, every day beginning June 1, according to Dr. Charles A. Eaton, head of the National Service Section of the United States Shipping Board, who returned yesterday from a four-day inspection trip with Mr. Schwab and Charles Piez, Vice President of the Fleet Corporation. The party visited the Great Lakes region and, inspecting nine of the section's fourteen yards, found the shipworkers enthusiastic and determined to increase the output of ships.

On his trip Mr. Schwab officially put into effect his plan to increase the shipbuilding program 60 per cent., and obtained from the Middle Western shipwrights a pledge that next year they would construct 1,000,000 tons of shipping additional to the vast tonnage they have already contracted to deliver. The Director General awarded contracts for the building of more than 100 extra ships, the vessels to average 4,000 tons and their construction to start immediately.

Dr. Eaton said that Mr. Schwab authorized him to announce that from April 20 to May 20 the shipbuilders had delivered for service more than 300,000 tons of shipping, an average of about 10,000 tons daily. He said that the Fleet Corporation expected the monthly output to increase steadily from now on.

The inspection trip, Dr. Eaton said, was undertaken in order that Mr. Schwab and Mr. Piez might establish personal relation with the workers and urge them to put every ounce of energy into their tasks. The party visited three yards at Cleveland, one each at Lorain, Elyria, and Toledo, Ohio, and arrived at Detroit in time to witness the launching of two vessels. As spokesman for Mr. Schwab, Dr. Eaton said:

"In all I think we talked to about 25,000 shipworkers. We were generally introduced to the men as the three Charlies, an allusion to our all bearing the same first names, which seemed to make a great hit with the men. On three of our four days on the road, the Director General himself made seven speeches at as many meetings, and whenever he took the platform the men would go wild.

"There would be shouts of 'Give us the steel, Charlie; we'll give you the ships!' and from the crowd men who formerly worked under Mr. Schwab at South Bethlehem would push up to the front for a handshake and a bit of gossip with 'the boss.' Several times Schwab left the platform and went down among the men. When he came back his hands were black with grease where the men had gripped him, his collar and linen were splotched with dirt, and in general he looked like 'one of the boys,' as he said he felt."

Dr. Eaton said that the newspapers were doing a great deal toward speeding up the ship program, and that the spirit of constructive criticism rather than partisan faultfinding was proving a great benefit to the morale of the workers. He added:

"I can truthfully say that today there is a spirit of harmony and co-operation pervading the building of ships that extends from the highest official in Washington down to the humblest workman in the yards. It is wonderful to see this at work in the yards, where hundreds of thousands work every day actuated forward by one impulse—winning the war by ships."

The yards of the Great Lakes region, Dr. Eaton said, stood at the head of all the shipbuilding plants. They were the best equipped, he said, their management was excellent, and the quality of their production the highest yet attained. Mr. Schwab, he said, had ordered that whenever another ship was added to the number under construction the shipbuilders must lay down an additional way.

According to Dr. Eaton, conditions between employes and employers everywhere were harmonious. He said that the men had adopted a rule of arbitrating their minor differences among themselves.

WORK IN SHIPYARDS ALL DAY SATURDAYS

Patriotic Offer Made by Oregon Union Men Basis of Plan for Entire Industry.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The Shipping Board may ask the workers in all shipyards to work a full day on Saturdays during June, July, and August to speed up the shipbuilding program. It is believed that materials soon can be supplied in quantities sufficient to keep the yards working on a full-time basis. Officials of the Shipping Board and of the Emergency Fleet Corporation believe that an appreciable increase in the tonnage produced can be obtained. There are at present about 300,000 men employed in the 132 yards doing Government work.

A telegram was received today by Edward N. Hurley, Chairman of the Shipping Board, from the Executive Committee of the Metal Trades Council of Portland, Ore., proposing that the members of the union voluntarily work a full day on Saturdays for "straight time." While the offer will be accepted, the Shipping Board will not take advantage of the willingness of the men to sacrifice a part of their wages, and will pay time and one-half for the overtime.

The telegram from the Oregon union contained this resolution:

> Resolved, That we, the Metal Trades Council, in meeting assembled, recognizing the great need of our country for ships, and, actuated only by pure patriotic motives, do hereby submit to a vote of the local unions of the metal trades a proposition to waive the Saturday half holiday for the months of June, July, and August, 1918, and to agree to work on those Saturdays for straight time, if desired, it being understood that in waiving these holidays, already guaranteed us by the Macy award, we are not permanently surrendering any rights under that agreement. It is earnestly hoped and expected that this action will meet the approval and be concurred in by all union men and women of the entire country.

Chairman Hurley wired this reply:

"Each and every member of the Metal Trades Council of Portland, Ore., is to be congratulated on the broad patriotic stand they have taken in offering to work Saturday half holidays during the months of June, July, and August, and if necessary to agree to work on these Saturdays at straight time. At a meeting of the Shipping Board today, I was asked to send you the following resolution:

> That the United States Shipping Board, Emergency Fleet Corporation, and Charles M. Schwab, Director General, desire to express to the members of the Metal Trades Council of Portland, Ore., their sincere appreciation of the patriotic and co-operative spirit shown by their action in unanimously and enthusiastically agreeing to work on Saturday half holidays during the months of June, July, and August.

"You have set a standard of patriotism on the part of labor that will make the Portland Metal Trades Council stand out as a labor organization which has only one thought in mind, and that is winning the war."

The Shipbuilding Labor Adjustment Board wired this appreciation:

"The Executive Committee of the Metal Trades Council of Portland give an inspiring demonstration of patriotic purpose in submitting to a vote of the local unions the proposition to waive the Saturday half holidays for the months of June, July, and August. Their action will appeal to every loyal American citizen and will give heart to every American soldier at the front. Express to them the commendation and congratulation of the Shipbuilding Labor Adjustment Board."

MORE SHIPS BUILT THAN U-BOATS SINK

MORALE OF CREWS GONE

Sea Made an Inferno for Underwater Pirates—Allies' Food Supplies Now Adequate.

LONDON, May 23.—The enemy is destroying British, allied, and neutral tonnage at the rate of about 3,500,000 tons yearly, while Great Britain and her allies and the neutral countries will very soon be producing tonnage at a rate of about 4,000,000 tons yearly, writes Archibald Hurd, the naval expert, in The Daily Telegraph. That favorable situation, he declares, should be reached in a few weeks, and thenceforward the upward curve in favor of the Allies should proceed in a manner to convince the Germans of their failure.

There are indications, the writer points out, that the Germans themselves realize that the submarine campaign was a political blunder. The allied navies have not been weakened, he notes, and the submarine, which brought America into the war, has not been able to interfere seriously with the transportation of American troops and material.

As a result of the elaborate preparations made by the Admiralty last year, Mr. Hurd comments, the sea is becoming an inferno for the submarine pirates, and the morale of the officers and men employed in the enemy's submarine service is steadily declining, as is shown by evidence of the most conclusive character.

The naval correspondent of The Daily News, analyzing the shipping losses for April, points out that the total of allied and neutral sinkings was hardly more than a third of that of a year ago, while there is not any likelihood, he says, that there has been any marked decrease in the shipping entering and clearing the ports of the United Kingdom.

Although the effects of blocking the bases at Zeebrugge and Ostend, and the placing of the great new minefield in the North Sea are not yet known, the Germans in the whole first quarter of 1918, the correspondent shows, sank little more shipping than they did last year in a single month, while the total losses for each quarter from April, 1917, up to the present have steadily fallen.

"We are entirely justified in believing this improvement will continue and be progressive," he writes.

Discussing the recent statement by Admiral von Capelle, the head of the German Admiralty, that the number of German submarines had increased, the correspondent declares that the rate of destruction of U-boats has now passed the rate of construction, and he asks why, if the number has grown, an increased number of U-boats is doing so very much less damage.

The correspondent gives several reasons for the lower rate of sinkings. Among these is the convoy system. Another is the arming of merchantmen, while the increased number of destroyers, patrol boats, and seaplanes is also a factor. Perhaps most important of all, he thinks, is the unification of command and methods in the Mediterranean. He also points to the increased demoralization and poor training of the German crews. Admiral von Capelle's confident words, he declares, are falsified by the facts.

The Daily News in an editorial draws a comparison between the economic conditions of the allied and enemy countries where the rations have been reduced, and says that thanks largely "to the splendid and self-sacrificing efforts of America" the food problem of the Allies is merely a problem of distribution. The supplies are adequate, it declares, and promise to remain adequate for every need. "The defeat of the submarine," it adds, "is at last becoming a visible reality."

NEW SHIPYARD DEAL.

$9,000,000 Corporation to Take Over Greenport Plants.

GREENPORT, L. I., May 23.—It is the belief in shipbuilding circles here that the end of this week will see the transfer of several of the most extensive shipyards to an unnamed corporation. The deal is said to include the Tuthill & Thorn shipyards and the Radel plant.

Very little could be learned concerning the corporation which is to take over the shipyards, except that it is capitalized at $9,000,000. To what use the corporation intends to put the yards is also unknown, but according to one report they will be used for the construction of steel trawlers. Another report says the yards will be turned over for Government work. The Tuthill & Thorn yard is one of the oldest and best-equipped in Eastern Long Island. It has a shore frontage of 1,000 feet.

69,000 SEAMEN INSURED.

Those Serving in Merchant Marine Carry War Risk Policies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The extent to which officers and men in the merchant marine have enjoyed the benefits of war risk insurance is indicated by figures of this line of business carried by the Government during the last year.

More than 69,000 officers and men serving on merchant ships have been insured since last June. These risks have been mainly for men whose service took them into and through the war zone. This insurance is handled by the Seamen's Insurance Division of the War Risk Bureau, where, during the year, policies to the aggregate amount of $115,000,000 have been written. In the year claims to the amount of $180,000 have been paid.

WAR SAVINGS PARADE.

Whitman to Take Part in Memorial Day Celebration.

The committee in charge of the sale of war savings and thrift stamps at the New York Public Library, Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street, announced yesterday that with yesterday's receipts the total sale of stamps from the library steps would exceed $150,000. Hundreds of persons daily visit the library to view the miscellany of war savings posters, 200 more of which were added yesterday to an already extensive collection.

Governor Whitman, it was announced, will review the War Savings parade through the east side on Memorial Day. The parade will form in Rutgers Square, pass up East Broadway to Grand Street, to Essex Street, to Avenue A, to Fourteenth Street and down Second Avenue to Rutgers Square by way of Christie and Canal Streets. Governor Whitman will address a meeting in Rutgers Square.

The National War Saving Committee yesterday invited all singers who are familiar with the chorus part of "Elijah" to attend a rehearsal on Saturday at 4 o'clock at the College of Music, 128-130 East Fifty-eighth Street. "Elijah" will be presented as a part of the thrift festival to be held under the direction of Lieutenant John Philip Sousa, U. S. N., on June 2, at the Polo Grounds. The soloists will be Charles Harrison, Oscar Seagle and Leon Rothier, Mmes. Schumann-Heink, Sundelius, and Alda.

Hearing in Move to Bar German.

The Board of School Superintendents will hold a meeting today at 10 o'clock in the Board of Education Building, Park Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, to consider a resolution offered by Superintendent J. L. Tildsley requesting the Board of Education to banish the German language study from the city high schools. Today's meeting will be for the purpose of giving the opponents of German a chance to be heard, and representatives of various patriotic organizations will be on hand.

HOUSE VOTES "DRY" ON BEER AND WINE

Passes Bill Calling for Prohibition of Use of Foodstuffs in Their Manufacture.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Power may be granted to President Wilson to enforce a measure approaching complete national prohibition during the war as a result of the action of the House today in adopting a prohibition clause in the Food Stimulation bill. By a vote of 178 to 137 the House amended the bill to provide that $6,000,000 of the appropriation shall not be available unless the President shall issue a proclamation prohibiting the use of foodstuffs and fruits in the production of malt or vinous liquors for beverage purposes.

After the "dry" forces had succeeded in forcing into the bill the amendment, offered by Representative Randall, the House, by a vote of 231 to 64, passed the measure. It now goes to the Senate, where the "wets" will attempt to defeat the prohibition amendment.

The Randall amendment was accepted by the Committee of the Whole last Tuesday. Opposition to it immediately showed itself among the Administration forces, and spokesmen for the Administration were quoted as saying that the President was opposed to having the clause in the bill. Representative Candler of Mississippi, who sponsored the bill, himself a prohibitionist, fought the amendment, declaring it was not fair to the President to force him to settle a moral question.

Representative Candler would not admit on the floor that the President had formally declared his opposition to the clause, although members who had conferred with him say that he so informed them.

The Randall amendment provides that none of the $6,000,000 provided for field agent work in the Department of Agriculture shall be available unless the President shall prevent the use of foodstuff in the making of beer and wines. If this section should be accepted by the Senate, and the President approve the bill, there would be an instant closing down of the making of beer and wines, and, it is estimated, that the nation would be without any alcoholic beverages in another year. The production of whisky was stopped by the act of August, 1917, and reports show that the supply in the country will become exhausted in another year.

The Randall amendment reads:

> No part of this appropriation shall be available for any purpose unless there shall have been previously issued the proclamation authorized by Section 15 of the act of Aug. 10, 1917, entitled "An Act to Provide Further for the National Security and Defense by Stimulating Agriculture and Facilitating the Transportation of Agricultural Products," such proclamation being the prohibition of the use of foods, fruits, food materials, or feeds in the production of malt or vinous liquors for beverage purposes.

The "wet" leaders are saying tonight that they are certain that the Senate will not accept the amendment and that the House conferees will recede on the clause, but obviously they are worried.

Winter Garden to Aid Red Cross.

The entire receipts of Sunday night's performance at the Winter Garden, it is announced by the Shuberts, will be given to the Red Cross. The stars of the various Shubert attractions will be on the program, including Al Jolson, William Hodge, Charles Purcell, Clifton Crawford, William Norris, Peggy Wood, John Charles Thomas, Eugene and Willie Howard, and Harry Conor. Several ensemble numbers from "Sinbad," "Fancy Free," and "Maytime" will be offered.

Next Tuesday's performance of "Fancy Free" at the Casino Theatre will also be in aid of the Red Cross.

NEXT YEAR'S TAXES.

The argument in the affirmative for the postponement of the levy of next year's taxes until next year is the convenience of Congressmen. They are afraid equally to meet their constituents this Fall on their record on this year's taxes, or on the new taxes, which must be larger. The argument in the negative for present action is that the money is not necessary, and cannot be spent if voted. The Government has plenty of unissued bonds upon which it can borrow, and this year's experience shows that it is idle to vote funds which the productive capacity of the country cannot take up. But the proportion of bonds to taxes should be settled upon other considerations than the personal and political convenience of Congressmen, and this year's experience throws no light upon next year's expenditures. Increasingly, the Government's expenditures are of a sort not related to factory capacity, although it will continue to be a large proportion of the outgo. The army alone will need as much as this year's total expenditures. The shipbuilding program promises to take up more money than has hitherto been reckoned upon. The same is true of the airplane production, which now is entering upon its quantity stage. The expenses of the first half of the next fiscal year will approach the total of this year. There is no doubt that larger provision ought to be made. The only question is whether it should be made now or later.

Against the convenience of Congress should be set the convenience of the Treasury and the taxpayers. Congress has fallen into the habit of levying taxes retroactively. It is better that the taxes should look forward. The business on which the taxes will be collected is now being done in ignorance of what the taxes will be. It is not possible to keep the accounts according to the tax laws if the laws are not known. It is not possible to conduct business with suitable regard to economic or financial considerations unless the taxes are enacted before the taxes fall due. If it is possible for Congress to pass the new taxes promptly after the new year, it is equally possible for them to pass the taxes promptly now. In that case the Treasury and the taxpayers would be freed from the threat of such confusion as embarrassed the Treasury and business generally between October and April of this year.

Congressmen are wrong in thinking that the taxpayers' chief complaint, or the Treasury's, is the burden of the taxes. The complaint is of the bad methods of taxation, not of the amount. Everybody is prepared to pay higher taxes, but everybody wants to know what must be paid, and would be glad to have the tax law such that it could be understood by those desirous of complying with it. Business fears fixed burdens less than the uncertainty, if legislation is postponed now, that there will be agitation during the period of postponement for the convenience of Congress.

Congress has no prestige to support it in this matter. It confronts Secretary McAdoo, who has great prestige, and who is supported by the President. Congress has much to fear and nothing to gain from a controversy with them. It is not worthy of Congress to suggest that if it is forced into legislation against its convenience it will lay taxes obnoxious to the country, or heavier than the occasion calls for. The true policy for Congress is not to remedy bad tax legislation with worse, but with better. For that there is ample opportunity. There are plenty of home and foreign examples of taxes which Congress has avoided levying, as though willfully. There is no example in all tax history of a tax bill so chaotic and burdensome as the one from which business is now suffering. The proposal to prolong the present tax, and perhaps to repeat it in another tax passed under pressure of haste in the short session, cannot be approved. Congress is no better than other slackers if it botches its job for reasons of convenience to itself.

TRUST MR. HUGHES.

The letter of Mr. HUGHES to the Attorney General, in which it is asked that their investigation of "the "activities relating to aircraft pro-"duction" may proceed "unembar-"rassed by any other parallel course "of action," cannot be disregarded by the Senate, and it would be the part of wisdom for Mr. CHAMBERLAIN and others on the Military Affairs Committee who were contemplating an independent inquiry to relinquish or forego their plan. They can hardly do otherwise without losing public confidence, and this is so because there is no investigator whom the American people are more willing to trust than CHARLES EVANS HUGHES. He has a shining and unimpeachable record as a truth-seeker in dark places, and, besides, he sat with honor on the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States.

When Mr. HUGHES pledges himself to investigate aircraft production and scan the doings of all who have been connected with it, there is nothing more to be said. His competence has been convincingly proved, his energy is well known, his integrity scandal-proof. "We shall not," he says in his letter, "be able to ascer-"tain whether there has been dis-"honesty or malversation of any kind "unless we go thoroughly into all the "transactions which have been had." He promises an "adequate" report, dispassionate and impartial and "confined to the facts," which means, in his case, that no man who has blundered will be spared and no man who has defrauded the Government will be allowed to escape. And Mr. HUGHES points out that if there is an independent Senate inquiry there would be danger of bringing out something that "would at once sug-"gest to the guilty, if there be such, "where effort should be made to "block successful prosecution." This seems to be unanswerable.

It is simply a question of believing in and trusting Mr. HUGHES, and giving him a free hand. If the American people are ready to do that, what can anybody in the Senate propose that should make them draw back? Has the Senate any investigator like Mr. HUGHES, as wise, as resourceful, as keen on a scent?

KICKING THE GRAVE.

This was the most unkindest cut of all,
For when the noble CAESAR saw him stab—

Not that the Prohibition Party much resembles the noble CAESAR, nor the Anti-Saloon League BRUTUS. Nor should we call it a stab that the league gives the expiring carcass of the party; it would be more accurate to call it a kick. The league sends out a notice to woman voters warning them against enrolling with the Prohibition Party, if they want to accomplish anything for prohibition. That last contemptuous wallop at the cadaver was certainly deserved, but seems almost unnecessary. It seems but yesterday, though it is twenty or more years ago, that the Prohibition Party was a thing seriously to be reckoned with. What killed it was the success of prohibition. As the country began to go prohibition the Prohibition Party waned and shriveled, until finally it became a bargain counter and we saw such amazing scenes as SULZER and the unknown influences behind him bidding for the control of it.

When CLINTON B. FISK, JOHN P. ST. JOHN, and JOHN BIDWELL were its standard bearers, when honest and earnest men planned and dreamed for it and thought they saw the coming realization of their dream in its constantly mounting vote, who would have expected such decay and demoralization, and, above all, who would have suspected that it would be prohibition that brought about the party's fall? Prohibition has steadily marched ahead, with its eyes fixed on the goal, disregarding utterly the pipings of the constantly dwindling wreck of a party by the roadside. And now the chief element in the prohibition struggle in this State warns all who have prohibition at heart to leave the poor thing alone.

Fallen at length
Its tower of strength,
Its sun is dimmed ere it had nooned;
Dead lies the great Ahkoond.
The great Ahkoond of Swat
Is not!

WOMAN VOTERS SHOULD ENROLL.

Tomorrow the polls will be open all over the city for the enrollment of woman voters. This enrollment is to enable them to vote in the primaries for the nomination of candidates for Governor, State Senators, members of Congress, and the other offices to be filled at the November election. No one can vote in the primaries who is not enrolled.

The duty of participating in nominations is as great as the duty of participating in the final election. There is no way to prevent the nomination of unfit candidates and assure the nomination of good ones except by every good citizen's participation in the primaries where the nominations are made. Therefore every woman who takes her suffrage responsibilities seriously will enroll for the purpose.

The polls will be open from 8 A. M. until 10 P. M. Women who enroll will sign a statement saying that they intend "in general" to act with the Democratic, the Republican, or some other party. This does not commit them to the support of that party at the November election; it merely prevents them from voting in the primaries of any other party than the one they specify, and is intended to prevent misuse of the primaries. Any woman, however independent she may be in politics, may sign the statement with a free conscience, and unless she does sign it she is debarred from voting in the primaries.

IN AUSTRIA.

The division of Bohemia into twelve district governments is a German electoral and administrative gerrymander, long demanded, in principle, by the "bourgeois" Austrian Germans, and a fit new ally of the repression and oppression that have prevailed, steadily or sporadically, in the Magyar-German treatment of all the irredentist nationalities since the war began. Martial law, instituted in Croatia the other day, or in Galicia, or now introduced into parts of Bohemia, is but another vain effort in this redistribution of local governments and populations to keep the majority down. The struggle is long. Amid the economic and financial exhaustion of Austria and the shadowy, fading expectation of German military success on the western front, the only possible lifesaver for the Dual Monarchy, this nagging by the German Austrians seems pitiful, ghastly, the device of distracted and feeble men. If there is ever time for discretion in Austria, it is now.

Meanwhile, the main present facts in regard to Austria are that the South Slavs and the Czecho-Slovaks are united; that not merely the Slav Socialists but the German Socialists have been attacked by the agrarian reform program of the Czecho-Slovaks and South Slavs; that Bolshevism, at least the revolutionary spirit, is spreading by the return of soldiers from Russia as it had spread before by the example of Russia.

Agrarianism, socialism, irredentism: these are three forces variously strong, but all now working together for the dissolution of the Hapsburg Monarchy. What are constitutional changes, administrative readjustments, fresh expedients to give the German Nationalists more hold over the majority, the irredentist nationalities seeking to be nations? Austria-Hungary depends for the continuance of its superfluous existence upon the sword of its German suzerain in the west—German military or political, and perhaps social, revolution.

GIVE TO DEFEAT THE BOMBERS OF HOSPITALS.

How can anybody read the story of the American Red Cross workers going into the first-line trenches to serve coffee to soldiers about to start on patrol duty in No Man's Land and not make a contribution to the Red Cross War Fund? Not just enough to ease the conscience, but a sum that the heart speeds on its way.

The Red Cross workers are always noncombatants; they carry not arms, but food and drinks, dry socks, and other things that sustain and cheer the soldiers when they make their hazardous dash for the trenches, while we at home are seated at well-provided and well-lighted tables, untroubled, comfortable, secure. "A "cold, rainy night recently was "marked," says a dispatch from Paris, "by activity of the Red Cross men. "The soldiers had messed at 5:30 "P. M. and would have had nothing "to eat until 6 o'clock the next morn-"ing had it not been for the Red "Cross workers." And some time between dark and dawn there were parties of American soldiers who went "over the top" to raid the enemy, that most nerve-racking and risky duty from which any man is fortunate to return on his feet and unscathed. On the cold, rainy night mentioned in the Paris dispatch the American soldiers who got back safe from the desperate venture in No Man's Land, with its black horror and traps of death, found warm drinks waiting for them and the solace of tobacco, thanks to the always thoughtful Red Cross.

If the people of New York could see what the noncombatant men and women of the Red Cross, scorning danger, working till they sink down from exhaustion, sustained only by their sense of duty, are doing for the soldiers in the trenches, for the mutilated and dying in the hospitals, and for the soul-stricken refugees behind the battlelines, if the perils and sacrifice and devotion of these Red Cross workers, these crusaders of humanity and agents of mercy, could be brought home to every thinking and sentient person in New York, the community would pour a good deal more than $25,000,000 into the War Fund.

Give all you can, and then take a chance and give more.

It is good to see the reconciliation of brethren estranged. It is good to see flower-soft friendship overgrow the nettles of feud. In the dark days of 1912 the Republican Club tore from its walls the true effigy, in oil, of THEODORE ROOSEVELT, buried it contumeliously in the cellarage. He was no longer a Republican. Heretic pravity possessed him. He had forfeited his right to look upon Republicans from his frame and those orthodox walls where Mr. ROOT and Mr. TAFT and other illustrious Republicans kept him company. Down with him, down to the darkest, deepest basement or sub-basement!

Such is the fate of partisanship. Yet, whatever his divagations in 1912, Mr. ROOSEVELT was too potent, too engaging a figure, despite his little eccentricities, exuberances, and violences, to be left out of the Republican gallery. His absence could not be permanent. Even among many who have quarreled with him to the hilt, or whom he has "jumped on" in his artless, primitive method of exercise and amusement, there is a kind of admiration for his concatenation of talents, acquirements, virtues, humors, faults. He is a breathing, one might almost say a roaring, antithesis. His continual flow of antithetical expression is unconscious self-expression. The style is the man.

Back in the fold, gradually recovering good and regular standing as a member of the Republican congregation, forgiven by all but the irreconcilable resenters, fanatics of principle, or fatteners of grudge, accenting his recovered orthodoxy by miles of so amiable "criticism" of Democratic doings, why shouldn't Mr. ROOSEVELT, the old, old love in his bosom swelling, come back to the Republican Club, which had solemnly and joyfully adorned a too long vacant space with his reverently dusted portrait, restored to honor, luminous and salient on that respected wall?

The Republican civil war is over. The Restoration is come. "I shall be around at the club very soon," writes the reinstated Mr. ROOSEVELT.

Happy day! Must WILLIAM BARNES sit in darkness when the feast of the Prodigal Son is celebrated? Can't he forgive and be forgiven? A "good hater," like Dr. JOHNSON and Mr. ROOSEVELT, but what's the use of hating? It can't improve the liver or digestion, or delay morose old age. Mr. BARNES, Mr. ROOSEVELT. Mr. ROOSEVELT, you remember Mr. BARNES?

FIRST STEP TOWARD RAISING RAILWAY RATES.

The Director General is charged with the rehabilitation of nearly twenty billions of railway capital, owned by many millions, and the basis of many other billions of credit and trade engagements. Therefore he will have sympathetic support in his task of reducing the railway deficit by operation and thus restoring the credit of the companies. It is not enough that the Government should be fair in its treatment of the railways under the President's plan of taking them over for the period of the war, and to maintain the plant in good physical condition. To restore the railways to their owners under a continuation of the conditions which prostrated them financially would be unfair treatment, whatever other good things were done. The railways must be made able to earn their dividends and interest and costs of operation, all on a fair basis in relation to all other prices. It would seem impossible to do this without an increase of rates, and there is a first step which should be taken in this direction for political as well as financial considerations.

For years the State Commissions have made sport of the Interstate Commission's rate orders. This week are published two decisions by the Supreme Court dismissing appeals from the Interstate Commission's order that the Texas Commission should cease discrimination in favor of Texas trade by making intrastate rates in conflict with interstate rates. The Director General will be on firm ground for summary procedure in all such cases, and they are multitudinous. There can be no easier or juster way of beginning with rate increases than by enforcing the Federal rates and fares over State rates and fares which are in avowed opposition to official Federal declaration of reasonableness. The railways and the Commission alike have been reluctant to join issue with State authorities, but the Director General will not hesitate with the Supreme Court at his back.

It is idle to think of another advance in rates when the States cut below existing rates in the manner of the Sinn Fein on our own soil. To raise existing rates to an equality throughout the Union is an obvious first step. The Director General cannot control the State Commissions, but he can make sure that there is no business done by his subordinate railway officials at rates other than those approved by the Supreme Court. Then the Commissions and Attorneys General can go into court, if they like, with the result against them known in advance. Every step toward putting the railways on firmer ground is reassurance of the broader financial situation. There is law enough. What is wanted is action in keeping with the spirit and need of the times, rather than the fighting over of old quarrels.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Chance to Right a Wrong. Convincing evidence should — and therefore must—be given by the celebration of today as Italy-America Day that New York is not without full appreciation of the part played by Italy in the great war, of the sacrifices she has made, the courage her men have displayed, and the achievements of her armies. To do this will not be simply paying well-earned honor to the Italian people and the Italian Government; it will be also a demonstration that only in seeming have we failed to remember that Italy for three long years has been fighting to the full extent of her resources for the Good Cause.

We have not ever really forgotten all this. If sometimes—and too often—we have not grouped the Italian flag with those of Great Britain and France in our decorations on festival and memorial occasions, it has been only from the natural human tendency to concentrate attention on the chief features of any scene or subject and to have only a half-consciousness of details, even though important. We have been well aware, all the time, that except for the diversion of Austria's forces and a part of Germany's to the southern front, the German attack in the west would have been far more powerful than it was, and in that case the result might have been —one that we can now refuse to state or even to imagine too clearly.

And Italy had in the beginning what would have served her as an excuse for not entering the war at all, or for entering it on the side of the Central Empires. By following either of these courses she probably could have gained more in material reward than a victory of the Allies will give her. That she hesitated for a year before making the great decision was a delay that we, however it may be with others, must call short, not long, and, in evil fortune as in good, her purpose has not changed, her fidelity weakened.

It is a duty and a reparation, therefore, as well as a privilege, for us to join our fellow-citizens of Italian blood in celebrating worthily this day—in making it our day as well as theirs, as, indeed, it is.

They've Had a Lot of Tobacco. That one of THE TIMES representatives in France traversed the whole American sector and on only two occasions saw a distribution to our soldiers of tobacco bought from "funds" raised here by popular contribution proves only how far from all that goes on in even one part of this colossal war can be seen by any one observer. Negative testimony has no weight in the balance as against evidence that is positive, and there is positive evidence of indisputable quality that one "smoke fund" alone—The Sun's—has not only collected and spent for tobacco a great sum of money, but that the tobacco has really crossed the Atlantic and really been distributed among the American soldiers.

Counting each cigarette or pipeful of tobacco as a "smoke," the number of "smokes" which The Sun Fund has already provided for our fighters abroad reaches the colossal total of 137,000,000. This is an average distribution of more than 13,000,000 a month for the ten months during which this fund has been in operation, and as, for a considerable part of that time, the United States had in France not more than 50,000 men, the share of each could not have been minute.

And that the distribution was effected is demonstrated by the receipt of many letters from the soldiers in the ranks and by other letters from the Quartermaster General and his assistants. So that question can be regarded as settled.

That it is an important question as well as a settled one is shown by the fact that this week—far from too soon and long after both Great Britain and France reached the same conclusion—our Government has decided to count tobacco among the necessaries of its soldiers and has made it an item in their regular rations. This was a wise and therefore a commendable action. Tobacco may not be a necessary of life, in the ordinary sense of that term, for men in either peace or war, but certainly it lightens the inevitable hardships of war as nothing else can do.

In anticipating the decision of our Government the originators of the several "smoke funds" have served well their country and earned its gratitude.

Loyalty Saves and Serves. With characteristic wisdom, President SCHURMAN devoted a large part of his commencement address to the Cornell students this week to telling them stern truths as regards the spending of money in wartime—truths deserving of earnest consideration, not only from those and other youth, but from the great number of people who have more money to spend well or ill than boys and girls just out of college are apt to possess. President SCHURMAN did not preach the doctrine of "business as usual." He preached against it. He recognized the fact that business as usual is impossible when conditions are utterly unusual, and he applied the harsh name of "traitor" to those whose expenditures are now determined, not by their actual needs, but by the amount of cash in their pockets and by their inclination to spend it in luxurious living.

He dismissed—a little too brusquely, perhaps, but better so than not at all—the argument that the confinement of expenditure to necessaries works disturbance to trade and throws thousands out of employment. The disturbance of trade is unquestionable, and unquestionably it, like innumerable other consequences of war, is regrettable, but the disturbance of the luxury trades, or of the nonessential trades, is not fatal or even greatly calamitous, while the men and women employed in them will not have to look far, in wartime, to find other work, as well or higher paid and vastly more conducive to national welfare and safety.

Probably President SCHURMAN, though the brief reports of his address now at hand do not show it, dwelt upon the fact that wars are not waged with money, really, but with goods and services directly utilized in fighting the enemy. Only when money can command these has it any military importance, and it can command them only when everybody is willing to save and is compelled to serve.

KONINKLYK GEZANTSCHAP DER NEDERLANDEN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Netherland Legation at Washington, D. C., presents its compliments to the editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES and begs to inform the latter that the Legation's attention has been called to the news item marked as "Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES" appearing in that paper's issue of May 22, 1918, Page 12, last column. Therein the statement is made that the United States Government has permitted three vessels of the REQUISITIONED Netherland fleet to sail for Holland with grain and that the War Trade Board has decided not to release three additional ships of the REQUISITIONED fleet, as requested by the Netherland Government. The Netherland Legation wishes to say that this statement is not correct. None of the six Netherland ships referred to belong to those requisitioned by the American Government or the Governments associated with the United States in the war.

The Legation expects the editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES to be anxious to rectify the erroneous impression which the said news item conveyed.

ANTI-VACCINATION ERRORS.

Dr. Keen Corrects Two Misstatements About the Armies.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In connection with the action of the Buffalo Academy of Medicine, as noted in your issue of the 19th, may I call attention to the two resolutions of the New York Anti-Vivisection Society passed on Jan. 31, last?

The first one, referring to vaccination against typhoid fever, demanded that "it be left to the free will of each soldier as to whether his health and life shall be endangered by an operation which, in actual experience, has resulted in deplorably affecting the strength and availability of our National Army, and occasioned unnecessary loss to thousands of American families who have bravely offered their young manhood to our beloved country."

The statement in this resolution is not true. On the contrary the anti-typhoid vaccination has practically banished that historic scourge of armies from our own cantonments and our own army and navy, and also from all the armies in Europe. In the British Army in France 99 per cent. of the soldiers, having seen the splendid protection of this vaccination, voluntarily secure its benefits.

The second resolution "points to the provision of exemption now made by Great Britain, that power having been forced to rescind the rule of compulsion after the alarming effects of inoculation were disclosed." The statement in this resolution is also untrue, as is shown by the following cable correspondence between myself and Lieut. Gen. Goodwin, Surgeon General of all the British armies:

Has antityphoid vaccination ever been compulsory in British Army? KEEN.

A Question of French Law.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The article appearing in THE TIMES, under date of May 10, over the signature of A. Tardieu, contains a statement to the effect that an indictment was found against Frank J. Godsol in 1917. This is absolutely untrue. The minutes of the proceedings of the Chamber of Deputies show that I am correct in making this statement.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to your question as to whether or not the word "indictment" is the proper equivalent for the procedure describing the French phrase "l'ouverture immédiate de l'instruction judiciaire," and speaking for the High Commissioner, I may state the following:

In view of the fundamental differences which exist between legal procedure in this country and in France, it is difficult, if not impossible, to translate literally legal phraseology such as above quoted. The best that can be done is to try to find an equivalent.

The essential fact is correctly emphasized in M. Tardieu's statement, namely, that it was at the instance and request of M. Albert Thomas that the charge of wrongdoing against Godsol was brought and laid before the appropriate French Court, for action.

The following quotation from a letter, showing the sentiments of an American mother in sending her boy to the war, may be of interest to your readers:

"I do not worry about John. Why should I? He was well equipped mentally, spiritually, and physically for whatever is ahead of him. He takes his responsibility gravely and is ready to do his best to the limit. If he had not been ready for his duty then I would have been worried. I am proud of him."

ITALIA REDIVIVA!

Italy, Italy, changeling of wonder,
Dropt of the gods in the lap of the world;
Crooned in thy cradle by crag-riven thunder,
E'er to its echoes in new conflicts hurled;
With breath of thine Alps blow miasmas asunder
And front the new future with banners unfurled!

Cradled and buried hast thou without number
Princes and prelates and lords of emprise;
No more may thy soil foreign despots encumber,
Untrammeled thy soul shall commune with the skies.
Italy, out of thy centuries' slumber,
Unified, glorified, conqueror, rise!

From Frank and from Ostrogoth, Lombard, and Rhaetian,
Masterful purpose within thee still strains;
Genoese, Florentine, Pisan, Venetian
Commingle their passion and art in thy veins;
While iron of Roman with fire of the Grecian
Transfusing and molding thee, hardening remains.

Down from the North, where the heavy skies lower,
Threatens the Teuton's vain storming and stress.
Thine of the mountains and seas is the power,
The might of thy secular heroes no less;
From glacier and torrent, from temple and bower,
Thy spirit resurgent to rescue must press.

Out of thy very stones, marble, and mortar,
Spell of old passions and yearnings is spun;
Borne on thy breezes and o'er thy blue water,
Voices of poet and potentate run;
Quenchless they'll carry, through ruin and slaughter,
Thy warrior sons to the doom of the Hun!

From terraced Trieste to thy tides Tyrrhenean,
With triumphs before thee and sorrows behind,
Thy glorious duty shall burst in one paean
That all the free nations in chorus shall bind,
Till into the heights of thine own empyrean
They lift the new chant of thy passionate mind!

Italy, Italy, changeling of wonder,
Dropt of the gods in the lap of the world;
Crooned in thy cradle by crag-riven thunder;
Into the caldron of strife ever hurled;
Rise, reborn Crusader, the last yoke to sunder,
Thy challenging gonfalons once more unfurled!

WILSON SALUTES GALLANT ITALY

Pledges Ever-Increasing Resolution and Force on Eve of War Anniversary.

MESSAGE READ BY LANSING

Ambassador, Also Speaking at Celebration, Discusses Italy's Territorial Aims in War.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—At a meeting held under the auspices of President Wilson tonight at Liberty Hut, near the Capitol, in celebration of the third anniversary of Italy's entrance into the war, this message to the Italian people from the President was read by Secretary of State Lansing:

I am sure that I am speaking for the people of the United States in sending to the Italian people warm fraternal greetings upon this the anniversary of the entrance of Italy into this great war, in which there is being fought out once for all the irrepressible conflict between free self-government and the dictation of force. The people of the United States have looked with profound interest and sympathy upon the efforts and sacrifices of the Italian people, are deeply and sincerely interested in the present and future security of Italy, and are glad to find themselves associated with a people to whom they are bound by so many personal and intimate ties in a struggle whose object is liberation, freedom, the rights of men and nations to live their own lives and determine their own fortunes, the rights of the weak, as well as of the strong, and the maintenance of justice by the irresistible force of free nations leagued together in the defense of mankind. With ever-increasing resolution and force we shall continue to stand together in this sacred common cause. America salutes the gallant Kingdom of Italy, and bids her godspeed.

WOODROW WILSON.

The President's message has been sent to the American Ambassador at Rome for presentation to the Italian Foreign Office.

To Name Ships for Italians.

It was announced at the meeting that as a further compliment to Italy two vessels which the United States Shipping Board will launch tomorrow, the third anniversary of Italy's participation in the war, will be named after eminent Italians. One, to be launched at Seattle, will be named the Vittorio Emanuele III., after the present King of Italy. The other will be named the Garibaldi, after one of the national heroes of Italy.

President and Mrs. Wilson, Vice President and Mrs. Marshall, most of the members of the Cabinet, many other high Government officials, the Italian Ambassador and other members of the Italian Embassy, as well as other foreign diplomats were present at the celebration tonight. Secretary Lansing, Count V. Macchi di Cellere, the Italian Ambassador, and Will Irwin were the principal speakers.

In his speech Secretary Lansing said the people of Italy, as of this country, "must not doubt for a moment the outcome," and, "as sure as there is a just God in Heaven, the day will dawn when victory will crown the eagles of Rome, as in ancient days, and, side by side with the victors and sharing their glory, will be the eagles of America.

"Three years ago," he said, "Italy made her great decision. On that day, which will ever be memorable in history, she wrote across her battle flags the world 'Liberty' and unfurled them to the world. Since that hour of decision the Italians have courageously struggled against the Teutons. Today the presence of the foe defiles the soil of Italy, but we who are warring against the same enemy of mankind have confidence that the national spirit of Italy and the genius of Italy's Generals will force back the invaders.

"United with you of the Latin race are we, who could desire no prouder title than 'the Romans of the West.' A citizen of this young republic could crave no higher public virtue nor covet a more devoted patriotism than that which inspired a dweller on the 'Seven Hills' in the brave days of the old Roman republic.

"My friends of America and of Italy, we will win this war. It may be on the wasted fields of Flanders and Picardy; it may be in the valley of the Piave and amidst the snow-crowned peaks of the Alps, or it may be on the German lands beyond the Rhine. Somewhere and somehow and sometime we will win."

Italian Ambassador's Reply.

Count di Cellere, the Italian Ambassador, responded feelingly to the address of the Secretary of State.

"I am deeply touched," he said, "by the fact that it is under the high patronage of the President of the United States that the celebration of Italy's Day is being held here in the capital of this nation, whose friendship we cherish and whose moral and material support in these fateful years we look upon as sure evidence of the victory which awaits us.

"To him goes my thankful expression of homage and gratitude, not only in my own name but in the name of my country, that knows what the President has done and is doing for the cause of humanity, for the triumph of those lofty ideals upon which the very foundation of this Commonwealth was built and rests.

"Nowhere as in Italy have the boldest elements of evil worked to disrupt the unity of the nation's will and to nullify the patriotic efforts of the Government and of the people. Nowhere has the test, consequently, been more crucial and significant, nor the spirit and the love of freedom more resiliently and convincingly triumphant. Today the whole nation stands strong and determined, facing the enemy of centuries once more entrenched in the Venetian plains, and never was her spirit higher or her attitude more defiant.

"Whatever the enemy may have to say or may desire others to believe about it, Italy is not in this war for any base and selfish motives of conquest, imperial or unlawful territorial aggrandizement. While in fact fighting for the liberation of mankind threatened with oppression and slavery, Italy is aiming at the liberation of her oppressed sons within and beyond the boundary imposed upon her by an iniquitous treaty.

"For the freedom of our country we need security on land and sea; a security which nature herself has assured us with well-defined geographic boundaries and which the violence of oppressive and barbarous nations has too long stolen from us. Now we see our duty clear; and, faithful to our duty, we will not lay down our arms until the freedom of mankind, which implies the freedom of our oppressed brothers and the security of our land, is attained.

"At the same time we look with heartfelt sympathy and a sincere spirit of co-operation upon the lawful aspirations and rights of other countries, for we have fought too long and too hard for the achievement of our national unity and independence to begrudge others the same blessings. All of those who have suffered or are suffering from the same oppression and injustice, and are with us in the hopes of redemption and are in the fight for the realization of an ideal, we hope to have with us on the day of victory and vindication."

ITALIAN CELEBRATION HERE.

The third anniversary of the entrance of Italy into the war will be celebrated today. The celebration of Italy-America Day will open at 8 o'clock with the distribution of flowers from automobiles all over the city. At 11:30 o'clock 150 automobiles, laden with flowers and decorated with the colors of Italy, with banners, streamers, and green boughs, will move down Fifth Avenue from Sixty-first Street in parade formation.

In the evening a festa and mass meeting will be held in Washington Square. Members of 400 Italian societies will take part in a ceremony called "The Mystic Ceremony of Adoration to the Spirit of Victory," before an altar of victory erected in the square near the statue of Garibaldi. The meeting will be addressed by Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Nicholas Murray Butler, Professor Oreste Ferrera, Captain Sapalli, Consul General Tritoni, and General Guglielmotti of the Italian Embassy.

A concert at the Metropolitan Opera House will conclude the day's festivities. Secretary of War Baker, Charles E. Hughes, and the Italian Ambassador will be the speakers.

Mayor Hylan issued a proclamation yesterday directing that the Italian flag be displayed on all public buildings and calling on the inhabitants of the city to appropriately decorate their buildings. The proclamation says:

PROCLAMATION.

The President of the United States has proclaimed Friday, May 24, 1918, as "Italy-America Day," to celebrate the third anniversary of Italy's entrance into the world war.

The purpose of the celebration is to afford the American people an opportunity to express in unmistakable fashion their appreciation of the splendid and heroic service rendered by Italy in the present war. An expression of cordial appreciation from the American people will be of great moral service to the Italian people in the struggles yet to come.

Italy's invaluable contribution of human and material resources in this awful conflict will long be remembered, for she has participated gallantly in three years of the hardest fighting. We rejoice in her victories, and will stand by her until complete victory crowns the efforts of the allied armies with speedy and triumphant success.

I hereby direct that on Friday, May 24, 1918, the flag of Italy shall be displayed upon public buildings in this city, and I call upon all inhabitants of the city appropriately to decorate their buildings and to display therefrom beside the flag of the United States the national colors of Italy.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused my seal to be affixed.

Done in the City of New York this 23d day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighteen.

JOHN F. HYLAN, Mayor.

Signor Angelo Tritoni, Consul General of Italy to the United States, and Professor Robert McN. McElroy of Princeton University were the speakers yesterday at the College of the City of New York combining Red Cross and Italian Day celebrations.

BIG PARADE IN ROME TODAY.

Allies Send Envoys to Mark Italy's War Anniversary.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, May 23.—The anniversary of Italy's entrance into the war has never been so solemnly and generally celebrated as it will be this year, the chief reason being that the enemy now treads Italian soil, and therefore the people wish to demonstrate their dogged determination never to lay down their arms until they have redeemed the captured towns of the mother country.

Another reason is that notabilities have been sent by the allied nations to represent them on this occasion. America has sent Hamilton Holt; Great Britain, the Prince of Wales; France, Minister Simon, and Japan is represented by her Ambassador. This sign of friendship and esteem has produced an excellent effect on the public, once again demonstrating that all the allied nations are fighting for the same ideals.

An imposing procession will pass tomorrow through the chief thoroughfares of the city, composed of Senators, Deputies, organizations, representatives of the allied armies, old followers of the national hero, Garibaldi, and a detachment of Czecho-Slovak troops fighting on the Italian front, which, when asked to take part, answered with an enthusiastic message of accord. The chief features of the demonstration will be the presence of the flags of Venice, Vincenza, Agordo, Udine, and Pordenone, all decorated with gold medals, which have waved on the firing line.

Minister Berenini has ordered that the wounded shall see the procession from the windows of the Palazzo Venezia, which formerly belonged to Austria. In the evening there will be an imposing ceremony at which all the envoys of the allied nations will be present.

The Tribuna says in commenting on the celebration of Italy Day in America:

"We see the great loyal hand of America clasped forever in cordial intimacy with the hand of Italy. Two identical civilizations based on liberty, right, and nationality find each other again today after losing sight of each other for many years. They meet in civilization on the Capitoline Hill, whence civilization sprang and was propagated all over the world. We wish that on the other side of the Atlantic, where in these days our adored flag waves over American homes, not a single word of our gratitude shall be lost, but that it shall arrive fresh and fervent as it started from Italy to cement the absolute unity of our hearts and the perpetuity of our collaboration."

CECIL APPLAUDS ITALY.

LONDON, May 23.—Italy will not flinch from the task of fighting shoulder to shoulder with her allies for satisfying and promoting the civilization of the world, said the Marquis Imperiali, the Italian Ambassador, in answer to a toast at a luncheon yesterday at the Mansion House to celebrate the anniversary of Italy's entry into the war. Italy, he added, was a warm advocate of the principle of nationality and would fight for it to the bitter end.

The Ambassador recalled the visit of King Victor Emmanuel to London in 1855, and said that the sentiments of friendship toward England then expressed were those that animated the Italy of today.

Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of Blockade, who spoke for Foreign Secretary Balfour, said that Italy had come out of the trials of the war with clearer unity and self-confidence and, if possible, greater courage than she had before. Italy had shown herself ready to extend to the Poles, Czecho-Slovaks, Rumanians and Jugo-Slavs the principle on which her own unification was founded and on which she might go forward to a greater future.

On one side, Lord Robert said, we have the German gospel of force and the belief that you can dragoon free nations into an artificial unity. On the other were the principles for which the Allies stood—freedom, that Government must be carried on with the consent of the governed and that no culture and no national existence can be built upon the oppression and subjection of nations rightly struggling to be free.

These were the principles of the Allies, and Lord Robert was sure that the Italian Government shared to the full these views and aspirations.

Lord Robert's speech is made the theme of general editorial comment in this morning's newspapers. The Morning Post cites Italy as an example of the national cohesion caused by the war. It continues:

"What is true of Italy is true of France, the United States and Great Britain, and the longer the war continues the more powerful becomes the integral force binding each nation among the Allies into a tenacious whole, and each ally to the other. The process of internal cohesion is particularly remarkable in the case of the United States."

The Post recalls America's lack of organization for war and the length of time required before the real meaning of this war could be apprehended by the American people, culminating in President Wilson's taking action "with a celerity and resolution which made him eminent among the leaders of men."

"When in a recent speech," continues the newspaper, "President Wilson declared his intention to prosecute the war until the deliverance of Russia was accomplished, he was in a position to make good his words. That declaration happily coincides with the statements of the Italian Premier in respect of the solidarity of the Allies. They are now not only united in intention, but in a combination of steadily increasing men and material, toward one end—the destruction of the military power of Germany.

"We cannot tell what view the rulers of Germany take of the situation, but we think that the Allies may justly regard it with some confidence."

EVIDENCE READY ON IRISH PLOTTING

"Astounding" Facts Prepared by Secretary Shortt for the British Cabinet.

CLASH ON WILSON APPEAL

Dublin Mayor's Refusal to Submit Document to Gen. French May Prevent Trip.

LONDON, May 23.—Evidence concerning the German plot in Ireland will be submitted to the British Cabinet today by Edward Shortt, Chief Secretary for Ireland, a Press Association dispatch from Dublin reports.

If it is thought that any part of the evidence could or should be published, compatible with the public interest, it will be done, says the dispatch, which adds:

"It can be stated on the best authority that justification for the arrests exists in the shape of astounding evidence, but publication of the same is a question affecting not merely the welfare of the prisoners, but the well-being of the empire."

In a dispatch to the Times from Dublin it is suggested that the delay in publishing the evidence of the German plot is due to the discovery of new evidence since the arrests.

Discussing the prospects of recruiting under the arrangement of which notice was given in last Saturday's proclamation, the dispatch says that few persons honestly believe that the scheme will be successful, as the atmosphere, so far as the public is concerned, is decidedly unfavorable to voluntary enlistment. The correspondent takes the view that some Irishmen might be brought to the colors by promising priority in the redistribution of land under the Land Purchase Act to returned soldiers and sailors and the dependents of those who have served.

The writer combats the idea that this would be bribery, and he submits information to show that, as regards land distribution, the men who stay home fare better than those who have served and returned. Some of the latter, he says, are eking out their military pensions by working as laborers for a few shillings weekly.

Part of the plan for voluntary recruiting in Ireland, the Dublin correspondent of The Daily News says he learns, probably will involve the complete reversal of an old War Office policy. This will mean the adoption of immediate steps to form homogeneous Irish brigades or Irish divisions in which all reasonable measures will be taken by the use of Irish emblems and the observance of Irish customs to foster the idea of a distinct nationality within the empire.

The correspondent predicts that Nationalist civilians will give only lukewarm support to the plan, and thinks that most Nationalist members of Parliament are hardly likely to accept the invitation to appear on the recruiting platform, although he admits that some of them favor supporting voluntary enlistment.

DUBLIN MAYOR REJECTS BALFOUR CONDITION

Belief That Wilson Appeal Will Not Be Made—Nationalists Fear American Disapproval.

By CHARLES N. WHEELER.

Copyright, 1918, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

DUBLIN, May 23.—The refusal of the Lord Mayor of Dublin to submit documents intended for President Wilson to the British Government before sailing will probably result in cancellation of the trip. Replying to the request of the British Foreign Office that any such documents intended for America be first submitted to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, the entire Mansion House conference agreed that this was "another humiliation" which could not be endured.

What the documents contained has not been learned, but it is understood that one bears on a League of Nations and the proposed setting up of an international tribunal to which the case of Ireland shall be referred immediately.

This unexpected development may have something to do with the return of some of the Nationalist leaders to Parliament to lay the case of Ireland "before the world." So long as they remain in Ireland, it is explained, they are without full means of informing the world that they do not sympathize with the policies of the Sinn Fein. The leaders fear that, because of their compact with the Sinn Feiners on the conscription question, public opinion in America and other countries may confuse their stand with the pro-German sympathies which the Government now formally charges against the Sinn Fein leaders.

By returning to Parliament, the Nationalist leaders enjoy the freedom of privileged communications and free speech and can lay before the bar of the House the Irish situation from their viewpoint.

Some of the leaders fear that they aided, rather than injured, the British Government by remaining away at a time when, above all things, they desired the support of American opinion, and that unless they are able to get an exhaustive statement from their viewpoint before the American public they may be disgraced and discredited if the Government should reasonably prove the case against the Sinn Fein.

John Dillon, leader of the Nationalists, explained today that his party never had sympathized, and never could sympathize, with the policies of the Sinn Fein.

"Logically and inevitably," he said, "their policy will lead to rebellion and bloodshed, which no sane and farseeing man could tolerate. For the Nationalists to fall in with Sinn Fein would certainly strike a blow against Ireland in America, the very spot where we must keep our skirts clean in this trying crisis."

Dillon is more than ever convinced now that the Irish question should be settled on the dominion plan within the empire, and, at all events, that Ireland should not make it more difficult for America to carry on the war. By giving Ireland home rule on the dominion plan he is satisfied that Ireland would be in a position to aid more in the war than under any other plan and bring the Allies into a better understanding of Irish aims.

But for the fact that the withdrawal of the Nationalist candidate in the East Cavan District might be construed as approval of Sinn Fein policies, Dillon would call off the campaign immediately. He goes to Bailieborough on Sunday for a conference with the Nominating Committee, where he hopes to settle the muddle.

Though declaring that there is no way of agreeing with Sinn Fein policies for freeing Ireland, Dillon and the Mansion House conference have agreed to use the defense funds gathered for the fight on conscription for the relief of the families of the Sinn Fein leaders now interned in England. To this extent the Nationalist leaders are ready to be identified with the Sinn Fein and take the consequences.

The Sinn Feiners are preparing a big demonstration in the County of Cavan for Sunday, at which one of the principal speakers will be Father O'Flanagan of Crosna.

Balfour Letter Checks Mayor.

DUBLIN, May 22.—At the anti-conscription conference at Mansion House today a letter was read from A. J. Balfour, the British Foreign Secretary, to the Lord Mayor of Dublin stating that passports would be granted to the Lord Mayor only if he agreed to submit to the Irish Government all documents which he intended to carry to America on his proposed trip there. It was announced that the Mayor had replied that the only document he intended to carry was one direct to President Wilson from the Mansion House conference and that he would decline to submit this to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland.

The matter was considered in a two-hour sitting, after which the conference adjourned until tomorrow.

The document which the Lord Mayor was to take to President Wilson was a statement of the case of Ireland against conscription as framed by the conference. His departure is now delayed further, and he will not leave—if at all—before the end of next week.

The Lord Mayor in a letter to Secretary Balfour on May 15 wrote:

"I have received from you passports to proceed to America to place before the President of the United States the case against conscription being enforced in Ireland. I beg to thank you. I understand that no documents may be carried by passengers going to the United States. I would be glad if you would kindly have authority issued to enable me to convey a document which has been drawn up for presentation to President Wilson."

Mr. Balfour replied:

"I am advised by competent authorities that the document which you desire to convey to the President of the United States ought, in the first instance, to be submitted to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland."

The Lord Mayor of Dublin sent this reply to the Foreign Secretary:

"My conference has decided that as the document is a direct communication between the conference and the President of the United States they decline to submit it to the Lord Lieutenant."

Edward Short, Chief Secretary for Ireland, left Dublin by the morning boat today for Holyhead on his way to London. His departure was entirely unexpected in official circles and his absence from Dublin Castle was known only to a few persons until this afternoon.

Several appointments made for today and tomorrow had to be canceled, and it was believed generally that the Chief Secretary's sudden journey to London came as a consequence of a series of conferences held yesterday between the heads of the military and civil departments. As compared with the activities there yesterday, the atmosphere at the Castle today was of a normal and quiet character.

John Etchingham, a local Sinn Fein leader, was arrested last night in Southern Ireland.

The members of the Sinn Fein who were deported have been informed that, if they so desired, they could have an investigation of their cases before Justices Sir Robert Younger of the High Court of Justice, and Sir John Sankey of the King's Bench Division, but it is understood that this offer has been refused in every case. The Sinn Feiners have been allowed to correspond with their relatives.

Public boards throughout the country continue to protest against the arrests. Dublin is quite normal, and reports from the country show an equally calm state of affairs.

All the newspapers in Ireland, both morning and evening, publish The Associated Press interview with John Dillon prominently, but editorially they ignore his attack on the Sinn Fein, and only emphasize his attack on the British Government. The Freeman's Journal and other leading Nationalist papers still accuse the British Cabinet of desiring "to poison American opinion against Ireland."

WANTS LEAGUE OF GOOD-WILL.

Daughter of John Redmond Spurns German Propaganda.

LONDON, May 23.—Johanna Redmond, daughter of John Redmond, in a letter to The Chronicle, suggests a League of Good-Will between Great Britain and Ireland.

"German propaganda," she says, "has been cleverly at work under the surface, spreading the seeds of hatred and dissension between Great Britain and Ireland. So wily have been their methods, so crowned with success their efforts, that we have almost claimed a religion of hatred as our own. It is not too late, however, even now, to recognize its trade mark, 'Made in Germany,' and to plant a new seed in its place—a League of Good-Will.

"Surely, such a seed should flourish and bear wholesome fruit. It has been stated, especially since the base menace of conscription has electrified this country, that the Irish people are filled with bitter hatred and ill-will toward the peoples of England. This is a mischievous falsehood.

"That the Irish people distrust and loathe the British misgovernment in Ireland, is true; and they do so with such avowed good cause that it would be superfluous to recount the reasons. But whatever the British Government has done in the past, or contemplates in future—even enforcing of such an act of injustice and despotism as conscription—the attitude of the British people in this war, their generosity and sacrifice, have gained the respect and admiration of all civilized nations of the world. It is inconceivable that Ireland, with her historic generosity of spirit, would, by condoning such hatred and ill-feeling, place a weapon of destruction in the blood-stained hands of the common enemy.

"That England's difficulty in this war has been Ireland's opportunity, is true. Now, in a new sense, it is an opportunity, not to revenge herself for her past ill-treatment or present vital wrongs, but, on the contrary, to prove herself a nation so broad-minded, actuated by such noble ideals and pity for the wronged, that in a just and noble cause she can, without detriment to her honor, hold out the hand of peace and good-will to the ancient enemy at her gates.

Now, at this momentous hour, wholeheartedly, even with pride, we must admit the alliance with England. Whatever our differences, and they are many and grievous, we are one with her in the cause of humanity, with a large, unbigoted heart.

"It is our warmest duty to learn to be tolerant and sympathetic of all that is brave and admirable in the English character, to root out harsh prejudices against it, trusting nothing but the chivalrous impulses of our own hearts, letting no threats alarm or promises alure us.

"We must take our stand, shoulder to shoulder and united, against the common foe. It is possible for us to do all this, and still remain true Irishmen and Irishwomen, with our hearts burning with love of Ireland, our brains striving for her welfare, and true to our principles of Irish nationality."

SISTER OF PARNELL DIES IN WORKHOUSE

Mrs. Ricketts Had Means and Is Said to Have Been Deranged —Wrote of Brother.

DUBLIN, May 23.—A sensation was caused in Dublin today by the death in the workhouse hospital known as the "South Dublin Union" of Mrs. Emily Ricketts, sister of the late Charles Stewart Parnell, the famous Irish patriot.

Mrs. Ricketts, who was formerly Mrs. Emily Dickinson, was admitted to the hospital early last week. The authorities say that she then gave her name as Mrs. Roberts. She was nearly 80 years of age. She died in the hospital Sunday and it was some time later when the authorities learned of her identity.

The authorities communicated with Mrs. Ricketts's brother, Jack Parnell, who said that he was at a loss to understand the reasons which prompted her to take refuge in a charitable institution, as she possessed ample means to enable her to live comfortably. One of the newspapers says:

"It is supposed that her mind was deranged and that she was not responsible for her actions at the time."

Mrs. Ricketts was a writer of considerable ability. In a recent article containing reminiscences of her famous brother, she wrote:

"It has been said that ours is the most tragic family in Ireland. This, I think, is true."

WOMEN ENROLL TOMORROW.

Women who wish to vote in the primaries next September must enroll tomorrow. Enrollment places will be open from 8 A. M. to 10 P. M. A list of all these places was printed in The Times last Sunday.

HAYS, IN PLEA, URGES WOMEN TO ENROLL

Republican Chairman Advocates Fullest Participation in Political Activities.

CITES PARTY'S PRINCIPLES

Miss Hay Draws Up a List of "Don'ts" and Tells Women Not to be Political Slackers.

Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, yesterday issued an urgent appeal to women to enroll tomorrow. His plea, summed up, was that as a Republican he naturally preferred to have the women enroll as Republicans, but that in any event he wanted them to enroll.

"The test of all time of the womanhood of the world is upon us," said Mr. Hays. "It is the women who are carrying the supreme burden of this war and noble and magnificent beyond expression is their conduct.

"A particular, immediate duty comes to the women in New York with the enrollment. You have received the right to participate in your own Government, a most just and proper privilege, and supremely important to you now in this crisis in the country's affairs. You can only vote in the primaries if you enroll, and enroll you should.

"I most earnestly urge the fullest participation by the women in political activities. You owe this to yourselves; you owe it to the State and nation.

Outlines Republican Principles.

Continuing Mr. Hays urged the women to vote "that better politics and consequent better government may result at all times," and then asked them to join the Republican Party, which, he said, "has carried the flag as it has kept step with the music of the Union which it made. I am convinced," he said in conclusion, "that the women of America can be depended upon and that they believe in those things for which the Republican Party stands.

"First—To win the war now. Second—For a peace by victory and never a peace by compromise bargaining which would make of our children's sacrifice a sacrilege, to be made again by our grandchildren. Third—For a sane preparation now for the solution of the immeasurable problems of reconstruction which will come after the war; for a forward stepping as well as a forward looking program, touching the human and economic issues with our eyes always to the front and our feet always on solid ground."

Miss Hay Issues Appeal.

Miss Mary Garrett Hay, Chairman of the New York City Woman Suffrage Party, last night issued her "last appeal to women voters to enroll." In this she said that tomorrow would be a "red letter day in the political lives of women in this city when you will leave the isolation of the disfranchised women and not only openly indorse party principles, but enter into a political comradeship with men that will mean much to the community as the years go by." She wound up her appeal with this series of "Don'ts":

Don't fear to enroll in a political party because you think you may surrender your independence. You do not have to vote for every one of its candidates—you can vote a split ticket, as many citizens do.

Don't neglect the primaries and then complain because better candidates are not nominated. Don't be a howler—be a helper.

Don't hold aloof from the parties because you think women will thus have more power. Service, not power, should be your watchword.

Don't think that the parties are composed entirely of politicians. Your husbands, fathers, brothers, and sons are in them. Join with them for political betterment.

Don't forget that we won the ballot through the votes of the men. Let us try to help them to solve their problems through the parties.

Don't fail to make the record of the woman voter of the city a good one, for the eyes of the country are upon her and the disfranchised women of other States will profit or lose by what she does.

Don't forget that you can learn much from men by association with them in the parties.

Don't take advice from any one about what party you should join. Study party platforms for yourselves and make a conscientious decision.

Don't be a political slacker. A political slacker is a patriotic slacker. More and more the men are called to the front. Women must do good work in the parties that all may be well when the men return. Voting is as patriotic as sewing for the Red Cross or selling Liberty Bonds.

Don't fail to enroll on May 25. Don't fail to vote at the primaries on Sept. 3. Help the parties. Help the Government. Help democracy.

Miss Hay, who lives at 2 West Eighty-sixth Street, is a suffrage captain of the Second Election District in the Ninth Assembly District. Miss Hay is preparing to distribute among women voters in her election district the enrollment handbills which the Suffrage Party has been getting out, giving the addresses of the polling places. Mrs. John Blair, who lives in the Nineteenth Election District of the Fifteenth Assembly District, will do similar service in her district. Mrs. Robert T. Oliver, who is leader of the Woman Suffrage Party in the Eleventh Assembly District, is conducting an enrollment school for the women of her district. Miss Adeline Sterling, Corresponding Secretary of the New York City Woman Suffrage Party, is also acting as captain of her election district, the Thirteenth of the Thirteenth Assembly District, and is rounding up the women voters by letter, urging them to come out and do their full duty tomorrow.

BENNETT BURIED IN PARIS.

Diplomats Attend Funeral of the Publisher in Trinity Church.

PARIS, May 23.—The funeral of James Gordon Bennett, owner of The New York Herald, was held today in Trinity Church. It was attended by members of the Government and the diplomatic corps, including the American Ambassador, William G. Sharp; the Spanish Ambassador, Senor Quinones, and the French Foreign Minister, Stephen Pichon.

The services had a naval aspect. Captain Portier of the French navy was present as representative of President Poincaré. A number of United States naval officers were in the procession to the cemetery.

The pallbearers were attachés of the American Embassy and friends and business associates of Mr. Bennett. The Rev. Frederick W. Beekman, rector of the church, officiated at the service. He was assisted by Bishops McCormick and Israel. Floral designs from French and American societies and friends were numerous, and hundreds of Parisians and others who wished to pay tribute to Mr. Bennett's memory followed the procession from the church to the cemetery.

GEN. J. B. CASTLEMAN DEAD.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 23.—General John B. Castleman, President of the American Saddle Horse Breeders' Association and a member of Morgan's command, died at his home here today after a brief illness.

General Castleman gained a place in history in the war between the States as a commander of an expedition, the purpose of which was to liberate Confederate prisoners of war at Camp Douglas, who were to seize and burn the City of Chicago. The plan failed. General Castleman was arrested as a spy and held until the end of the war, when he was paroled upon condition that he would leave the United States. A couple of years later President Johnson permitted him to return, requiring him to take the oath of allegiance.

General Castleman was a veteran of the Spanish-American war and commanded Kentucky troops during the unrest that followed the assassination of Governor William Goebel in 1900. General Castleman was 78 years old.

Dr. Louis E. Meeker.

Dr. Louis E. Meeker, founder of the Eastern District Savings Bank in Brooklyn, of which he was President for twenty-one years, died yesterday at his residence, 44 Linden Street, Brooklyn. He was 67 years old. Dr. Meeker was born in New Jersey and was directly descended from the Meeker family, which came from England early in the seventeenth century, settling finally in New Jersey. The Meekers of New Jersey have been in possession of the famous Lyons farm, between Newark and Elizabeth, for more than 200 years. Dr. Meeker had devoted many years to the study of genealogy. He is survived by a son.

Body Clothing or Underwear —Which?

If it doesn't matter what it is so long as it is cheap and because it is out of sight, why any underwear will do.

But if it is something for men to wear over and next to the skin for the sake of better feeling, better health, better work, it is Body Clothing—AMHO Body Clothing—there is no other.

And in summer it is AMHO White Lisle Body Clothing for men.

The very words "White Lisle" suggest clean, cool skin comfort and at $5 or $6 the two-piece suit it is more economical than underwear at half the price.

MODEL CLOTHES for Men & Young Men
$15, $18, $20 & $25

Last March The Sultzbach Clothing Company sold their three GEORGES Greater New York Stores to auctioneers, including the last Fall and Winter stocks then on hand.

All of the new Spring and Summer merchandise, however, more than $200,000 worth of it, contracted for as early as last November and intended for the George Stores, was taken over by us, and these Suits and Top Coats we now offer at a GUARANTEED SAVING OF $5 TO $20 ON AVERAGE FIRST FLOOR PRICES.

However impossible this may seem to you—just consider that whereas, the three GEORGES Greater New York Stores had a combined rent and overhead expense, including display advertising, light and heat, window trimming, managerial salaries, etc., of about $194,000 annually, our total overhead expenses on the Sixth Floor of the Monolith Building, 45 West 34th St.—directly opposite McAlpin Hotel—aggregate only about $3,000. And whereas on the first floor basis it cost about 33⅓ per cent. to do business, which had to be paid in greater profits by the customer, OUR merchandising plan, under the personal direction of Mr. George F. Sultzbach, permits us to do business on at most a 15 per cent. basis, secure a fair legitimate profit for ourselves and POSITIVELY GUARANTEE A SAVING TO YOU OF $5 TO $20 PER GARMENT.

MINE FIELD BLOCKS UPPER NORTH SEA

New British Decree Aims to Prevent German Egress Between Norway and Scotland.

NARROW CHANNEL ON EAST

But Only in Norwegian Territorial Waters—Area on Scotch Coast Intensively Patrolled.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The location of the new mine field established on May 15 by the British Government, closing off most of the northern end of the North Sea against egress by submarines and raiders, has just been disclosed in a communication received by the Washington Government.

According to a statement made by Archibald Hurd, the naval expert, in The London Daily Telegram, and cabled to this country early this morning, this new mine field, which was the greatest ever laid to foil the German submarine, embraced 121,732 square miles. This appears to be an error, as the new field, as plotted on official hydrographic charts, appears to cover only about 13,738 square miles. The field takes the form of two joined parallelograms, one of which is 140 miles long and 58 miles across, and the other about 54 miles wide by 74 miles long.

This broad protective belt of mines extends across the North Sea from the Norwegian coast almost to the Orkney Islands and the Moray Firth, on the northeastern coast of Scotland. It runs along the three-mile territorial limit on the Norwegian coast from a point opposite Bergen, to Udsire Lightship, northeast of Karmo and the Skudesnaes Fjord. The northwestern corner of the new mine field is opposite Fair Island, northeast of the Orkneys. The southwestern point of the field is opposite Kinnaird Head, at the southeastern entrance to Moray Firth.

The new mine field went into effect on May 15 and since that date shipping has entered the new mine field at its peril. The establishment of this new mine field and the successful blocking of the U-boat bases at Ostend and Zeebrugge by the British have already had a telling effect in the campaign against the submarine menace. It is part of the new policy of going after the submarine instead of waiting for the submarine to come out.

The Official Statement.

"North Sea—Northern entrance.

"Prohibited area.—In view of the unrestricted warfare carried on by Germany at sea, by means of mines and submarines, not only against the allied powers but also against neutral shipping, and the fact that merchant ships are constantly sunk without regard to the ultimate safety of their crews, the following prohibited area will be established in the North Sea on May 15, 1918. This area, which is bounded by lines joining the following points, is dangerous to all vessels and should be avoided:

First—Latitude 59 degrees 12 minutes 30 seconds north; longitude 4 degrees 40 minutes east.

Second—Latitude 59 degrees 20 minutes north; longitude 3 degrees 10 minutes east.

Third—Latitude 58 degrees 25 minutes north; longitude 0 degrees, 50 minutes west.

Fifth—Latitude 60 degrees 21 minutes north; longitude 3 degrees 10 minutes east.

Sixth—Latitude 60 degrees north; longitude 4 degrees 56 minutes east.

The new mine field does not close the route previously left open for Dutch merchant shipping. This was a narrow zone, extending northward from the Dutch coast to Udsire Lightship, between the previously established British and German danger zones. Dutch ships can continue to follow this route, if not molested by German submarines, to Udsire Lightship, and then pass within the three-mile territorial strip of waters between the Norwegian coast and the new British mine field.

There are only two ways of passing the new mine field. One is by skirting the territorial waters of Norway. For German submarines or raiders to use these waters would violate Norwegian neutrality.

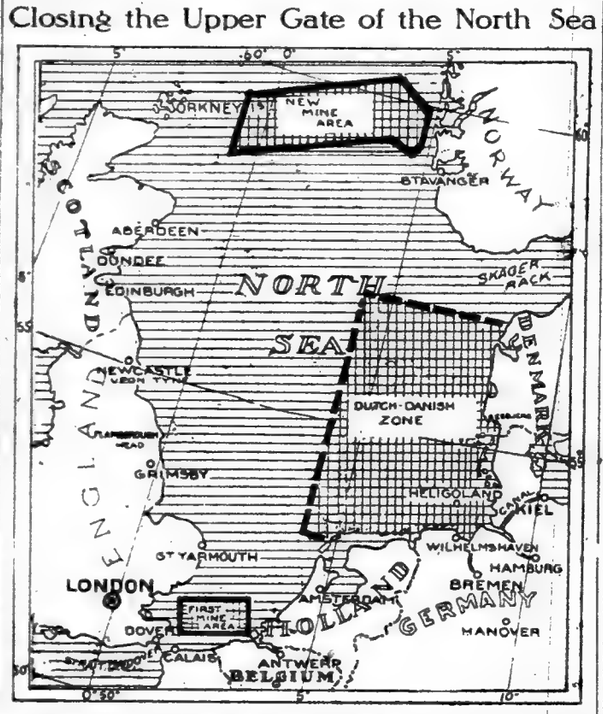
The other alternative would be to pass to the west of the new mine field and between it and the Scotch coast. This area has been provided with a more intensive patrol of destroyers since the new field was established.

Two Other Mined Areas.

There is also a British mine field, bottling up the southern entrance to the North Sea. This was established early in the war and was intended to protect the English Channel against the submarine menace. It extends from the Dutch coast almost to Dover and the mouth of the Thames, and is rectangular in shape. It has proved very effective.

Between this old mine area at the southern and the new one at the northern entrance to the North Sea is a third danger area established more than a year ago, covering the Dutch coast and the Jutland coast of Denmark. This third mine field was intended to curb the movements of submarines and raiders from the German naval bases on the North Sea coast of Prussia.

Closing the Upper Gate of the North Sea



By establishing a new mine field between the Norwegian and Scotch coasts the British Admiralty seeks to prevent German submarines or raiders from leaving the North Sea. The southern portal to this sea was closed early in the war by a mine field at the entrance of the English Channel.

USE LIBERTY MOTOR IN AIR MAIL SERVICE

Journey from Philadelphia Is Made in 50 Minutes by New Plane.

SPEEDIEST TRIP SO FAR

Letters Arrive Here from Washington in Two Hours and Fifteen Minutes.

Piloting a new airplane driven by a Liberty motor, Lieutenant Stephen Bonsal carried the mail yesterday between Belmont Park and Philadelphia in the fastest time yet made over the air route. He delivered the mail and returned at fast speed, making the round trip in three hours, or about nineteen minutes better than on any previous trip, although weather conditions were not of the best. Rain was encountered near Philadelphia, but, notwithstanding this, the new motor stood up well under the test, and both flights were made without mishap.

The aerial mail plane used in the test flights was almost double in size of those that have been in use on the "cloudland" mail service. The machine piloted by Lieutenant Bonsal was accompanied by a smaller machine flown by Lieutenant Edward Kilgore of Philadelphia. There was the promise of rain in the clouds when the two fliers left the ground at Belmont Park at shortly after 11 o'clock yesterday morning. Bonsal carried about 350 pounds of mail. The use of the airplane equipped with the Liberty motor was assigned to the mail-carrying service without notice and it was evidently intended that the flight should be in the nature of a test.

Rising in long sweeps until he was high above the Park, Lieutenant Bonsal soon attained the required altitude and then he straightened the big plane out on the course for Philadelphia. He handled the new Curtiss machine with its fast motors well, and soon it was seen that he would outstrip Lieutenant Kilgore's smaller machine. Until both disappeared from sight the crowd on the field watched them as they winged their way into the storm. Reports from Philadelphia show that the new Liberty airplane landed at 12:25, having made the trip from New York in 55 minutes.

Three minutes behind Lieutenant Bonsal came Lieutenant Kilgore. The flight of the two planes marked the institution of the precautionary plan to have two flyers on each mail trip to guard against delays, due to accident. After delivering his mail and taking on mail for New York, Lieutenant Bonsal and his attendant pilot took to the air again. He arrived at Belmont Field at 2:25, having covered the return trip in 59 minutes and delivering his mail 2 hours and 15 minutes after it had started from Washington.

On the first trip with the mails, on May 16, Lieutenant Torrey H. Webb, made the flight to Philadelphia in one hour.

RECORD IN STATE REVENUES

ALBANY, N. Y., May 23.—The State coffers have been enriched by approximately $25,378,000 more revenue so far this year than during any preceding one. State Controller Travis announced tonight. The largest amount of this increase, the Controller shows, comes from the new 3 per cent. corporation income tax, which, with other corporation taxes, has returned more than $19,328,000. In addition, substantial increases, aggregating $4,626,307.46, have been collected from other sources, totaling nearly $54,000,000.

Comparatively few taxpayers are aware of the existence of two unusual forms of taxation which to date have netted the State over $2,282,737. These two forms—the mortgage recording and investment taxes—are in the nature of exemption duties, that is, by paying a smaller tax to the State investors escape a larger one at home. The result is that the State will receive over $3,000,000 more income in a way that would never be paid as taxes anywhere else.

NEW B. R. T. MORTGAGE.

Stockholders Ratify Proposed $150,000,000 Bond Issue.

Stockholders of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, at a special meeting in Brooklyn yesterday, unanimously approved the issuance of a new consolidated and refunding mortgage to take the place of the old 4 per cent. mortgage. A total of 544,139 shares was represented at the meeting, considerably more than two-thirds of the total outstanding.

The Central Trust Company will act as Trustee of the mortgage and bonds to the amount of $150,000,000 will be issued, of which $87,654,000 are reserved to replace underlying bonds of the B. R. T. or its subsidiary companies, and the remainder may be issued for extensions, improvements, acquisition of lands, &c. The bonds may be issued in series and at such interest as the Directors may determine, and any series may be converted into stock of the company upon such terms as the Directors may approve. Any part of the bonds may be redeemed upon such terms and at such times as the Directors may determine.

President T. S. Williams announced that in the matter of the approaching maturity of $57,735,000 of notes issued for subway improvements under contracts with the city negotiations had been in progress with local banks and the United States Government for some time and an application had been made to the newly-created War Finance Corporation of Washington for assistance in meeting these maturing notes. The Finance Corporation has granted a hearing for Tuesday and no announcement of its attitude could be made at the present time.

STEVENS OUT FOR SENATE.

Cape May Man a Candidate for Senator Hughes's Unexpired Term.

TRENTON, N. J., May 23.—Petitions are in circulation throughout the State to place the name of Senator Lewis T. Stevens of Cape May County in nomination at the September primaries as a candidate for the short term in the United States Senate, for the unexpired term of the late Senator Hughes, ending March 3 next.

It is reported that by running for the short term Senator Stevens feels he will in no way interfere with the candidacy of Governor Edge or Senator Colgate for the long term, beginning March 4 next.

ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRECTS ERROR

Inadvertently Misquoted La Follette on His St. Paul Speech and So Notifies Senate.

The Associated Press yesterday sent to Senator Atlee Pomerene, Chairman of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, which has under investigation the charge that the speech of Senator La Follette in St. Paul last September was seditious and disloyal, the following telegram:

"The Associated Press learned for the first time on May 21 that the accuracy of its account of Senator La Follette's speech in St. Paul on Sept. 20 last was challenged. Thorough investigation was made immediately, convincing us that we distributed inaccurately one important phrase, to which attention has been directed by the Senator's counsel.

"The Associated Press did not have a staff reporter at the convention addressed by the Senator and depended upon the report received by The St. Paul Pioneer Press. Our St. Paul editor obtained a duplicate copy of the account written by a reporter for that paper, and, because of the lateness of the hour, transmitted it to our members without waiting for it to be edited or revised by the writer. Our report on Sept. 20 carried quotations attributed to Senator La Follette as follows:

"'I wasn't in favor of beginning this war. We had no grievances. The German Government had interfered with our rights to travel on the high seas—as passengers on the munition ships of Great Britain. On these grievances, which were insignificant, considering the rights and consequences involved, we went to war. We had a right to ship munitions, but I was not in favor of the riding.'

"The foregoing quotations, preceded by other quoted paragraphs, were taken from the reporter's account in the manner stated. They were no written by our editor, and were not available to him until nearly 2 A. M., very late for morning papers. It is improbable that the reporter made a stenographic report. The quoted matter was not read as carefully as it should have been, for otherwise the conflicting word 'no' would have been seen. The Pioneer Press, from which our story was taken, quoted Senator La Follette as saying: 'We have grievances.'

"We cannot account for the disparity in any other way than stated. It is the recollection of the editor who filed the story that Senator La Follette in effect said: 'We had a grievance, but it was not sufficient to justify a declaration of war.'

"The error was regrettable, and The Associated Press seizes the first opportunity to do justice to Senator La Follette.

"FREDERICK ROY MARTIN,
"Assistant General Manager, The Associated Press."

WOMEN ENROLL TOMORROW.

Women who wish to vote in the primaries next September must enroll tomorrow. Enrollment places will be open from 7 A. M. to 10 P. M. A list of all these places was printed in The Times last Sunday.

LACKAWANNA STEEL GAINS.

Extra Dividend Declared in Addition to the Regular.

The Lackawanna Steel Company declared yesterday an extra dividend of 2½ per cent. on the common stock together with the usual quarterly payment of 1¼ per cent., both payable June 29, to stockholders of record June 14. Six months ago an extra 3¼ per cent. was ordered, and at this time last year 2½ per cent. was voted as a special disbursement.

Directors of the Haskell & Barker Car Company declared a quarterly dividend of $1 per share, to be paid July 1 to stockholders of record June 15. Payments heretofore have been 75 cents quarterly.

The Pittsburgh Rolls Corporation ordered an initial payment of 1 per cent. on the common stock and the regular quarterly distribution of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred, payable July 1 to stockowners on the books June 30.

WORK OR FIGHT, WARNING TO ALL

military service of the United States.

Any local board will be authorized to take action, whether it has original jurisdiction of the registrant or not; in other words, any man loafing around a poolroom in Chicago may be held to answer to a Chicago board, even though he may have registered in New York and lived there most of his life.

The regulations which apply to idle registrants will be deemed to apply also to gamblers of all descriptions and employes and attendants of bucket shops and race tracks, fortune tellers, clairvoyants, palmists, and the like, who for the purposes of the regulations, shall be considered as idlers.

The new regulations will also affect the following classes:

(a) Persons engaged in the serving of food and drink, or either, in public places, including hotels and social clubs.

(b) Passenger elevator operators and attendants, doormen, footmen, and other attendants of clubs, hotels, stores, apartment houses, office buildings, and bathhouses.

(c) Persons, including ushers and other attendants, engaged and occupied in, and in connection with games, sports, and amusements, excepting actual performers in legitimate concerts, operas, or theatrical performances.

(d) Persons employed in domestic service.

(e) Sales clerks and other clerks employed in stores and other mercantile establishments.

Men who are engaged as above or who are idlers will not be permitted to seek relief because of the fact that they have drawn a late order number or because they have been placed in class II., III., or IV. on the grounds of dependency. The fact that he is not usefully employed will outweigh both of the above conditions.

It is expected that the list of nonuseful occupations will be extended from time to time as necessity will require so as to include persons in other employments.

Temporary absences from regular employment not to exceed one week, unless such temporary absences are habitual and frequent, shall not be considered as idleness. Regular vacations will not be considered as absences in this connection.

The regulation throws a further safeguard around men not usefully employed by providing that where there are compelling domestic circumstances that would not permit change of employment by the registrant without disproportionate hardship to his dependents, or where a change from non-useful employment or occupation would necessitate a removal of the registrant or his family, local boards may give consideration to the circumstances. The regulation further provides that where such a change of employment would compel the right employment of women under circumstances which a board might deem unsuitable for such employment of women, the board may take such circumstances into consideration in making its decision.

Avoids Industrial Draft.

Provost Marshal General Crowder, in discussing the new regulation, said:

"The war has so far disorganized the normal adjustment of industrial manpower as to prevent the enormous industrial output and national organization necessary to success. There is a popular demand for organization of man power, but no direct draft could be imposed at present. Steps to prohibit idleness and non-effective occupation will be welcomed by our people. We shall give the idlers and men not effectively employed the choice between military service and effective employment. Every man in the draft age, at least, must work or fight.

"It is enough to ask what would happen if every man in the nation turned his hand to effective work. We must make ourselves effective. We must organise for the future. We must make vast withdrawals for the army and immediately close up the ranks of industry behind the gap with an accelerating production of every useful thing in necessary measure. How is this to be done?

"The answer is plain. The first step toward the solution of the difficulty is to prohibit engagement by able-bodied men in the field of hurtful employment, idleness, or ineffectual employment, and thus induce and persuade the vast, wasted excess into useful fields.

"March Past Crowds of Idlers."

"The very situation we are now considering, however, offers great possibilities in improvement of the draft as well as great possibilities for the composition of the labor situation by effective administration of the draft. Considering the selective service law, we see two principal causes of deferment of the call to military service—exemption and the order numbers assigned by lot. The exemptions themselves fall into two conspicuous categories—dependency and industrial employment. One protects domestic relations, the other the economic interests of the nation. Between the two there is an inevitable hiatus, for it is demonstrably true that thousands, if not millions, of dependency exemptions have no effect on industrial protection whatever. One of the unanswerable criticisms of the draft has been that it takes men from the farms and from all useful employments and marches them past scores of idlers and loafers away to the army. The remedy is simple—to couple the industrial basis with other grounds for exemption and to require that any man pleading exemption on any ground shall also show that he is contributing effectively to the industrial welfare of the nation."

Fate of Baseball in Doubt.

Secretary Baker declined to give an opinion as to the effect the new order would have upon organized baseball and professional sports, but he indicated that the case of each man affected would be settled on its merits, and that the question whether professionals in baseball, golf, tennis, and other sports were idlers or in nonessential pursuits would be decided whenever a specific case was brought up on appeal.

When Secretary Baker was informed that some of the baseball Presidents were credited with the statement that the drafting of baseball men might disrupt organized baseball, he said he was thoroughly familiar with the scope and intent of the new regulations and did not anticipate the result feared by the baseball leaders.

When he was asked as to whether a professional golfer, who might have been placed in a deferred classification by reason of dependency, would lose his classification, he said:

"It means that the local board is given discretion to determine whether his deferred classification should be taken away, and it isn't solely determined upon the fact that he is engaged as a professional golfer, but upon the existence in his community of more useful occupations open to that man in which he could go without changing the situation as to his dependents. But each case will be decided separately and on its merits."

Warns Slackers Who Flee.

WASHINGTON, May 23. (Associated Press.)—Slackers who leave the country to escape the draft will be prosecuted under the Selective Service act on their return, Attorney General Gregory announced today.

"The passage of time will not prevent the bringing of prosecutions," he said. "Such nonregistrants and delinquents either must return for military service or become permanent expatriates with all future rights of United States citizenship denied them. The Government at no time hereafter will be inclined to grant any general amnesty to such men.

"It should also be clearly understood by the general public that whoever assists another to escape from this country to evade military service, or whoever assists to maintain in a foreign country one who has fled there to escape military service, is guilty of a violation of the Espionage act and upon conviction becomes liable to the full penalties imposed thereby."

BASEBALL MAY STOP IF NEW ORDER STANDS

Would Strip Most of the Big Teams—Tener and Owners Not Dismayed.

PITTSBURGH, May 23.—"Everything must be done to win this war," said President John K. Tener today, upon learning of the new "work or fight" order of Provost Marshal General Crowder, "and if baseball is a sport as classified in this new order, and not a business in which there is a great investment of money, then baseball will not be behind other interests in contributing its part toward winning the war.

"If baseball is nonessential, and players of draft age have to give up playing, the clubs will try to find players that are not of draft age, and if this cannot be done there is a possibility that our ball parks will have to be closed and the season be brought to an end.

"Since the draft or conscription act has been effective we have been operating with the understanding that baseball was being encouraged by the Government, and players have been responding as they have been called under the provisions of the draft, in great numbers, and many of them have volunteered.

"Baseball also has been doing its share of war work in every way, and baseball is only too glad to comply with the new regulations, having perfect confidence that it will not be discriminated against by the Government or any department head."

"I do not believe the Government has any intention of wiping out baseball altogether, but if I had my way I would close every theatre, ball park, and other place of recreation in the country and make the people realize that they are in the most terrible war in the history of the world."

BOSTON, May 23.—Draft regulations requiring professional baseball players to join the army or to take up war work would strip the Boston American League club of the bulk of its leading players. The Boston Nationals would be less seriously affected from a playing standpoint, although the club would lose many men.

President Harry Frazee of the Red Sox declined today to comment on the ruling of the Provost Marshal General, and Manager Barrow was silent, although he admitted that the former world champions could not hope to keep with the procession if old-time stars should be called out.

It was his understanding while in Washington recently, President Percy D. Haughton of the Braves said, that the war would not interfere with baseball, as he was informed then, he stated, that President Wilson was in favor of continuing the sport. Mr. Haughton and players and officials alike agreed, however, that that winning the war was paramount, and that all else was of no moment.

CHICAGO, May 23.—Strict enforcement of General Crowder's order would, it is said, wreck the two major league baseball clubs of Chicago. All the players of both teams except four are of draft age.

DETROIT, May 23.—"Such an order would cause us to close our park," said Frank J. Navin, President of the Detroit Baseball Club, when told today that baseball players might be included in the amendment to the draft regulations requiring men to engage in useful occupations or join the army.

"The order would leave me Donovan as pitcher, Stanage behind the bat, Spencer at first, and Jennings at short. How does that sound for a pennant winner?"

He added, however, that winning the war was more essential than winning baseball games.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 23.—"A most drastic order," said E. W. Dickerson, President of the Western League, in referring to the amendment to the draft regulations, which may include baseball players. "The Western League would not lose more than twenty players at the most, as forty-four are already in the service."

DALLAS, Texas, May 23.—A poll of the Texas League clubs taken this morning shows that no club will have even the nucleus of a baseball team if men between the ages of 21 and 31 are barred from playing after July 1. The Fort Worth team, the league leader, has only two players over the draft age.

Offrtcials of the local major league clubs who were here yesterday were loath to express opinions regarding the effect of a possible drafting of baseball players for essential war work. At National League headquarters Secretary John A. Heydler said that any comment on the situation should come from President Tener, who is in Pittsburgh.

The announcement came as such a surprise to the baseball men that they are anxious for an official ruling that the Government means to break up the sport before saying anything about it.

There is no doubt, that if the ruling is operated in connection with baseball all the parks will have to close. There are about 367 players in both major leagues at the present time and nearly 80 per cent. of these would come under the new ruling.

Practically all the players on the local clubs would be taken from the game. The members of the Giants who would come under the ruling are George Burns, 29; Walter Holke, 25; Lew McCarty, 30; Rariden, 30; Wilhoit, 28; Benton, 28; Perritt, 26; Schupp, 26, and Tesreau, 29. The members of the Yankees who are within the draft age are Bodie, 31; High, 28; Pechinpaugh, 27; Walter Pipp, 25; Pratt, 29; Walters, 25; Caldwell, 30; Mogridge, 28.

The members of the Brooklyn Club within the draft age are Johnston, 29; Miller, 29; Myers, 29; Wheat, 30, and Marquard, 29.

TURFMEN ARE HOPEFUL.

Believe Necessity of Breeding Cavalry Horses Will Save the Sport.

There was little concern among turfmen at the Jamaica track yesterday as to the likelihood of the announcement of Provost Marshal General Crowder affecting horse racing. A few of the younger element who make a daily practice of attending the races were upset by the new order, but the leaders of the sport depend on the value of racing as a means of improving the type of cavalry horses to prevent any radical action on the part of the authorities.

Algernon Daingerfield, Assistant Secretary of the Jockey Club, said that most of the trainers were over the draft age, while most of the jockeys, stable boys, and other employes were either under the draft age, under weight, or under height for military service. According to Mr. Daingerfield, all the jockeys included in the selective draft have filed their questionnaires.

It was pointed out that racing men had come to the front for war service in a manner not exceeded by the participant in any other sport. August Belmont, Chairman of The Jockey Club, has been commissioned a Major and has been a busy man for many months in the progress of the war. Thomas Hitchcock also is a Major and is in command of the aviation field at Mineola, while his son, Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., has been captured while flying in France. Major B. B. Cassatt, Major Ral Parr, and Lieutenant Gifford A. Cochran are other prominent owners who have joined the colors, while nearly every gentleman rider is in some branch of the service.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 23.—Fifty per cent. of the jockeys on Kentucky tracks and slightly more than 20 per cent. of all other employes of racing plants in the State will be affected by Provost Marshal General Crowder's order that all men of draft age must either "work or fight," according to figures compiled today by M. J. Winn of Louisville, Vice President of the new Louisville Jockey Club and General Manager of Churchill Downs. Mr. Winn also is interested in tracks at Juarez, Mexico; Laurel, Md., and in New York.

A census taken at Churchill Downs today showed a total of 82 out of 408 employes amenable to the new regulations. It included 16 out of an office force of 120; 34 jockeys out of a total of 67, and 32 stable hands, track laborers, special policemen, messengers, &c., out of 216 miscellaneous employes.

Racing in Kentucky, however, and Mr. Winn presumed it also would hold good on Eastern tracks, aside from the almost irreparable loss of jockeys, will be affected only to a limited extent by the new regulations.

MERCHANTS NOT ALARMED.

Agreeable to Crowder as an Aid to Winning the War.

Employers of large numbers of men whose duties make them subject to reassignment to more important work under the provisions of the Provost Marshal General's ruling yesterday were inclined to accept it as something that would help win the war. Here and there business men in the first surprise that followed the news of the order expressed fear that business would be injured by the withdrawal of trained men and the introduction of inexperienced women.

Among the big department stores, such as Gimbel's, Saks, R. H. Macy's, while all will suffer more than any other line of business, there was a disposition to await fuller details regarding the working of the rule. The attitude of the heads of the big stores was summed up last night by Jesse I. Straus of R. H. Macy's when he said:

"I would not wish to express an opinion in the matter just now. I prefer to wait until I have had opportunity to study the ruling."

Hotels, which are required to yield their waiters, doormen, footmen, and clerks to war work will face a big problem, proprietors said last night. Lucius M. Boomer, Managing Director of the Waldorf-Astoria, Hotel McAlpin, Hotel Claridge, and the Hotel du Pont, the latter at Wilmington, Del., was quoted as follows:

"If the Government takes all our waiters, clerks, and other attendants it will bring about a very serious situation indeed. The shortage of labor is now very grave. The news is extremely depressing. I employ more than 1,000 waiters, and I don't know what is to be done about it. The employment of women will not solve the problem; they can't be trained over night. However, we can't tell much about the rule until it has been construed through test cases.

"Like everybody else, however," Mr. Boomer added, "we care only for winning the war. Why, if the Government ordered us to shut up shop, we'd close the hotels in a minute—anything for victory."

George Gales, President of the Liggett Drug Stores Corporation, said:

"The order of General Crowder will affect us seriously. We have already been hit mighty hard, hundreds of our men having joined the colors. We have employed women and girls at the soda fountains to take the places of the men who have gone to war, and General Crowder's order is one more step toward the employment of many more girls and women. It is serious, but we have all got to co-operate in any way the Government sees fit to bring about victory in the war."

The quotation of Edward Wise, President of the United Cigar Stores Corporation, was:

"General Crowder's order won't affect us at all. We have replaced those of our working force now in military service—10 per cent.—who have gone—and as others are called we will replace them, if we can; otherwise we'll work with shorter shifts. The war comes first and business afterward. We shall get along the best we can."

Mrs. Mary B. Dreier, Chairman of the New York Committee of Women in Industry of the Advisory Commission of the Council of National Defense said last night that, in her opinion, it would not be altogether easy to obtain the women to fill the vacancies caused by the removal of men from many industries.

FIRE LOSSES IN 1917 TOTAL $250,753,640

Underwriters Report Worst Year for United States Since the San Francisco Fire.

FEW OF ALIEN ENEMY ORIGIN

Say Increase Is Due to Speeding Up for War and Hasty Construction of Factories.

Losses by fire in the United States in 1917 aggregate $250,753,640, against $214,530,996 in 1916, the losses last year having exceeded any year since 1875, with the exception of the San Francisco fire in 1906. These figures were made public yesterday at the fifty-second annual meeting of the National Board of Fire Underwriters at the Hotel Astor. R. M. Bissell, President of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company and President of the National Board, presided at the meeting, which was attended by 137 prominent fire underwriters from all sections of the country, representing fire risks estimated at $55,000,000,000.

Otho E. Lane, Chairman of the board's Committee on Statistics and Origin of Fires, declared that the per capita loss rose from $2.10 in 1916 to $2.42 in 1917. It was a cause of satisfaction, he said, that the Government had finally recognized the necessity of protecting vital industries and had created a Fire Prevention Section of the War Industries Board under competent and experienced supervision. Owing to unsettled conditions no attempt was made in 1917 to secure statistics showing fire losses in European cities.

Few Fires of Enemy Origin.

Contrary to the general impression enemy aliens had little or no part in the losses by fire since the United States entered the war. On this point President Bissell, in his annual report, said:

"As soon as the war began it was realized that the danger of fires caused by enemy incendiaries was not to be ignored, and as was perhaps natural, many sensational rumors gained currency, among them one which mistakenly quoted the National Board of Fire Underwriters as authority for the statement that property to the value of $45,000,000 had been destroyed by fires caused by enemy aliens during the first nine months of the war.

"This published statement had the careful attention of our Actuarial Bureau, and disclosed the fact that as to nearly 96 per cent. of the fires cited there was no proof of incendiary origin, and as to nearly 90 per cent. no reason even for suspicion of such origin. This does not indicate the absence of danger from hostile alien incendiaries, but shows that their success thus far has been by no means as great as was to be expected."

The board's executive expressed the belief that the increase in fire losses was due to war conditions, which had called for the speeding up of industries, the hasty construction of new factories, congestion at plants, and overtime.

The underwriters renewed their pledge of national service "to conserve the nation's resources, and to safeguard its productive facilities from interruption by fire, in the hope of aiding and hastening victory over the common foe."

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Frederick C. Buswell, Home Insurance Company; Vice President, Charles L. Case, London Assurance Company; Treasurer, Charles J. Holman, Commercial Union Company, and Secretary, George G. Bulkley, Springfield Fire and Marine Company; Executive Committee, C. G. Smith, Henry E. Rees, P. L. Hoadley, Frank Lock, Lyman Candee, R. D. Harvey, J. B. Levison, W. R. Hodge, A. D. Baker, and Edward Meinel.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 16,361 packages. Larger offerings, more reserved buying and a lower and unsettled market for all grades. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 44½@45c; extras, (92 score,) 44c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 41½@43½c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 37@41c; thirds, 35@36c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 46@46½c; extras, 45@45½c; firsts, 42½@44½c; seconds, 38@42c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 43@44c; good to prime, 41@43c; common to fair, 35@40c; renovated, extras, 38@38½c; firsts, 37@37½c; lower grades, 32@35c; imitation creamery, firsts, 34@34½c; ladies, current make, firsts, 31½@32½c; seconds, 30½c; lower grades, 28½@30c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 30@30½c; No. 2, 29@29½c; lower grades, 27@28½c.

EGGS.—41,741 cases. Arrivals are heavy, but they include only a small proportion of strictly high grade Northern stock; the great bulk of the offerings are of good medium and lower qualities and for these there is strong pressure to sell with a continued slow outlet and a weak and irregular market. There is a fair call for strictly high grade goods; prices for such are rated fairly steady, sales are at a wide range, and the great bulk of the Western current packings is unsalable above 32@33c. Dirties in fair demand, but the supply is liberal and holders are free sellers. Nearby white eggs contain only a small proportion of strictly fancy large, chalk-white, newlaid quality, and for these prices rule in sellers' favor with some sales a little above present quotations; the great bulk of the supply, however, is more or less defective and is still pressed for sale, a large part ranging from 36@38½c. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 36@37c; storage packed firsts, 34½@35½c; regular packed extra firsts, 35½@35c; regular packed firsts, 32½@34c; seconds and poorer, 28@32c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, storage packed, 29½@30c; No. 1, regular packed, 29@29½c; No. 2 and poorer, 27@28½c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 27@28½c; under grades, 20@26c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 39@41c; ordinary to prime, 36@38c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 35@38c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 35@37c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 37@39c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 33@35c; duck eggs, 29@42c.

A PITIABLE GROUP.

FIRE LOSSES IN 1917 TOTAL $250,753,640

Underwriters Report Worst Year for United States Since the San Francisco Fire.

FEW OF ALIEN ENEMY ORIGIN

Say Increase Is Due to Speeding Up for War and Hasty Construction of Factories.

Losses by fire in the United States in 1917 aggregate $250,753,640, against $214,-530,995 in 1916, the losses last year having exceeded any year since 1875, with the exception of the San Francisco fire in 1906. These figures were made public yesterday at the fifty-second annual meeting of the National Board of Fire Underwriters at the Hotel Astor. R. M. Bissell, President of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company and President of the National Board, presided at the meeting, which was attended by 137 prominent fire underwriters from all sections of the country, representing fire risks estimated at $55,000,000,000.

Otho E. Lane, Chairman of the board's Committee on Statistics and Origin of Fires, declared that the per capita loss rose from $2.10 in 1916 to $2.42 in 1917. It was a cause of satisfaction, he said, that the Government had finally recognized the necessity of protecting vital industries and had created a Fire Prevention Section of the War Industries Board under competent and experienced supervision. Owing to unsettled conditions no attempt was made in 1917 to secure statistics showing fire losses in European cities.

Few Fires of Enemy Origin.

Contrary to the general impression enemy aliens had little or no part in the losses by fire since the United States entered the war. On this point President Bissell, in his annual report, said:

"As soon as the war began it was realized that the danger of fires caused by enemy incendiaries was not to be ignored, and as was perhaps natural, many sensational rumors gained currency, among them one which mistakenly quoted the National Board of Fire Underwriters as authority for the statement that property to the value of $45,000,000 had been destroyed by fires caused by enemy aliens during the first nine months of the war.

"This published statement had the careful attention of our Actuarial Bureau, and disclosed the fact that as to nearly 95 per cent. of the fires cited there was no proof of incendiary origin, and as to nearly 90 per cent. no reason even for suspicion of such origin. This does not indicate the absence of danger from hostile alien incendiaries, but shows that their success thus far has been by no means as great as was to be expected."

The board's executive expressed the belief that the increase in fire losses was due to war conditions, which had called for the speeding up of industries, the hasty construction of new factories, congestion at plants, and overtime.

The underwriters renewed their pledge of national service "to conserve the nation's resources, and to safeguard its productive facilities from interruption by fire, in the hope of aiding and hastening victory over the common foe."

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Frederick C. Buswell, Home Insurance Company; Vice President, Charles L. Case, London Assurance Company; Treasurer, Charles J. Holman, Commercial Union Company, and Secretary, George G. Bulkley, Springfield Fire and Marine Company; Executive Committee, C. G. Smith, Henry E. Rees, P. L. Hoadley, Frank Lock, Lyman Candee, R. D. Harvey, J. B. Levison, W. R. Hodge, A. D. Baker, and Edward Meinel.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 16,361 packages. Larger offerings, more reserved buying and a lower and unsettled market for all grades. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 44¼@45c; extras, (92 score,) 44c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 41½@43½c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 37@41c; thirds, 35@36c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 46@46½c; extras, 45@45½c; firsts, 42½@44½c; seconds, 39@42c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 43½@44c; good to prime, 41@43c; common to fair, 35@40c; renovated, extras, 38@38½c; firsts, 37@37½c; lower grades, 32@35c; imitation creamery, firsts, 34@34½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 31½@32½c; seconds, 30½c; lower grades, 28½@30c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 30@30½c; No. 2, 29@29½c; lower grades, 27@28½c.

EGGS.—41,741 cases. Arrivals are heavy, but they include only a small proportion of strictly high grade Northern stock; the great bulk of the offerings are of good medium and lower qualities and for these there is strong pressure to sell with a continued slow outlet and a weak and irregular market. There is a fair call for strictly high grade goods; prices for such are rated fairly steady, sales are at a wide range, and the great bulk of the Western current packings is unsalable above 32@33c. Dirties in fair demand, but the supply is liberal and holders are free sellers. Nearby white eggs contain only a small proportion of strictly fancy large, chalk-white, newlaid quality, and for these prices rule in sellers' favor with some sales a little above present quotations; the great bulk of the supply, however, is more or less defective and is still pressed for sale, a large part ranging from 36@38½c. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 36@37c; storage packed firsts, 34½@35½c; regular packed extra firsts, 35½@36c; regular packed firsts, 32½@34c; seconds and poorer, 29@32c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, storage packed, 29½@30c; No. 1, regular packed, 29@29½c; No. 2 and poorer, 27@28½c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 27@28½c; under grades, 20@26c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 39@41c; ordinary to prime, 36@38c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 35@38c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 35@37c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 37@39c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 33@35c; duck eggs, 29@42c.

Prices Uncertain Until Near the Close—Little Public Interest Shown.

Nothing could have indicated more clearly the extent to which professional trading was dominating yesterday's session on the Stock Exchange than the manner in which the market was rushed up in the last few minutes of the day, under the leadership of a house which is always thought of in connection with activity in Steel. Up to that point prices were for the most part sagging around lower levels, but the sharp spurt in the late afternoon extinguished the losses in United States Steel common, leaving that issue ahead of its previous day's close, and helped other issues to recover at least a part of their earlier declines. Under the influence of profit-taking sales, Steel had moved back to 106⅝ in the early afternoon. From that level it moved quickly nearly 3 points higher, ending the session at the best price of the day, with a net advance of 1⅛ points.

Sentiment was influenced largely by the failure of the copper producers to persuade the War Industries Board of their need for an increase in the Government price for the metal. It is true that the Government's proposal to continue the price at 23½ cents a pound for three months is as yet tentative, and it may become necessary to establish a differential for the mines laboring under heavy production costs. It is asserted in the trade that only the larger companies can continue to operate at the fixed price and make a profit. It has been suggested that for the less economically situated properties the Government may decide to allow a price fixed by the cost plus a percentage for profit and depreciation. The war is now taking practically all of the copper produced, and it is essential that the output should not be curtailed by the retention of a price too low for many of the companies. It is probable that the principal producers can continue to sell their copper at 23½ cents and make a fair profit on it, but even in their case it is expected that some readjustment may be made to cover higher costs at the smelters.

Wall Street has learned to fear Congress at work on new revenue measures, and trading has followed an uncertain trend since it became known that there was a fair likelihood of new taxation measures being introduced at this session. The outstanding lesson of the discussions and conferences in committee which preceded enactment of the present income and excess profits tax laws was that in future the work of drafting new legislation should await the recommendations of experts given every opportunity to determine a scientific basis for new levies.

Wilson & Co., Allis-Chalmers, American Linseed, Sumatra, American Telephone, Colorado Fuel and Iron, Lackawanna Steel, and Virginia-Carolina Chemical were all strong in yesterday's market, but most other issues lost ground. The copper shares were fractionally weaker, except Utah, which lost a full 2 points, and the rails showed further losses, as people had more time to think over the effect of the changes which the Director General is making. The new Government bonds were fairly active at the levels established earlier in the week. Call money loaned for the most part at 5 per cent., with some offerings at 4 per cent., while time money was practically unobtainable, though quoted nominally at the old rate.

LONDON MARKET CHEERFUL.

Far Eastern Stocks Supported on Chino-Japanese Agreement.

LONDON, May 23.—Money was in fair demand today, but discounts were quiet. Trading on the Stock Exchange was cheerful.

War loans were firm while the Far Eastern stocks were supported on news of the Chino-Japanese understanding. Central American bonds were firmer on the bondholders' offer to purchase bonds.

Shipping securities were higher and were bought by investors.

Trading Calm on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, May 23.—Trading on the Bourse was calm today. Three per cent. Rentes were quoted at 59 francs 75 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 13½ centimes; Five per cent loan, 87 francs 80 centimes.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Although Call Loans Are Renewed at 5%, New Borrowings Effected at 4%.

The opening rate for call money was 5 per cent., at which figure loans were renewed, but later in the day the rate moved down to 4 per cent., which was also the closing quotation. There was a good demand for time money, but only a small quantity was available, the rate for all maturities now being 6 per cent.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Salaries of Executives.

The size of the salaries paid to railroad Presidents has been the subject of discussion in Wall Street in the last few days. Although it is generally understood that at least three railroad executives have been paid $100,000 a year and one the sum of $73,000, F. H. Sisson declares that "the average salary of railway executives of the country is only about $6,200." This figure certainly looks small, but the fact is that "average salary" is a very misleading quantity. Furthermore, there are railroad Presidents and railroad Presidents, just as there are bankers and bankers, and much depends on the size of the man and of the property of which he is placed in charge. In the annual report of the Controller of the Currency for the year ended Oct. 31, 1916, John Skelton Williams appended a table of figures showing the salaries paid to Presidents of national banks. It appears that the average salary paid by ten banks in the Central Reserve cities having a capital of $5,000,000 or more is $49,000 a year. The same tabulation shows that the average salary paid to Presidents of national banks having a capital of $50,000 and less than $100,000 is $1,354 per annum, and the average salary of heads of banks with a capital of $100,000 and less than $250,000 is given as $2,414. It is believed that on account of the high cost of living the salaries of the small and big bank Presidents have been increased since 1916.

Steel Has Strong Recovery.

The last half-hour's dealings in Steel yesterday were placed among the most unusual and unexpected trading developments of the year. Up to 2:30 o'clock it appeared as though a long series of stop loss orders were being uncovered one after another, and the whole market had a decidedly weak tone. At 106⅝ Steel showed a drop of nearly 3 points from the high of the day. At the moment when the stock looked weakest a flood of buying orders came into the market, and in long strings of quotations, for blocks running to a large extent from 200 to 1,500 shares, the price ran forward until at the close a net gain of 1⅛ points for the session was recorded. One firm with Western wire connections bought in the neighborhood of 40,000 shares during the final hour.

The B. R. T. Note Issue.

News is expected next Tuesday from the War Finance Corporation in Washington regarding the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company's application to issue $150,000,000 of new bonds, or at least enough of this issue to take care of the company's $57,735,000 of gold notes, which mature July 1 and form one of the largest single maturities of the current year.

Russian Government Bonds.

Bankers showed considerable interest in the special cable dispatch from Paris, published in THE TIMES yesterday, which told of the apprehension of French investors regarding the interest payments on Russian Government bonds, due in July, and which reported the intimation in Paris banking circles that the French Government was not likely to assume the payment of interest, as it has done in the past. New York bankers said that they had no definite knowledge on the subject, and did not know whether or not the interest payments on the Russian external loans floated in the United States would be paid next month. Thus far Russia has not defaulted, but has promptly met the interest on the 5½ and 6½ per cent. loans, the former of which matures in December, 1921, and the latter in June, 1919. Semi-annual interest on the $25,000,000 issue of 5½ per cent. bonds is due on June 1, and semi-annual interest on the $50,000,000 issue of 6½ per cent. bonds is due on June 18. The National City Bank, which has acted as fiscal agent for the old Imperial Russian Government and which has heretofore made the interest payments on the bonds, is presumed to hold funds belonging to the old Government, but all information concerning the same is unavailable by reason of the fact that it is a matter concerning the bank and its client. The 5½ per cent. bonds are quoted at 38@40 and the 6½s at 41@42.

White Star Profit and Marine Deal.

Officials of the International Mercantile Marine Company in New York had little to say yesterday regarding the cabled report of earnings for 1917 of the White Star Line, or rather the Oceanic Steam Navigation Company, which indicated a net after taxes for that company alone of $6,888,000 on a capitalization—all the stock being owned by the I. M. M.—of $18,000,000, and stated that £200,000, or nearly $1,000,000, had been added during the year to the reserve, or undivided profits. President Franklin of the I. M. M. said some time ago he had given up hope of definite figures on the company's British subsidiaries until after the annual meeting. The unofficial figures, however, give some idea of the size of the consideration in the deal for sale of these British properties.

Another Bank to Double Its Capital.

Following the announcement a few days ago that the Fifth Avenue Bank had called a special meeting of stockholders to ratify the plan for increasing its capital stock from $100,000 to $200,000, it was learned yesterday that the Yorkville Bank of 1,511 Third Avenue had sent out a notice for a stockholders' meeting to be held June 6, at which time action will be taken looking toward the increase of its capital from $100,000 to $200,000. The stockholders of the Yorkville will also be asked to approve of the bank's application for membership in the Federal Reserve system.

A Speculative Day.

The stock market as a whole had a distinctly professional flavor. Baldwin supplied an excellent illustration. When the price had descended from 94 to around 91, a "hot tip" went around the speculative fraternity to buy it at 90, and shortly the effect of the advice was seen. The price touched 90¼, and then buying orders flowed in, bringing a recovery of more than 3 points.

Large Output of Bear News.

The bulk of the day's news of market import was decidedly on the side of the bears. Further discussion of taxation schedules, the copper price decision as reported in early dispatches from Washington, and also Washington comment to the effect that the Government might decide to commandeer all the output of steel mills, were items upon which short sellers fatten and which weak-kneed holders of stocks deplore.

Government Control of Steel.

Rumors that actual Government control of the physical assets of steel companies was a possibility have been brushed aside by manufacturers as stories without basis in fact. They point out that no hint has come to them that such a development is being considered in any Government quarter. As far as Federal control of output is concerned, that has already become effective, and there is no complaint over the situation in steelmaking circles. The Government is to get all the steel it needs, and what is over will go to commercial consumers.

Anomalies of Cotton.

The official spot quotation yesterday on the New York Cotton Exchange was a final acknowledgment of the hopeless disparity between cotton futures and spot prices which has prevailed all this year, but been emphasized since the recent big declines in futures. With futures prices declining on the day from 18 to 36 points, the Spot Quotation Committee felt compelled, in view of the news from New Orleans regarding the spot situation, and the prices obtained for spot cotton at auction on Wednesday, to mark up the spot quotation 75 points, at a premium of 300 points on July. Local spot houses are refusing 600 points on July for good middling cotton, it is reported, but dealers in futures are still selling the market down. At this rate apparently something will have to break eventually.

The British, French and American Armies are so certain of victory that the only thing we can be at all undecided about is how long the war will last. With the conclusion of peace and the gradual return of normal conditions, many investors will undoubtedly regret their lack of decision at times when sound securities could be bought to yield well over 7%.

Another Use of Odd Lots

Odd Lots are the anchors of conservatism of people who are able to trade in hundred share lots but who prefer to trade in smaller lots with greater protection.

Twenty-three New York City Banks Filed Subscriptions in Excess of $10,000,000 Each.

BIG INCREASE IN BUYERS

Number of Subscriptions in This Federal District Under $10,000 Was 3,336,980.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York gave out yesterday final figures for subscriptions to the Third Liberty Loan received in this district. The bank also made public a list of banks in Manhattan, Brooklyn, and the Bronx showing the totals of subscriptions turned in by them for their own account and for their customers.

Subscriptions in the New York district totaled $1,114,930,700, and were divided as follows:

New York City—	Quota.	Subscriptions.
Manhattan	$618,794,000	$702,577,750
Brooklyn	39,618,900	52,427,600
Bronx	3,317,100	5,112,350
Queens	4,364,400	10,137,350
Richmond	1,032,900	3,386,800
Total for N. Y. C.	$667,125,300	$773,641,850
Remainder of N. Y. State	151,939,500	211,645,050
12 Northern Counties of New Jersey	71,925,000	114,888,200
Fairfield County, Conn.	9,010,200	14,755,600
Total for district	$900,000,000	$1,114,930,700

Four Boroughs Increased.

A comparison of the above figures with those for the Second Liberty Loan shows that while the Boroughs of Brooklyn, the Bronx, Queens, and Richmond recorded much larger totals for the Third Loan than for the Second, the other subdivisions of the district, notably Manhattan, furnished a smaller volume. The quota for the Second Loan, fixed by local bankers, was $1,500,000,000 instead of $900,000,000, the figure determined by the Treasury Department. Following is a summary of the record for the Second Loan:

New York City.	Quota.	Subscriptions.
Manhattan	$1,012,813,500	$1,095,189,000
Brooklyn	54,148,500	44,424,200
Bronx	2,511,000	1,015,500
Queens	5,487,000	4,136,150
Richmond	901,500	1,373,700
Total	$1,075,861,500	$1,146,139,150
Balance of New York State	271,036,500	268,968,050
12 Northern Counties of N. Jersey	139,702,500	121,571,150
Fairfield County, Conn.	13,399,500	13,775,150
Total for district	$1,500,000,000	$1,550,453,500

For the Third Liberty Loan twenty-three banks and trust companies in this city filed subscriptions for themselves and customers in amounts in excess of $10,000,000. In the previous campaign the list of institutions supplying applications in excess of $10,000,000 numbered twenty-five. Following is a record of the twenty-three banks, with comparisons for the Second Loan:

	Third Liberty Loan.	Second Liberty Loan.

Union Trust Co.	10,264,500	20,100,000

More Individual Buyers.

The totals for subscriptions of the large banks was smaller for the Third Loan than for the second by reason of the fact that a much better and wider distribution of the loan was obtained in the case of the later loan, the number of subscriptions filed totaling 3,348,123, compared with 2,182,017. This large increase consisted principally of small subscriptions, which naturally were not filed through the big banks. The number of subscriptions for bonds from $50 to $10,000 was 3,336,980 for the Third Loan, compared with 2,173,884 in the case of the Second Loan.

Another reason why the totals of the larger banks was smaller in the case of the Third Loan was that the Secretary of the Treasury had announced that applications for bonds would be allotted in full, while in offering the bonds of the Second Liberty Loan he agreed to allot only 50 per cent. of the oevrsubscription.

SEES FEDERALIZING OF ALL BANK RESOURCES

Philadelphia Trust Company Head Warns Against Narrow Wartime Policy.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC, N. J., May 23.—Federalization of the banking resources of the nation along lines similar to the seizure of the railroads, to make them give the largest possible service to the country, was predicted by John H. Mason, President of the Commercial Trust Company of Philadelphia, in an address before the Trust Company Section of the Pennsylvania State Bankers' Association here today.

He prophesied that it would come about soon and that it should be anticipated. "If I am not greatly mistaken, there is a very pronounced trend toward the Federalization of our banking system," Mr. Mason said. "We can best meet it by looking it straight in the face and helping to guide it into the channels in which it should move. We must face these problems openly and squarely and with no view but the interest of the nation. The time for viewing these problems of finance in a selfish way has gone.

"I can figure that if the Liberty Loan had failed we, as bankers, would soon find ourselves occupying virtually the same position as the railroad men. The Federal Government practically would conscript us because we had not cooperated. We know that the railroad men strove to keep their separate interests paramount to the interests of the Government, and if the bankers should evince any tendency to move in that direction we may know exactly what to expect."

Former Lieutenant Governor John M. Reynolds of Beaver created a sensation with his declaration that the Pennsylvania Legislature for years had been openly violating the spirit of the State Constitution by granting special banking acts and privileges.

Patriotism was the keynote of the meeting. Every delegate wears a knot of red, white, and blue ribbon, and the convention souvenir is a book, "Our Boys With the Colors." It is printed in the national colors and contains the names of 1,753 banking men from Pennsylvania who have answered the nation's call.

Local bankers were uncertain as to the form of Federal control of the banks which Mr. Mason had in mind as a possibility in his address. To all intents and purposes the majority of the country's national banks and many of the State banks and trust companies are already closely affiliated with the Government through membership in the Federal Reserve system. It could not be learned here that any sort of action similar to the Government's management of the railroads was considered at Washington, or that such a step was looked upon as a remote possibility.

NOTE ISSUE SELLS FAST.

The National City Company sold yesterday in less than an hour a $2,000,000 issue of one, two, and three year 7 per cent. notes of the Timken-Detroit Axle Company at prices yielding investors from 7 to 7¾ per cent. The managers of the various offices of the company were advised of the terms of the issue in advance, but were not permitted to make an offering until 9 A. M. yesterday morning. Before 10 o'clock orders were telegraphed in from all parts of the country, the sum total being in excess of the issue.

The Timken-Detroit Axle Company is the largest manufacturer in the world of axles for motor vehicles, and 117 makers of automobiles in this country use its axles. The notes issued are the direct obligations of the company and will constitute its only obligations outstanding in the hands of the public. The proceeds of the issue will be used to fund notes payable and to provide additional working capital to take care of increased production. A considerable part of the work on hand is for the Government.

The company was organized in June, 1909. It has outstanding $1,850,000 of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock and $2,900,000 of common stock.

The company's balance sheet as of March 31 shows over $6,300,000 of fixed assets and $11,257,000 of current assets, against which the company had outstanding no obligations other than current liabilities of only $4,452,000. Fixed and net current assets together amounted to more than $13,000,000, or 6½ times the note issue. Net income for the three years ended Dec. 31, 1917, average $2,697,730 per annum, or more than nineteen times the entire annual interest on the notes.

WESTINGHOUSE CO. EARNS $16,834,732

New High Records for Bookings and Deliveries, but Greater Costs Cut Profit.

GROSS SALES $95,735,406.

Report Tells of Loss of $5,000,000 by Cancellation of Order for Rifles by Russia.

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company established a new high record for bookings and deliveries in the fiscal year ended March 31 last, but higher costs and the application of the Federal war taxes reduced the profit below the return in the preceding year. The annual statement issued yesterday showed that $147,857,580 worth of orders were on the books at the end of the year, an increase of more than $37,600,000 over the total reported twelve months before. A substantial part was contracts for turbine engines to be placed in the ships of the new merchant marine.

The gross sales amounted to $95,735,406, an increase of $6,195,964. These included the proceeds of output from the Westinghouse Machine Company from June 15 onward, and also $4,536,000 worth of munitions. The net earnings for the year were $16,834,732, against $18,848,237 in 1917. The Machine Company was absorbed by the major Westinghouse organization. The report lumped together operating expenses, depreciation, extension, taxes, &c., in a single item of $80,225,936 costs, an increase of more than $8,000,000. The final balance available for common stock dividends was equal to 21.3 per cent. on the outstanding issue, against 25.18 per cent. the year before. The principal items of the income account are presented here:

Bookings, April 1	$147,857,580	$110,185,007
Gross sales	95,735,406	89,539,442
Costs, taxes, &c.	80,225,936	72,077,752
Operating profit	15,509,469	17,461,690
Outside income	1,325,263	1,386,547
Balance for dividend	15,405,680	18,079,889
Per cent. for com. stk.	21.3	25.13

"The property and plant accounts," the report said in discussing the assets, "includes expenditures during the year in connection with the new plant known as the Essington Works, located near Philadelphia, to which reference was made in the report for last year. The plant, which is now completed and nearly equipped, is operating with a force of about 3,000 men, which it is expected will be increased to approximately 5,000 during the year. Contracts with the United States Government for equipment for cargo ships will occupy the capacity of the plant for approximately two years."

The company recorded the cancellation of the Russian rifle order a few months back. "The cancellation resulted in the company sustaining the full loss of $5,000,000, against which a reserve in that amount was set aside last year," the report stated. Almost simultaneously with the receipt of the notice of cancellation, inquiries were received from the United States Government as to the manufacture by the New England Westinghouse Company of heavy Browning machine guns. Orders were taken and deliveries began in April, the statement said, and were now in advance of the schedule fixed by the contract.

The merger with the machine company and the construction of the Essington plant aided in expanding the property account by $18,466,760 during the year to a total of $41,167,874. The need of large inventories caused an increase in the amount of notes outstanding of $12,282,301 net, the aggregate of indebtedness of this class being $30,186,051 at the end of the year. The year's surplus was $8,299,396, and the full profit and loss surplus on March 31 amounted to $26,404,694.

MAY KEEP COPPER AT 23½.

War Board So Recommends to President—Producers Disappointed.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Recommendation that the maximum price of copper fixed by the Government at 23½ cents a pound at Eastern refineries be continued for seventy-five days, beginning June 1, was made to President Wilson today by the Price-Fixing Committee of the War Industries Board. Final decision rests with the President, who is expected to issue a proclamation in a few days fixing the price for the next period. The present price expires May 31.

The recommendation by the War Industries Board that the price of copper be continued at 23½ cents a pound until Aug. 15 was a distinct disappointment to copper producers here. Before the conference was held on Wednesday between copper men and representatives of the board it had been expected that an increase from one-half to a full cent a pound would be permitted, part of it to be designated as an offset to producers for increased charges by refiners for handling their smelter output.

Copper men were inclined to believe that some adjustments would be made within the specified seventy-five days in behalf of the producers, whose costs have been running particularly high and are going higher. It was suggested that the Government might decide, as a measure for keeping output at a maximum level to satisfy the war demand, to put into operation a form of sliding scale prices for the mines which prove that an adequate profit cannot be made at 23½ cents a pound. Calculations have been made that from 250,000,000 to 300,000,000 pounds now being produced in this country per year cost the producers 20 cents a pound or more.

The chief subject of the conference, it was said, was the position of the refiners. Most of them handle copper "concentrates" on a long-term contract, and the plea has been advanced by some of the larger concerns that without higher compensation than the contracts call for they will receive so meagre a profit as to make the business hardly worth while.

The mining companies, whose bills for labor, material, fuel, &c., have been advancing steadily, contend that they cannot afford to pay increased refining charges without equivalent compensation in the price of their product.

TO THE HOLDERS OF

Certificates of Deposit for First and Refunding Mortgage Five Per Cent. Gold Bonds

OF

issued by Bankers Trust Company as Depositary of the Bondholders' Committee constituted by the agreement dated May 28, 1917:

Your Committee announces that, after protracted negotiations and after hearings before the United States District Court at which your Committee was represented by counsel, and with the co-operation of the Director General of Railroads and the Receiver, arrangements have been made for the payment of the interest due February 1, 1918, on the bonds above mentioned.

Holders of Certificates of Deposit will receive payment of their interest upon presentation thereof at the office of the Depositary or Sub-Depositaries on or after the 24th day of MAY, 1918, accompanied by proper ownership certificates under the Federal Income Tax law in respect of such interest.

Had it not been for the Committee's ability to act for a large number of bonds, the February coupon would still be in default. The more bonds that are deposited with the Committee, the easier will it be for the Committee to secure payment of the next maturing coupon and the coupons falling due thereafter.

All deposited bonds, whether registered or coupon, must be in negotiable form, and coupon bonds must bear the coupon of August 1, 1918, and all subsequent coupons. Upon such deposit, Certificates of Deposit will be issued as provided in the Deposit Agreement dated May 28, 1917.

Copies of the Deposit Agreement may be obtained upon application to the Depositary or Sub-Depositaries or to the Secretary of the Committee.

Application will at once be made to list the Certificates of Deposit on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Committee, representing bonds of the above issue, has concluded arrangements enabling the Receiver to provide funds for the payment of the interest which matured on the above bonds on April 1, 1918.

The holders of Certificates of Deposit will be paid the amounts to which they are entitled, as interest on their deposited bonds, upon presentation of their Certificates of Deposit at the office of The New York Trust Company, 26 Broad Street, New York City.

While the holders of undeposited bonds will also be paid their interest on presentation of the coupons for such interest at the office of The New York Trust Company, the Committee, nevertheless, in view of the Receivership of the Company and other existing conditions, deem it of especial importance that bondholders should promptly deposit their bonds with the Committee, in order to obtain the benefits to be gained from concerted action on behalf of the depositing bondholders acting through the Committee.

Undeposited bonds should be promptly deposited with The New York Trust Company, Depositary, or with the First Trust and Savings Bank, Agent of the Depositary, 68 West Monroe Street, Chicago, Illinois, on the deposit of which transferable Certificates of Deposit will be issued under the Deposit Agreement dated June 1, 1917.

THE COTTON MARKET

Cotton futures continued to show signs of weakness on the local market yesterday, despite the demonstration afforded by Wednesday's sale of the strength of the market for spot delivery of even low-grade cotton. At times the selling, particularly in July and October, was very active and general, and at its lowest point the market was off from 50 to 65 points net, with the active new crop months making new low records for the current season. There was some trade buying at the soft spots, however, and enough covering at the close to cause a fairly strong reaction, with the close very steady, off from 18 to 36 points net.

It was very largely a trading market, and this condition was reflected in the comparatively rapid and irregular fluctuations. The opening was irregular, with May contracts once more in demand by the short interest, up 15 points over Wednesday's close, and later months off various amounts. As soon as this early demand was supplied, offerings were made in sufficient volume to carry prices down some 50 points on the average. Most of this business appeared to be the liquidation of old long contracts by disappointed purchasers who had hoped for a sharp upward reaction some weeks ago.

There was another covering rally early in the afternoon, but it did not bring prices back more than 20 points, and only accelerated the liquidation, which brought the lowest prices of the day in the late afternoon. These prices were attractive to some trade buyers, however, and there was a substantial rally at the close.

A flurry in May contracts on the New Orleans Exchange attracted considerable attention and helped strengthen prices here. All reports on the spot situation, especially as regards the amount of low-grade cotton available, compared with the better grades, are extraordinarily confusing. This is attributed by some well-informed men to the remarkably large amount of "bollies" sent to the gins last Fall because of the enormous prices being paid then for anything that could be called cotton. Much of this stuff is supposed to have got into the statistics, although it is not spinnable and fit only for powder manufacture. The sharp rise in May contracts in New Orleans, combined with the enormous differences being paid here and the unprecedented premiums for July over October, are the subject of much comment by local cotton men, as indicating the difficulty of securing salable cotton to fill orders, despite new-crop prices. Trading in the May contract ceases at noon today.

Collateral Trust Six Per Cent. Gold Bonds, Series A.

To the Holders of Instalment Receipts:

Notice is hereby given that the holders of Half-Paid Receipts are offered the privilege of extending the date of payment of the final instalment on account of the purchase of this Company's Collateral Trust Gold Bonds Series A, from May 29, 1918 (the date fixed in the Receipt), to November 29, 1918.

Receipt-holders electing to extend the time of payment will surrender their Receipts at the office of Guaranty Trust Company of New York, 140 Broadway, New York City, on or before May 29, 1918, and receive in exchange therefor EXTENDED INSTALMENT RECEIPTS.

The Company will continue to allow interest to the holders of EXTENDED RECEIPTS at the rate of 6% per annum on the first instalment of the purchase price of the Bonds.

The respective rights and obligations of the Company and of the holders of EXTENDED RECEIPTS shall be as stated in the Receipts now outstanding except as necessarily modified by the extension of the date for payment of the final instalment due thereon.

Receipt-holders electing to pay the final instalment on May 29, 1918, will receive the Bonds called for by their Receipts.

The Federal Committee on Capital Issues has advised the Company that it "would look with favor" upon any action taken by the Company by way of offering Receipt-holders the privilege of extending the time of payment of the second instalment, and has authorized the Company so to advise the Receipt-holders.

DANIEL GUGGENHEIM, President.

WHEAT.

Reports from the Northwestern Spring wheat States indicated a very favorable outlook for Spring wheat, some authorities predicting that unless some unforeseen damage occurs the chances are very favorable for a bumper yield. An authority on plant diseases in Iowa seems to think that the chances are in favor of the development of black rust in the wheat and oats in that State, as it was said that samples had been discovered on some of the plants.

Market steady. No. 2 Western, $2.12, cost and freight, New York.

CORN.

After showing a certain amount of firmness early the corn market experienced a very sharp break toward the close, and final quotations were 1⅝@3¼c net lower. The local cash market was unsettled. Kiln dried No. 3 yellow quoted at $1.80⅝, ten days' shipment, and No. 4 yellow, $1.70⅝, cost and freight, New York.

OATS.

The congestion in the May position in the Chicago oats market has apparently been relieved by large deliveries, and in consequence the whole market was weaker, closing with net losses of ⅞c to 2c. The local cash market was weak and lower; standard quoted at 81¼c to 82c; No. 2 white, 82¼c; No. 3 white, 81c to 81¼c; No. 4 white, 80c to 81c; fancy clipped white, 83c to 86c; ordinary clipped white, 82c to 83c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was easier under increased selling pressure, prompted largely by a decline in the price of live hogs and in sympathy with the weakness in grain. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 33,000; estimated for Friday, 18,000. Kansas City received 5,000 and Omaha 17,000 hogs.

COFFEE.

Business on the Coffee Exchange yesterday was again quiet and confined mostly to the evening up of outstanding contracts. The opening was at declines of 3 to 6 points, with a leading Wall Street house taking the selling side, believed to be liquidation of outside interests. Values held within a narrow range, final prices showing net declines of 1 to 6 points. The Rio spot market was unchanged, while Santos spots and futures were not quoted. Receipts at the two ports were 40,000 bags, against 13,000 bags a year ago. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The three Eastern ports showed heavy gains in receipts and meltings for the week ending May 19. There was again in receipts of about 8,000 tons and meltings were practically 10,500 tons over the preceding week. New York refineries participated to no little extent in the gains. The International Sugar Committee reported purchases of 7,000 bags Cuban raws, June shipment, at 4.985c, cost and freight, and 12,500 tons Porto Ricos, June shipment, at 6.005c, cost, insurance, and freight.

WOMEN ENROLL TOMORROW.

Women who wish to vote in the primaries next September must enroll tomorrow. Enrollment places will be open from 8 A. M. to 10 P. M. A list of all these places was printed in The Times last Sunday.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Stocks closed strong in an active market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Buying orders in great volume made their appearance in the final hour, and the rally, which was particularly pronounced in Steel common, affected the entire list and continued to the close. Heavy losses, which had been registered earlier in the afternoon session, causing many issues to make new low levels for the day, were recovered and not a few stocks made net gains.

WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC & MANUFACTURING COMPANY

(SUMMARY OF ANNUAL REPORT.)

PITTSBURGH, PA., MAY 23, 1918.

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS OF WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC & MANUFACTURING COMPANY:

The Board of Directors presents the following report of the operations of your Company and its proprietary companies (except New England Westinghouse Company) for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1918, together with the usual financial and other statements of that date.

INCOME ACCOUNT FOR THE YEAR

Gross Earnings:
Sales Billed		$95,735,406.75
Cost of Sales:
Factory Cost, including all Expenditures for Patterns, Dies, New Small Tools and Other Betterments and Extensions, also Depreciations of Property and Plant, Inventory Adjustments and all Selling, Administration, General and Development Expenses and all Taxes		80,225,936.91
Net Manufacturing Profit		$15,509,469.84
Other Income:
Interest and Discount	$308,834.71
Dividends and Interest on Sundry Stocks and Bonds Owned	908,559.19
Miscellaneous—Royalties, etc.	112,869.62	1,325,263.52
Gross Income From All Sources		$16,834,733.36
Deductions From Income:
Interest on Bonds and Debentures	$303,916.68
Interest on Notes Payable	1,108,046.38
Miscellaneous Interest	17,089.41	$1,429,052.47
Net Income Available for Dividends and Other Purposes		$15,405,680.89

The Gross Earnings (sales billed) for the year include shipments since June 15, 1917, from the Machine Works (formerly Westinghouse Machine Co.), also $4,536,000 for munitions. The volume of sales billed for the regular products of your Company was greatly in excess of any previous year.

The Net Income for the year is stated after deductions for all taxes. The amounts included in the Cost of Sales for taxes, including Excess Profit Tax, are based on reports filed with the various authorities as required by law.

Here follows in the printed report a condensed comparative statement of operations for the past six years.

As of April 1, 1918, the value of unfilled orders in hand was $147,857,590, of which $110,185,007 was for the regular products of your Company. No facilities heretofore employed on regular products are engaged on munition work.

INCOME AND PROFIT AND LOSS ACCOUNT

The Surplus as of March 31, 1917, $18,105,298.66, was increased by the Net Income of $15,405,680.89 for the year, making the Gross Surplus $33,510,979.55.

In addition to the regular quarterly dividends at the rate of 7% per annum on the preferred and common stocks, a special "Red Cross" dividend was paid, making a total of $5,610,848.11 for all dividends paid during the year.

Special appropriations were made for the protection of inventory book values and to establish a research and development fund. After deducting these appropriations and other miscellaneous adjustments the Net Surplus as of March 31, 1918, is $26,404,694.73, an increase of $8,299,396.07 over the Net Surplus as of March 31, 1917.

The plan referred to in the report for last year for the merger of The Westinghouse Machine Company with your Company was made effective as of June 15, 1917. The accounts of the two companies were consolidated on a basis that resulted in no change in the Surplus of your Company because of the merger.

ASSETS

The Property and Plant account includes expenditures during the year in connection with the new plant known as the Essington Works, located near Philadelphia, Pa., to which reference was made in the report for last year. This plant, which is now completed and nearly equipped, is operating with a force of about 3,000 men, which it is expected will be increased to approximately 5,000 during the year. Contracts with the United States Government for equipment for cargo ships will occupy the capacity of this plant for approximately two years.

Another important improvement completed during the year is a factory at Trenton, N. J., for the manufacture of incandescent lamps. This factory has been in operation for some months.

The increase in Investments includes a subscription for Liberty Loan Bonds of the second issue, the only other important additions being the capital stocks of other companies acquired under the merger of The Westinghouse Machine Company and your Company.

In the latter part of 1916 a proposal was submitted to your Directors for the purchase of a small portion of your holdings in The British Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, Limited, in order that a controlling interest might be transferred from the United States to England. After careful consideration your Directors concluded that the commercial position of The British Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, Limited, would be improved if the control of that Company were owned in England instead of the United States, but decided that the sale of your entire holdings was the only satisfactory solution of the situation. Accordingly negotiations were concluded under which your holdings of 4% debenture stock and preference and ordinary shares in the British Company were sold to a syndicate formed in London (Electric Holdings, Limited) and payment therefor has been received in 5% prior lien debenture bonds maturing in ten years. These bonds are secured by the pledge of all the said securities sold and certain other additional collateral.

This change in your investments was made without change in book values and has, therefore, not affected the balance sheet.

Certain new trading agreements of mutual advantage have been entered into between the British Company, Electric Holdings, Limited, and your Company.

The great increase in the demand for the regular products of your Company, as shown by the volume of business completed during the year and by the volume of orders in hand, has required large increases in Working and Trading Assets. Further reference to this is made in the comments under Liabilities.

LIABILITIES

The consolidation of accounts resulting from the merger of The Westinghouse Machine Company with your Company brings into the balance sheet this year the outstanding balances of bonds and debentures issued by the Machine Company. The total of the annual sinking fund requirements with respect to all these issues is $150,000.

Your Company's Ten Year Collateral Notes aggregating $2,720,000 maturing October 1, 1917, were paid and the collateral has been returned to the treasury of the Company. Additional notes of the issue of 15-year 5% Notes due January 1, 1924, were offered during the year and redeemed, leaving only $52,500 outstanding of the several issues of notes made in 1909.

Reference has already been made to the large increases in inventories made necessary by the unprecedented volume of your Company's business. As a result your Company during the year increased the total of its outstanding notes payable by $12,282,301, the total amount of notes payable outstanding as of March 31, 1918, being $30,186,051. This includes $15,000,000 One Year Notes and $2,433,551 on account of Liberty Loan Bonds subscribed for by your Company and its employes.

NEW ENGLAND WESTINGHOUSE COMPANY

In the report for last year you were advised of a modified agreement made with the British Government with respect to the contracts for the manufacture of Russian rifles. The New England Company under this modified agreement was regularly producing rifles in excess of the originally estimated capacity of its plants, but when slightly more than 1,000,000 rifles had been delivered and probably because of the conditions arising in Russia resulting in the withdrawal of that country from the war, the British Government in December, 1917, exercised its privilege of cancellation of the undelivered part of the contracts. However, almost simultaneously with the receipt of this notice of cancellation inquiries were received from the United States Government as to the manufacture by the New England Company of heavy Browning Machine Guns. Negotiations resulted in the receipt of orders from the United States Government thus enabling the New England Company to retain its organization, not only to its own advantage, but especially to the advantage of our Government in having available for immediate use both manufacturing facilities and a trained organization for the production of Machine Guns. Deliveries began in April, and are in advance of the schedule fixed by the contract.

The cancellation of the Russian rifle contracts resulted in your Company sustaining the full loss of $5,000,000 against which a reserve in that amount was set aside last year. Your Directors therefore authorized the absorption of this amount in said reserve. The necessary entries were made as of December 31, 1917, so that the books of your Company as of March 31, 1918, include no accounts relating to the contracts for Russian rifles.

The entire outstanding capital stock of New England Westinghouse Company is owned by your Company and is carried at a valuation considerably below the estimated value of its real estate and buildings and other assets which are free of all indebtedness or encumbrance of any nature. The contracts with the United States Government for machine guns are on a cost plus basis.

The Certificate of Messrs. Haskins & Sells, Certified Public Accountants, covering the audit by them of the books and accounts of your Company and its proprietary companies appears in full in the printed report.

The abnormal conditions prevailing during the year called for unusual effort on the part of the officers and employees of your Company. The Board of Directors has pleasure in hereby expressing its appreciation of the efficient manner in which the unusual conditions were met and the general devotion to the Company's interests evidenced throughout the year.

By order of the Board of Directors.

GUY E. TRIPP, Chairman.

FINANCIAL NOTICES.

To the Holders of the Purchase Money Six Per Cent. 99 Year Gold Bonds due 1997 of the Kings County Electric Light & Power Company, secured by mortgage to Central Trust Company of New York, dated October 1, 1898:

The Kings County Electric Light & Power Company, being the owner of all of the capital stock of Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Brooklyn, proposes to merge that company into itself, and has applied to the undersigned as Trustee under its Purchase Money Mortgage dated October 1, 1898, for approval of said merger as provided in Article VII. of said mortgage.

The merger is proposed to be effected pursuant to the provisions of the Statutes of the State of New York, and the terms and conditions thereof as prescribed by the Statute provide that upon merger, the Kings County Electric Light & Power Company shall acquire and become and be possessed of all the estate, property, rights, privileges and franchises of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Brooklyn.

Pursuant to the terms of said mortgage, the Trustee will hear and consider any objections to the merger that may be presented by the holders of any of the bonds secured by said mortgage to it, at its office, No. 54 Wall Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, within sixty days after the completion of the publication of this notice which will be completed on the 2nd day of July, 1918.

Dated, New York, May 21, 1918.

CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, Trustee,

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ....6 p. c. for the best names

The quotations are for six months' paper.

Raw Silk Prices Are Firm.

Recent cables from Yokohama report the raw silk market there to be well sustained at the prices reached in the recent decline, which was sharp, and similar situations as to steadiness are reported from the other leading markets. A fairly good demand has been evident for Japanese raws at the prices touched in the decline, and visible supplies are now estimated at 9,500 bales. The Canton market reports a moderate demand from this country, with European buying less active than it was. New steam filatures have been active at Shanghai, at slightly revised prices. Tussahs are in renewed demand. The best old tsatlees there are gone, and the new ones are offered at prices rather above the parity of the local market. Milan reports nothing new. Locally some contracts running to the end of the year are told of. Spot sales also are larger as a result of the drop in Japanese silks.

Argentina Wants Phonographs.

The demand for phonographs in Argentina is reported by local exporters to be very active. Though many high-priced instruments are wanted, the bulk of the trade seems to be in those lines made to retail for from $5 to $10 each. Business of the latter kind is said to have increased materially during the last few years since communication with Germany was cut. It is said also that the American machines are gaining such a solid hold on the market in that country that the probabilities are they will hold the trade they have gained, even after Germany is again able to enter the South American field.

The Paper Market.

Buying in the local paper market is continuing on a large scale, according to reports from authorities in this trade. Prices are holding firm at about the high levels established several weeks ago. Bond paper is selling around 12 cents a pound, and Manila wrapping rules between 6 and 6½ cents a pound. While there are some mills which will accept orders at present prices, many are still insisting on orders being placed subject to price at time of shipment. Few of them, however, are in a position to accept much more business for delivery sooner than from two to four months hence.

They Are Making Money Easily.

Commenting yesterday on the numerous offerings of serges contained in the "Offerings to Buyers" section of the Buyers' Wants in THE TIMES lately, a local manufacturer said that this was visible proof that many concerns were endeavoring to turn an extra penny by buying up odd lots of serges and other staple woolen dress fabrics and selling them at tidy profits. He knew personally of a case, he said, in which a certain other manufacturer had one day sold a portion of his serge holdings to a buyer at 80 cents a yard more than he paid for them. The next day the same buyer returned and bought a larger lot, of a somewhat better quality, at an advance of $1 a yard over the original price. In each case the buyer virtually fought for the goods, which, it is expected, he will try to sell to some one else at still higher prices later in the year.

Bay Rum Supplies Low.

Importers in this city of West Indian bay rum are said to be experiencing considerable difficulty in getting their supplies to this country due to the fact that shipments of sugar from the West Indies are taking up practically all of the available tonnage. Stocks of bay rum on hand are said to be very near the vanishing point. Demand is reported to have been very active for some time, and the market is strong with a tendency toward higher prices. Present quotations range from $3.55 to $3.65 a gallon as compared with $3.25 to $3.35 ten days or two weeks ago. But even these new high prices seem to have failed to bring out any large quantity offerings.

Clothing Sales Bulk Large.

Salesmen who are now returning from their Fall trips, especially those representing the larger manufacturers of men's overcoats and suits, tell of the biggest advance business they have ever done from a dollars and cents point of view. In some cases it is also asserted that the actual sales were larger, and at least one large concern is known to have written as much advance business for the coming season alone as it wrote during all of last year. Reports from the smaller manufacturers are much less rosy, due very largely, it is said, to the fact that the retailers have been so thoroughly imbued with the idea of a fabric shortage that they will buy merchandise only from houses that can guarantee full deliveries. Many of the smaller clothiers, unable to do this, are said to be hard put for business.

Sees Big Summer Hat Business.

The biggest Summer hat season that has been seen in this country in years is predicted for June and July by a well-known member of the millinery trade, and he holds the trimmed hat responsible for it in a very large way. Women of all classes, he said yesterday, are becoming more and more individual in their dress, and they are finding that one of the easiest things in which to be distinctive is in their hats. The result is apparent in the sales of trimmings, especially flowers and feathers. One jobber of these goods recently has done business in them that shows a daily gain of 50 to 100 per cent. over the corresponding days of last year. A view favoring trimmed hats is that their garishness, if it is not overdone, lends a cheerful note that is valuable during war times. Another thing, which is cited as a reason why women are going to buy more hats this year than usual, is that millinery has advanced, relatively, less than any other kind of wearing apparel.

Now Comes the Semi-Made Suit.

The semi-made suit has made its appearance. Some of the first ones seen here consisted of an unfinished jacket and skirt of novelty crepe, as well as of braided and embroidered ratine, and could be retailed at about $12 and $15. They resembled, according to the bulletin of the National Garment Retailers' Association, the Russian blouse dress, except that the jacket, which is unlined, could be worn separately. The skirt was simply a length of the material, which had only to be seamed and sewed on a belting before being worn. The jacket had the sleeves and collar already sewed on, but had to have the seams finished off and the seam binding adjusted. The buttons, cuffs, and belt were already on. It is expected to do very well.

Gray Goods Still Lag.

There was again little snap evident in trading in the local gray goods market yesterday. Additional sales of 38½-inch 64-60s were reported at 18½ cents for June and July shipment, with a growing disposition on the part of mills to hold these goods at 19 cents and to ask 19¼ to 19½ cents for real spots. For June-July lots of 38½-inch 60-48s 16 cents was again paid, but aside from this there was not much of interest told of. In the sheetings, buyers were reported to be bidding, without success, 15¼ cents for July-August deliveries of 5.70 sheetings. The mills, however, were said to be asking 15¾ cents for those months and 16 cents for any delivery this side of July, the goods being very scarce for nearby shipments. Closing prices on spot printcloths were:

39-inch, 68-72s	...20½c	38½-inch, 60-52s	..16¾c
39-inch, 56-44s	...15c	38½-inch, 60-48s	..16c
38½-inch, 64-64s	...19½c	27-inch, 64-60s	...13¼c

Which One Was Right?

"The opinions of buyers sometimes differ very radically," said a local manufacturer of women's coats and suits. "Yesterday morning I was showing an old customer one of our early suits for next Fall. I shan't tell you what he said about it, but it was not flattering. I rather felt discouraged because I knew this man's judgment to be good. In the afternoon another of our old customers came in in whose judgment I have equal confidence. When he saw this same suit he raved about it and placed a very substantial order. Now, which one was right?"

BUSINESS NOTES.

I. Friend, who has for a number of years been manager of the local office of the Boston Store of Chicago, at 44 East Twenty-third Street, has been made merchandise manager of that store. His successor as head of the local office had not been decided on up to yesterday, according to inquiries made there.

The Mohr Garment Company of St. Louis, makers of children's dresses, has opened a local office in Room 710 of the Wilson Building, 1,270 Broadway. It is in charge of Fred White.

J. P. Slater & Co., makers of coats and suits, have taken new quarters in the building at 11 West Thirty-second Street.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

In addition to the announcement of the selection of a site for the proposed Hotel Commonwealth, to comprise the block bounded by Broadway, Fifty-fifth Street, Seventh Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street, interest in the real estate market yesterday centred upon the sale of a West Thirteenth Street commercial building to an investor.

The Dimick estate sold to a client of I. B. Wakeman, the eleven-story mercantile building at 8 to 10 West Thirteenth Street, covering a plot 40 by 103.3, adjoining the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue. The property has been held at $200,000.

Investors Buying Tenements.

James H. Cruikshank has sold to an investor the two five-story single flats at 6 and 8 Bradhurst Avenue, between 142d and 143rd Streets, on a plot 45.5 by 56.

James P. Eadie and John B. Robinson sold to Lena Weissberg, 210 West Sixty-second Street, a five-story tenement, on a lot 25 by 100.5.

The 40 Avenue B. Corporation, Herman Frankel, President, sold 40 Avenue B, a five-story tenement, on a lot 24 by 80, adjoining the northwest corner of Third Street.

The Private Dwelling Market.

Catherine Gallagher sold to Gertrude S. Davis, 206 West 142d Street, a three-story dwelling on a lot 16.9 by 99.11.

Harry Sugarman sold for Gertrude Rubin, 30 West 120th Street, a three-story and basement dwelling on a lot 18.4 by 100.11, facing Mount Morris Park.

Buying in the Bronx.

J. Clarence Davies sold for Catherine G. Giles the vacant plot, 26 by 114, on the north side of Giles Place, about 200 feet west of Sedgwick Avenue. The purchaser is M. S. Eyler, owner of the property adjoining on the south.

John C. Mead sold to a client of Kurz & Uren the two three-story two-family dwellings at 2,872 and 2,880 Bailey Avenue, each on a lot 25 by 101, between 228th and 230th Streets.

Ellen B. McNutt sold to the De Forest Telephone and Telegraph Company a lot 25 by 95 on the west side of Sedgwick Avenue, 100 feet south of 171st Street.

Frederick Brown resold to Joseph Thomas the four-story flat, 45 by 100, at the northwest corner of Anthony Avenue and 175th Street.

Joseph de Stefano purchased from G. Boccia, 1,080 Stebbins Avenue, a two-story frame on a lot 25 by 145.10.

Brooklyn.

The Mechanics' National Bank sold to an investing client of E. J. Hollahan, the two-story two-family house at 186 Bay Ridge Avenue.

Tutino & Cerny sold for Thomas P. Hayes to Mrs. Matilda Johnson, for occupancy, the two-story brownstone dwelling at 441 Fifty-first Street.

Queens Borough Sales.

The St. Albans Heights Realty Company sold to J. H. Boeschen a plot 100 by 100 feet on the west side of Decatur Street, 200 feet north of St. Mark's Avenue, St. Albans.

The Thrift sold to T. F. Woods the dwelling and plot 40 by 100 feet on the southeast corner of Delaware Street and Murray Street, Flushing.

The Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company sold to the Julius Strauss Realty Corporation the plot 125 by 178 feet on the northeast corner of Ocean Avenue and Meredith Avenue, Arverne.

The Harnden Realty Corporation sold to N. H. White a plot 70 by 131 feet on the east side of Ninth Street 125 feet south of Lawrence Boulevard, Bayside.

Long Island.

The John M. Clark estate, on Spinney Hill, Great Neck, Long Island, has been sold through Baker Crowell, Inc., and C. Smith Stanton. The estate comprises 72½ acres, with over one-half mile road frontage on the North Hempstead Turnpike, and adjoins the properties of W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and Payne Whitney. The buyer, who is an investor, is reported to have paid $125,000 for the property.

J. E. Breuer sold the Ella S. Wilkenson property in Great Neck Hills to C. P. Harty, who was represented by I. T. McKnight. The same broker also sold for Sarah E. Evans her property at the corner of Linden and Seventh Streets to John C. Sahm.

Westchester County.

The Robert E. Farley organization sold for the estates of Tappan Zee two plots on Farrington Avenue, in the Philipse Manor section of Tarrytown, N. Y., to J. Bauman of Maspeth, L. I.

The Red Roof Realty Company has sold, at Mount Vernon, to John C. Wallace Company nineteen lots on the west side of South Seventh Avenue, north of the Kingsbridge Road, Mount Vernon, upon which are erected eight new one and two-family houses; also sold to the Mount Vernon Homes, Inc., twenty-one lots on the east side of South Seventh Avenue, near Kingsbridge Road, upon which they will erect ten seven-room houses, with garages, and to A. Mitchel, for occupancy, a new seven-room house with garage, at 300 South Seventh Avenue.

New Jersey.

Pearl L. Bergoff sold 29, 33, and 37 Seaview Avenue, Jersey City, three one-family dwellings, to Conrad W. Stier, Louis A. Heichelheim, and Lewis H. O'Donnell.

City Collector James Ratigan of Jersey City bought the two-story frame dwelling, 25 by 125, at 619 Pavonia Avenue, Jersey City, from Charles Heywood.

Charles Steinhenstein bought, from Mrs. Catharine Bergen, 308 Arlington Avenue, Jersey City, a dwelling on a plot 21 by 112.

E. Heller & Bros., Inc., purchased as the site for improvement with a four-story brick factory building, which is to cost $70,000, a plot 100 by 98 at the northwest corner of the Boulevard and Lincoln Street, in the Hudson City section of Jersey City.

Commercial Leases.

The Duross Company leased for the Charles H. Van Aken Company the garage 3 Vandam Street, corner of Thompson Street, to Camion Brothers, for a term of years.

Charles B. Walker leased to the Wheelwright Paper Company of Boston the store and basement at 174 Wooster Street, for M. Hayes et al.

White-Goodman leased the store and basement at 35 to 37 East Thirteenth Street to Abraham Abramson.

Active in Red Cross Campaign.

The Real Estate Board of New York is now in the midst of its drive for the American Red Cross. In the few days allotted to this campaign the committee has set $80,000 as its mark. The board intends to make a canvass of the principals and employes in real estate offices and in buildings in charge of agents. The committee Chairman is William L.
